PREFACE.

THIS Volume is published as a supplement to the new Consolidated Digest, 1836—1909. It contains the cases reported in the four Series of the Indian Law Reports for 1914, and the Law Reports, Indian Appeals, and the Calcutta Weekly Notes for the year 1913-14.

The different sets of Law Reports in which the same cases have been reported, are specifically noted in the “Table of Cases” published with the Volume.

For easy reference, several words and phrases, which are expounded in the judgments digested in this volume, are given in a separate list arranged in alphabetical order, under the heading “Words and Phrases.”

ADMINISTRATOR PENDENTE LITE.

Commission—"Assets come into his hands," meaning of—Pledge—Action for account—Estoppel—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 11.—Acquiescence—Laches—Partition. Where part of the estate of which the defendant was appointed administrator pendente lite consisted of Government promissory notes, which had been pledged with certain Banks as security against advances, and these Government promissory notes were subsequently sold by the Banks under instructions from the defendant, and the sale-proceeds applied towards satisfying the indebtedness to the Banks, and the surplus money paid to the defendant: Held, that the defendant under the order of his appointment which provided for his remuneration by the allowance of "a commission of 2 per cent. on the assets that will come into his hands" was not entitled to charge commission on the gross value of the Government promissory notes, but only on the surplus moneys which he actually received after the indebtedness to the Banks had been satisfied. Scott v. Franklin, 15 East 28, referred to. Where an administrator pendente lite had retained as his remuneration more than he was entitled to claim, and his accounts showing such amounts had been passed by the Court with the knowledge of the plaintiffs and without any objection being taken by them, and a suit was subsequently brought by the plaintiffs to recover from him such excess, within the time allowed by law: Held, that such suit was not barred by estoppel, acquiescence or laches. Redgrave v. Hurd, L. R. 20 Ch. D. 1, referred to. The part of the estate to which the administrator pendente lite was appointed, was the undivided share of one out of four brothers in a joint family estate, the mother being alive, and subsequently by a decree in a partition suit, the mother was held entitled to a one-fifth share: Held, that the administrator pendente lite was entitled to charge his commission as on a one-fourth share. *OSMOND BEEBY v. Statements by accused pointing out places of crime by others and of his subsequent concealment, and houses visited for help—Exculpatory statements as to the occurrence—Admission of blood stains on clothes worn by the accused—Admissibility of such statements—Useful test of admissibility of statements to the police—Admissibility of previous deposition when witness cannot be found—Sufficiency of evidence that he could not be found—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ADMISSIONS AND CONFESSIONS TO POLICE OFFICERS—contd.

ss. 25 and 33—Circumstantial evidence, rule of. Section 25 of the Evidence Act does not exclude all statements by an accused to the police but only confessions. There is a distinction between mere admissions and confessions which are statements either directly admitting guilt or suggesting the inference of guilt of the crime charged. The general rule in the section is further subject to that which admits statements leading to discovery whether they amount to confessions or not. Statements by an accused to police officers pointing out the places where the offence was committed by others or where he concealed himself thereafter, and the houses to which he went for assistance, whether regarded as information leading to discovery, or as statements made by him as part of his defence, are admissible in evidence as admissions. Exculpatory statements by an accused to the police as to what, according to his case, actually happened on the occasion of the commission of the offence and put forward by way of defence, are admissible as admissions, notwithstanding that they are shown by other evidence to be untruthful. So where the accused told the police that certain other persons had killed the deceased, described the occurrence, and stated that he was seized by them but escaped and concealed himself in a paddy field, that he went to the houses of several people for assistance against the murders but was turned away as a mad man, and that he then went and slept at the house of another person: Held, that the statements were admissible in evidence. A useful test as to the admissibility of statements made to the police is to ascertain the purpose to which they are put by the prosecution. If the prosecution relies on the statements as true they may, and probably in many cases will be found to, amount to confessions. If they are relied on not because of their truth but of their falsity and as a circumstance thereby tending to prove the guilt of the accused, they are admissible as admissions. But a statement by the accused to the police that a mark found in the dhoti, which he was wearing at the time of the occurrence, was a blood stain, was held, under the circumstances (viz., the distance he was from the place of the murder and his prevarication as to the nature of the mark), to be of an incriminating character from which an inference might possibly, though not necessarily, be drawn. Where the only evidence that a witness could not be found was the statement of a police officer that search had been made for him to summon him but he could not be found, that a warrant was also issued and that he was a man of another district, but no warrant was produced and there was no evidence of any attempt to serve it, or, if so, of what was done for the purpose: Held, that sufficient ground had not been established for the admission of the previous deposition of the witness under s. 33 of the Evidence Act. To justify the inference of guilt from circumstances, the inculcating facts must be shown to be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation on any other reasonable hypothesis than that of guilt. EMPEROR v. KANGAL MALL (1905)

1. ———— Lease of land by an agent of landlord—Collection of rent by the agent—Agent paying over the rent to the landlord—Agent setting up his own title and keeping the rent to himself during continuance of lease—Landlord's right to land at determination of tenancy. In 1887 certain land belonging to defendant No. 2's family was leased to a tenant for 18 years by a registered lease by the plaintiff's family, who acted as agents of the defendant No. 2's family, and collected the rent and paid it over to them. The rent was so paid till 1893, when the plaintiff's family set up their own title to the land and ceased paying over the rent to the defendant No. 2. The tenant remained in possession of the land till the determination of the tenancy in 1905; and then attorned to defendant No. 2. In 1908, the plaintiff sued to recover possession of the land, alleging that the title of defendant No. 2 to the land was lost by the adverse possession of the plaintiff. The lower Courts decreed their claim. On appeal by defendant No. 2: Held, reversing the decree, that so long as the tenant held the land under the tenancy he held it as the tenant of defendant No. 2's family and their rights were just as good at the end of the tenancy as they were at the beginning, and were absolutely unaffected in any particular by the reiterated assertions made by the plaintiff of an adverse title or by the fact

3. ———— Possession by person claiming as trustee—Animus possidendi determines nature of right prescribed—Estoppel—Landlord and tenant. When a person purports to hold property as a trustee, he cannot by such possession acquire a right to the property by prescription for himself against the beneficiaries. The character in which possession is held, and the animus possidendi of the holder determines the right which the possession would confer. Madhava v. Narayana, I. L. C. 437, and Soar v. Ashwell, [1893] 2 Q. B. 390, referred to. The plaintiff's father claiming to be the trustee of a temple demised temple lands in 1866 on kanom to the first defendant, and the second defendant was the ultimate assignee of the kanom interest at the date of suit. The plaintiff's claim to the trusteeship was negated by decree of Court in 1894 when a third party was declared to be the trustee. It was found that the plaintiff was not the trustee at the date of the present suit instituted by the plaintiff for recovery of possession of the kanom lands from the second defendant. Held, that the suit must fail, as the plaintiff was not the trustee. Held, further, that the second defendant was not estopped from denying the plaintiff's right on the ground that he was no longer the trustee, though he would be estopped from denying the title of the temple. *THUPPAN NAM-BUDRIPAD v. the mortgagee as absolute owner, and had the patta transferred to his name: Held, that the possession of the mortgagee under the circumstances for over twelve years, was adverse to the mortgagor, whose right to redeem consequently became barred by limitation. An unregistered agreement between the mortgagor and the mortgagee, that the mortgagee shall hold possession as owner will not confer an immediate title on the mortgagee, but is valid in so far as it has the effect of changing the legal character of the possession of a mortgagee into possession as owner. A mortgagee cannot by a mere assertion of his own or by any unilateral act on his part, convert his possession as mortgagee into possession as absolute owner. Ali Muhammad v. Lalita Buksh, I. L. Limitation—Fresh relief claimed in respect of which a suit would have been time-barred. A deed of mortgage purported in the first place to mortgage with possession certain specified plots of sur and khudkashi land. There was, however, a stipulation in the mortgage-deed that, if the mortgagees failed to obtain possession under the deed or were disturbed in their possession, they would be entitled to recover their money from the mortgagors, and this either by sale of the mortgaged plots, or by sale of the zamindari share to which these plots appertained or from the persons and the property of the judgment-debtors. A suit was filed just within the extended period of limitation allowed by section 31 of Act No. IX of 1903 for sale of the specified plots. After the period of limitation, however, had expired the plaintiffs applied for leave to amend the plaint and asked for sale of the zamindari share. The Court below allowed the amendment. Held, that the Court had no power to allow amendment of the plaint by introducing a new cause of action after the period of limitation in respect of such cause had expired. *Muhammad Sadrq v. 1. ————— Attachment—Stay of execution—Security—Order accepting security, whether appealable—"Decree"—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 2 (2) and 47. An order for security to stay execution is not an order determining any rights of the parties. It is neither an order under s. 47 nor is it a "decree" within the meaning of s. 2 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. It is, therefore, not appealable. *Deoki Nandan Singh v. An order made by a single Judge sitting on the Original Side under s. 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure, interfering with a judgment of the Presidency Small Cause Court, is a "judgment" within the meaning of s. 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable. *Chappan v. An application under s. 41 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act for the recovery of possession of certain immovable property, was refused by the Presidency Small Cause Court on the ground that the relationship of landlord and tenant had not been established: Held, that, assuming that the judgment was erroneous, the High Court was not justified in interfering under s. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. Amir Hassan Khan v. When an appeal has been admitted, the appellant is entitled to be heard on the whole case, and cannot be restricted to any selected ground from those specified in his petition. XLVII—Letters Patent, 1865, cls. 10, 39—Sanction for prosecution—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 195. An order sanctioning prosecution made in the course of a disciplinary proceeding against an attorney under cl. 10 of the Letters Patent of 1865, is not governed by cl. 39 and therefore against such an order no leave to appeal to the Privy Council can be given. Clause 39 of the Letters Patent empowers the High Court to declare the fitness of an appeal to the Privy Council in any matter, not being of criminal jurisdiction, if it is a final judgment, decree, or order of the Court, made on appeal or in the exercise of original jurisdiction. (IX of 1899), s. 19—Contract by bought and sold notes—Arbitration clause—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 62, 63. Where an application under an arbitration clause in a contract was made to stay proceedings and refer matter in dispute to arbitration, and it was contended by the opposite party that for the original contract a new agreement had been substituted, inasmuch as both parties had agreed to an extension of time.
Held, that a mere extension of time did not operate so as to rescind the original contract, but where a new term for the inspection of the goods before delivery had also been introduced, the original contract was replaced by the new agreement, to which the arbitration clause in the original contract could not apply, and the application must, therefore, be refused. In this case the acceptance of part-delivery out of time also indicated a new agreement between the parties.

arbitrator in the arbitration proceedings, his acts not amounting to corruption or misconduct within the meaning of paragraph 15 of schedule II of the Code. If irregularities can be proved which would amount to no proper hearing of the matters in dispute there would be misconduct sufficient to vitiate the award without any imputation on the honesty or impartiality of the arbitrator, but no such irregularities were established by the appellant, on whom the onus of proving them lay. An arbitrator selected by the parties comes within the general obligation of being bound to give evidence, and where a charge of dishonesty or partiality is made, any relevant evidence he can give is without doubt properly admissible.
It is, however, necessary to take care that evidence admitted as relevant on a charge of dishonesty or partiality is not used for a different purpose, namely, to scrutinize the decision of the arbitrator on matters within his jurisdiction and in which his decision is final. The limitations applicable to the evidence of an arbitrator as witness in a legal proceeding to enforce his award are stated in the case of Buckleugh v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 5 H. L.
418, but where charges of dishonesty are made the Court would reject no evidence of an arbitrator which could be of assistance in informing itself whether such charges were established. In this case the charges of dishonesty and partiality were held to have entirely failed. Where part of an award was found to be invalid as being in excess of the arbitrator's powers, and it was separable from the rest, the remainder of the award being good was maintained. It is generally desirable that an arbitrator should make and retain for subsequent use, if necessary, notes of the proceedings before him; but there is no warrant for holding that in the absence of such notes an award should be set aside at the instance of one of the parties, who must be held to have known the general course of procedure, and who did not make any protest until after the making of the award with the terms of which she was not satisfied. ANIR BEGAM v. BADR- award, distinction between. The word "award" in cl. (b) of s. 17 of the Indian Registration Act is not restricted to awards filed in Court and a private award is not compulsorily registrable. But a document which purports to be an award may amount to something more than an award; if the parties to the reference affix their signatures to the award in token of their acceptance of the decision of the arbitrators, the award may thereupon become a deed of partition and may as such become compulsorily registrable. TEK LAL SINGH v. SRIPATI CHOW

Satish Chandra*, I. L. R. 38 Calc. 522, had been rightly decided having regard to the change in the law made by the wordings of s. 148 and sch. II, cls. 8 and 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908), which would seem to give the Court discretion to extend time even after the original time for making the award has expired. Whether having regard to the above changes in the law the decision of the Privy Council in Rajah Har Narain v. Bhagwant, I. L. R. 13 All 300 : s. c. L. R. 18 I A 55, is of the same binding authority as before. Semble: As in this case while the award was being rendered into English the parties entered into a written agreement not to dispute the award, the plaintiff was precluded from questioning the award. The agreement might be regarded as amounting to a fresh submission and acceptance of the English award as an award binding on all the parties to the agreement, or it might be regarded as a lawful adjustment of the suit which might be enforced as a decree under O. XXIII, r. 3. SRI LAL v. ARJUN DAS (1914).

6. Jurisdiction—

Power of Court to supersede an arbitration proceeding under its orders before submission of award—Revision—Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 115, sch. II, para. 15. Semble: That the intention of the second schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure is that when once a reference to arbitration has been made under the orders of the Court that reference should only be superseded for one of the reasons given in the schedule itself, and that allegations of corruption against the arbitrator should be dealt with under para. 15, after the award has been received. Even if a Civil Court possesses inherent jurisdiction to supersede an arbitration proceeding under its orders, such jurisdiction should be cautiously and sparingly exercised, and an application invoking such jurisdiction should at least suggest grounds for supposing that the applicant will suffer some irreparable injury if prompt action is not taken. The High Court can interfere in revision when the inherent jurisdiction of a Court is exercised wrongly and with material irregularity. Atlas Assurance Company v. Ahmedbhai Habibbhai, I. L. ss. 2, 152, 162, 164—Illegal recruitment of cooly—Reparation at the expense of the employer—Jurisdiction of Magistrate. In a case under s. 164 of the Assam Labour and Emigration Act for illegal recruitment of coolies the Sub-Deputy Magistrate while acquitting the accused, made an order that the proprietor of the garden should deposit the expenses of repatriation of the coolies in question. Held, that the Sub-Deputy Magistrate not being appointed by the Local Government within the meaning of s. 2 of the Act, his order was ultra vires. That the order was also bad on the ground that the Sub-Deputy Magistrate did not call upon the employer to show cause against the order, there being an acquittal of the accused and nothing to show undue influence or coercion. S. 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code protects an accused against a subsequent trial for the same offence, and on the same facts, for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him "might have been made," but was not made, and not when such different charge was made at the previous trial and the jury disagreed as to it. Where a prisoner was tried at the High Court criminal sessions for murder and abetment of the murder of a police officer, under ss. 302, 303 and 304, and also for murder and culpable homicide of another person, under ss. 302 and 304 of the Penal Code, and the jury returned a unanimous verdict of acquittal under ss. 302 by the direction of the Judge in the first case and of acquittal under s. 302, in the second case, but differed as to the remaining charges by 5 to 4 and were discharged: Held, that s. 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code*

did not prevent a retrial on the latter charges. Where a prisoner is unanimously acquitted of some of the charges, and the jury are divided as to the rest and discharged, and he is "retried" under s. 308 of the Criminal Procedure Code before a different jury, he is not being "tried again," within the meaning of s. 403, but his retrial is on the original indictment and plea, and the Court continues the trial before another jury, and the process may continue till a verdict is passed on all the counts. S. 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code has nothing to do with pleading, being in terms a limitation on the jurisdiction of the Court, and is not to be construed with reference to the English law of criminal pleading. Ss. 271 and 272 contain all that is necessary as to pleading without reference to the English rules. Under s. 271 the accused can only plead "guilty," or claim to be tried, or he can refuse to plead, but the plea of "not guilty" is intentionally not recognized by the Code. If an accused claims to be tried he can, subject to special provisions, take any objection to his trial or conviction before the verdict of the jury and in any form. A defence under s. 403 may, therefore, be set up at any time before verdict and in any form, and the question must be decided solely according to the terms of the section irrespective of the English law. The question is one of law to be decided by the Judge without reference to the jury. Semble: That if the case was governed by English law, (1) the prisoner having, at the commencement of the retrial, made a plea of "not guilty," which was still awaiting adjudication, could not at the same time plead autrefois acquit, and that the second plea was, therefore, unnecessary and of no effect. Rex v. Banks, [1911] 2 K. B. 1095, referred to; (2) that the proper course would, under that law, have been to take a verdict from the jury at once on the plea. Rea v. Parry, 7 C. & P. 826, referred to; (3) that under the same law, a verdict on one count and disagreement on the others would not, in the case of a retrial, affect the trial on the latter. Reg v. Grimwood, 60 J. P. 809, not followed. S. 34 of the Penal Code must be read according to its own terms without reference to the doctrine of the English law, and applies only where a criminal act is done by several persons of whom the accused charged thereunder is one, and not where the act is done by some person other than the latter. Where, therefore, two persons fire at another and only one actually hits and kills him, the other is not guilty of murder under ss. 302, but of attempt to murder, which offences do not constitute the same "act." Queen-Empress v. Mahabir Tiwari, I. L. R. 21 All. 263, Gouridas Namasudra v. Emperor, I. L. R. 36 Calc. 659, not followed. There is no reason for saying that a person must be absent in order to abet under s. 109 of the Penal Code. The instigation of the unknown murderer by accompanying him to the place of occurrence and by aiding him in his flight afterwards might have taken place though the accused was not present at the murder. But when the evidence shows that he was so present, s. 114 applies. Ss. 109 and 114 of the Penal Code supersede the English law as to principles in the first and second degrees and accessories before the fact. The provisions of the Penal Code cover all the cases provided by that law, and contain the whole law in India on the points. Where the Judge has directed an acquittal under ss. 302 of the Penal Code on legal grounds, the verdict of the jury to that effect has not determined any question of fact, and the acquittal has no effect on the trial of charges under ss. 302 and 303. Where the Judge expresses an opinion that if the facts given in evidence are believed, the accused is guilty of murder, the jury have a right to disagree with his view and acquit the prisoner of the offence. *EMPEROR v. B*BABUANA GRANT.

AUTREFOIS ACQUIT—concl'd.

1. ————— Darbhangra Raj —Government revenue and cesses whether payable to Raj—Revenue not paid to Raj—Debt, whether a joint family debt—Mitakshara family—Decree against father personally—Debt not proved to be illegal or immoral—Whether the interest of the sons passes. Holders of babuana property in the Darbhanga Raj are liable to pay Government revenue and cesses to the Raj. Where the income of the babuana property was appropriated by members of the family, and the Government revenue and cesses payable were not paid, the liability to pay the Government revenue and cesses should be considered as a joint family debt and not the personal debt of the holder for the time being. Even if it were considered to be a personal debt of the father, in execution of a decree against the father alone the entire family property could be sold and not merely the personal interest of the father, as the debt could not be attached as an immoral debt. Every debt incurred by the father in a Mitakshara family not for illegal or immoral purposes is of a nature to support a sale of the entirety of the family property. In execution of a money-decree against the father alone for a personal debt of the father, the whole family property may be sold, if the debt was not contracted for immoral purposes and it is not absolutely necessary that the son should be a party either to the suit itself or to the proceedings in execution. Where it appears from the form of the suit or of the execution proceedings or from the description of the property put up for sale that only the interest of the father in the property was intended to be sold and was put up for sale, the interest of the sons would not pass by such a sale, and in such a case, the absence of the sons from the suit or execution proceedings would be a material element for consideration. Where, on the other hand, the proceedings show that the intention was to sell the entire property and the same was sold and bargained for, then the purchaser would be entitled to the whole, and the sons, though not parties to the proceedings cannot, claim their shares against the purchaser except by proving that the debt was contracted for immoral purposes. The words "right title and interest" of the judgment-debtor may either mean the share which the father might have sold to satisfy his debt or the share which he would have obtained on partition, and the question what was intended to be sold or was sold in each case will depend upon its own circumstances. Where in the sale proclamation the property to be sold at an auction sale was described as "7 as. 8 gds. 3 karas of Pandaul . . . Touzi No. 6473 . . ." i.e., the entire family property, and the property was purchased by the decree-holder for Rs. 55,000, and an application for setting aside the sale was rejected on the ground that the evidence in proof of the insufficiency of price could not be deemed good and satisfactory, and the sale was confirmed with the following order: "Whereas M purchased for 55,000 the rights and interests in the properties specified below, and thirty days have expired, and an application for setting aside the sale has been rejected the sale is hereby confirmed;" but in the certificate of sale, the description of the property was to the same effect as that in the sale proclamation, and, finally, it was not suggested that the price paid was not the full value of the property purchased: Held, that the words "rights and interests" in the order confirming the sale do not raise any ambiguity, or induce the Court to hold that only the personal interest of the father was sold and that under the circumstances the entire family property passed to the purchaser. *Deendyal v. 2. ————— Darbhanga Raj —Liability to pay its share of revenue and cesses if a charge on subject of grant—Partition by two sons of grantee with concurrence of Raj subject to condition that non-defaulting share would be sold for arrears after sale-proceeds of defaulting share found insufficient—Condition if creates a charge—Suit for arrears of one share—Death of owner thereof—Substitution of the other co-sharer as representative and widow not admitted as party at plaintiff's instance—Decree against other co-sharer only—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 367, 368—Plaintiff to choose representative of deceased defendant at his own risk—Claim to represent by person other than plaintiff's nominee—Proper procedure—Suit thereon, against estate in widow's possession, if maintainable—Limitation—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Arts 122, 132. The condition in a babuana grant to a junior member of the Darbhanga Raj family that the grantee shall regularly pay the Government revenue and cesses due from the portion of the estate given in babuana to the Raj treasury, does not create a charge in favour of the Raj in respect of overdue arrears of revenue and cesses upon the property granted. Where on the grantee's death his two sons, with the concurrence of the holder of the Raj, divided the estate equally and separate accounts of their liabilities were opened, subject however to the condition that on default by either the Raj would be entitled to join the other in a suit to recover the arrears, and that execution of the decree obtained, the defaulter's share was to be put up for sale first and only on the proceeds proving insufficient the share of the other would be sold for the balance: Held, that the arrears payable by the defaulting co-sharer were not by this agreement made a charge on any portion of the estate granted, and, if at all, then on the share of the non-defaulting co-sharer only. On the death of one of the two co-sharers, dispute having arisen between his widow and the surviving co-sharer as to their right to represent the deceased's estate exclusively as his heir, the Raja in a suit instituted against the two co-sharers to recover arrears due on account of the share of the deceased only, applied for substitution of the surviving co-sharer, in the place of the deceased and the widow's application to be added or substituted as representative of the deceased was on the Raja's opposition dismissed on the express understanding that she would not be bound by the decree and that her interests would in no way suffer, and subsequently, being unable to execute the decree as the share of the deceased was in the possession of his widow and the share of the surviving co-sharer could not be proceeded against under the agreement until the other share was sold, the Raja instituted a suit for a declaration that the share in the widow's possession was liable to pay the arrears covered by the decree in the previous suit and that the arrears were a charge on that share: Held, that the suit was not in the circumstances maintainable as a suit on a judgment, and the limitation of 12 years applicable to such a suit did not apply. Ramaswami Chettiar v. Oppilamani Chetta, I. L. R. 33 Mad. 6, Kader Mohideen Marakkayar v. Muthu Krishna Ayyar, I. L. R. 26 Mad. 230, Prosunna Chunder Bhattacharjee v. Kristo Chytunno Pal, I. L. That as the arrears in question were not a charge on the share, the suit could not be treated as one to enforce a charge and the 12 years' limitation applicable to such a suit also did not apply. *RAMESHWAR SINGH v. Issues mentioned in s. 105A can be tried in a proceeding for settlement of rent under s. 105. Where an applicant under s. 105 purchased a tenure in an estate of which he himself was the proprietor: Held, that the mere fact that his name did not appear in the khathan as owner of the tenure was no ground for holding that he was not entitled to apply under s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. UPENDRA NATH GHOSH v. assess fair and equitable rent, if maintainable—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 181—Correctness of Revenue Officer's decision if can be challenged in civil suit—Record-of-rights if can be referred to, to ascertain rent of contiguous land. In a proceeding under s. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the Revenue Officer directed that certain lands entered in the record-of-rights as held rent-free be recorded as liable to payment of rent. This order was made more than two months after the date of the certificate of final publication of the record. The plaintiff, the proprietor, thereupon instituted a suit in the Civil Court for the assessment of fair rent, it being too late for him to apply under s. 105 of the Act: Held, that the suit was maintainable, if not under the general law, as a suit in the nature of a declaratory suit, then as an application under s. 158. That s. 109 did not stand in the way of the suit, no proceeding having been taken under s. 105 for the fixation of a fair and equitable rent. The cause of action in the suit arose after the decree under s. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed. Quere: Whether Art. 131 read with s. 23 or Art. 120 of the Limitation Act applied. Held, that applications under s. 158 of the Bengal Tenancy Act are not governed by Art. 181 of Sch. I of the Limitation Act. That it was not open to the defendants to contest in the civil suit the correctness of the decision of the Revenue Officer and to raise again the question of their liability to pay rent. That the lower Appellate Court was not wrong in law in referring to the record-of-rights for the purpose of ascertaining the rents payable in respect of lands in the vicinity similar to those in suit. The scheme of ss. 105, 106, etc., of the Bengal Tenancy Act seems to be that matters brought at once or within a strictly limited time before the Revenue Officer are to be dealt with by him, while matters not so brought before the Revenue Officer are left to the ordinary law and the Civil Courts. *BERHAMDUT MISSEER v. the merits. Where, in such a suit, the plaintiff being absent, the Court received the evidence of the defendants, expressed an opinion on the merits but ultimately made an order of dismissal for default under r. 8 of O. IX of the Civil Procedure Code: Held, that the order was, as it could only have been made, under r. 8 of O. IX. The Court should not have received the defendant's evidence or examined the merits of the case. That a formal decree which was unnecessarily drawn up did not alter the nature of the order which was not a decree and was not open to appeal. PARBATI v. TOOLSHI KAPRI (1913) . . . . . 18 C. W. The petitioner as usufructuary mortgagee brought a suit for rent against the tenant under s. 148A of the Bengal Tenancy Act and joined the proprietors of the three-fourths share as also the mortgagor as parties defendants. The co-sharers did not enter appearance and the plaintiff obtained a decree for rent and applied for execution under sub-s. (1) of s. 158B of the Bengal Tenancy Act, whereupon the co-sharers appeared and objected that the execution could not proceed under s. 158B. The objection was overruled by the Court of first instance, but the lower Appellate Court directed the first Court to hold the sale not under sub-s. (2) of s. 158B of the Bengal Tenancy Act, but in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure: Held, that the term "landlord" means a person immediately under whom a tenant holds, and the term "tenant" is defined to mean a person who holds land under another person and is or, but for a special contract, would be liable to pay rent for that land to that person, and a usufructuary mortgagee is consequently a person immediately under whom a tenant holds and is in the position of a landlord and is entitled to sue for rent in his character as such. That the co-sharer landlords are the entire body of persons who are entitled to collect rent, and a usufructuary mortgagee from one of the proprietors is in the position of a co-sharer landlord within the meaning of s. 158B, sub-s. (1), cl. (e) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. That the plaintiff having sued for the recovery of what to his information was the whole arrear due, the suit was in essence a suit for rent due to all the co-sharers within the meaning of s. 148A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and the suit as framed was within the scope of that section, and the decree should be executed under

s. 158B, sub-s (1), cl (e) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. That r. 14 of O. XXXIV of the Civil Procedure Code had no application to the execution proceedings in the present case. N did not appeal against the decision of the High Court: Held, that N was not at any time a necessary party to the suit so far as the other defendants were concerned and they were not prejudiced by the fact that N was added as a defendant when the suit was in appeal and the omission to make an original defendant, did not make the suit bad for non-joinder as against the other defendants who were the appellants before the Privy Council. — ss. 92, 96—Erection of a new building—Application to Municipality for permission—Condition requiring the owner to keep certain space vacant for widening street—Condition not valid. The plaintiff applied to the Municipality for permission to rebuild her house. The Municipality granted the permission on the condition, among others, that she should, in rebuilding the house, keep a specified space vacant and unbuilt upon for the improvement of the street by widening it. The plaintiff disregarded the condition and built upon the specified space. Thereupon the Municipality having threatened the demolition of the house, the plaintiff brought the present suit for an injunction restraining the Municipality from doing so: Held, that under s 96 of the Bombay District Municipal Act (Bom. Act III of 1901) the Municipality was empowered to prescribe the location of the building in relation "to any street existing or projected as they think proper," whereas in the present case they had prescribed the location of the building in relation, not to the existing street, but to a street which might come into existence in the future. The object of the Municipality in imposing the condition was not for the purposes of sanitation or ventilation but to get a set-back which could not be obtained under s 92 of the Act. If the condition of the permit were complied with, the plaintiff would have to give up or keep vacant or unproductive a considerable portion of her land and the Municipality would have the opportunity of paying compensation for it at any time they might feel disposed to do so, which would be contrary to the provisions of s. 92 which contemplates that when a set-back is determined upon compensation should be paid to the owner and that the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction as prayed. Queen-Empress v Veerammal, I. On second appeal by the Municipality, held, that the Municipality was the creature of the statute with duties, inter alia, to preserve the passage along public streets. It mattered not for the Municipality whether the encroachment had been in existence for 12 years or more. Under s. 113 of the District Municipal Act (Bom. Section 122 of the Act empowered the Municipality to remove the encroachment which might have been put up after the place had become a Municipal District. BOMBAY MUNICIPAL ACT (BOM. III OF 1888)—concl'd.*s. 289—concl'd.

Bombay under s. 289 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act, without permission granted by the Municipal Corporation. The Municipal Corporation sued to obtain a declaration that the Railway Company could not lawfully maintain their lines of railway across the street in question without either obtaining permission granted by the Corporation and confirmed by the Government under s. 293 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act or acquiring the land required for the level-crossing under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. Held, that the statutory authority under s. 7 of the Indian Railways Act was established and that the application of s. 293 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act was excluded by the words "notwithstanding anything in any other enactment for the time being in force" in the first mentioned section. Held, further, that where a railway company wished to lay a line of railway upon and across a street it was neither necessary nor appropriate to proceed under the Land Acquisition Act for the acquisition of the land, because if the Government under s. 7 of the Act were to direct the Collector to take order for the acquisition of the land he would make his award and take possession and the land would then vest absolutely in Government for the railway company free from incumbrances and would then cease to be a portion of the street and the railway company would be unable to exercise the power given to it of constructing the railways upon and across the "street." Held, further, that the effect of section 289 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act vesting all public streets, pavements, stones and other materials in the Corporation and under the control of the Commissioner was only to vest in that body such property as was necessary for the control, protection and maintenance of the street as a highway for public use. *G. The Collector took action under the Act with regard to one set of defendants, but as to the other set decided that they were not members of an agricultural tribe. Held, that this finding left the Civil Court no option but to continue the proceedings before it independently of the provisions of the Bundelkhand Alienation of Land Act, 1903. GOVIND RAO v KAMTA PRASAD (1914)

Inheritance—Sisters in trade living apart from, and independent of, their father—Succession of elder sister to property of younger sisters in priority to father The appellant was the eldest, and the survivor, of three sisters, daughters of the respondent. They traded in coconuts in the Municipal market in Rangoon, and lived together apart from, and quite independently of, their father: Held (reversing the decision of the Chief Court of Lower Burma), that, by the Burmese Buddhist Law, and irrespective of any question of partnership between them, the appellant succeeded to the property of her sisters in preference to the respondent. The balance of the authority of the Dhammathats, pre-eminent among which is the Manu Kyay, is upon the side of the brothers and sisters of a deceased person being preferred to the parent. *MA NHIN BWIN v. The petitioner was placed on his trial under s 13B., cl. (c), of Beng. Act IV of 1866 for being, while on duty, in possession of annas four, contrary to an order of the Commissioner of Police. After the examination of one witness the petitioner pleaded guilty to having the money in his possession. He, however, stated before the Magistrate that at the time in question he was not on duty, but engaged in the private business of a police officer and also that he had been on duty the previous night. The Magistrate convicted the accused on this plea of guilty. The order, the contravention of which was the subject-matter of the prosecution, was not proved. Held, that a copy of the Government order or an extract therefrom or a reference thereto should have been placed on the record. That the petitioner's plea of guilty was to be looked upon merely as an admission of the fact that he had at the time in question the sum found upon his person. The High Court set aside the conviction and sentence and directed a retrial by a new Magistrate. GAYA RAY v. EMPEROR 1914 13 C. W. N. 1273

This may be the case both when a serious demand requiring very attentive consideration had been made on the plaintiffs and reasonable time has not been given to the latter to take advice on the subject and when the cantonment authorities have wholly disregarded the basis on which the rate should have been assessed, by assessing the rate upon the gross income of the plaintiffs. *Kasandas v Ankleshvar, I. 2. ———— Conversion—Misdelivery of goods—Notice of arrival—Delivery order—Unauthorised act—Reasonable conduct—Consignee, duty of, regarding delivery—Calcutta Port Act (Beng IX of 1890), s 91 The plaintiff, Noel Wilham Freeman, shipped goods from London to Calcutta under a bill of lading which provided that the goods were "to be delivered at the Port of Calcutta unto Mr N. W. Freeman or his assigns," and in which the consignee's name and address were stated as "N W Freeman, Calcutta." The consignee took no steps regarding delivery of the goods on arrival, and the defendant company after landing the goods handed them over, in the usual course, to the Port Commissioners. The defendant company thereafter posted a notice of arrival addressed to "N. W Freeman, Esq, Calcutta," which was delivered by the post office to one Nigel W Freeman. The latter through his agent gave a letter of indemnity to the defendant company, and the agent, without production of the bill of lading, obtained from the defendant company a delivery order on the Port Commissioners for the goods, and wrongfully took delivery of the same. When communicated with, Nigel W. Freeman returned most of the goods in a damaged and deteriorated condition to the plaintiff. A proceeding in the Court of a Settlement Officer of Chota Nagpur under s 85 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act for settlement of fair rent is not subject to the superintendence of the High Court under s 15 of the High Courts Act, as appeals from the orders of the Settlement Officer lie under statutory rules to the Commissioner, an officer not shown to be subordinate to the Appellate Jurisdiction of the High Court. *UMA CHARAN MONDOL v. The new Civil Procedure Code which directs an enquiry as to the mesne profits, before passing a final decree is not applicable to such a case The effect to be given to a document and to the proceedings of a Court must be decided by the law in force when the document was executed or the proceedings were passed Mutiah Chettiar v Ramaswami Chettiar (Second Appeal No. 117 of 1911), followed. Applicant's mother, as next friend of the applicant, obtained a decree in his favour for partition which was confirmed with certain modifications by the High Court on 3rd August 1897. The decree left the mesne profits subsequent to suit to be ascertained in execution The decree also declared as follows.—“The plaintiff do recover, when collected, his one-third share of such debts as have been or can be collected with due diligence out of the debts due to the family” Various applications for execution of the decree were made by the applicant's mother and she entered into a compromise on 21st January 1900 with the judgment-debtors regarding all the matters mentioned in the decree and others and the Court passed on 6th February 1903 a final decree in terms of the compromise Applicant became a major on 29th November 1909 and made the present execution application for partition and ascertainment of mesne profits and outstandings on 1st November 1910, repudiating the compromise on various grounds. Held, that the applications were barred by the 12 years' rule of limitation, contained in Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s 230 corresponding to Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 48. *RAMANA v. In satisfaction of the decretal debt and in consideration of a cash advance of Rs. 10-4-0, the defendant passed a mortgage-deed for Rs. 900 in favour of the plaintiff. The amount of Rs. 900 was repayable in nine annual instalments of Rs. 100 each. On failure to pay any one instalment interest was to be charged at the rate of 1½ per cent. per mensem; and the whole amount became payable on failure to pay any two instalments. None of the instalments having been paid, the plaintiff sued to recover Rs. 900 principal and Rs. 900 as interest. The lower Courts held that the mortgage-deed contravened the provisions of section 257A of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), but they passed a decree for Rs. 900 in plaintiff's favour, as the covenant to pay interest was quite distinct and severable from the covenant to pay principal. The defendant having appealed. Held, confirming the decree, that the primary and main agreement was to pay a sum of money which was not in excess of the decretal amount, and that it was only on failure to fulfil that agreement that interest was to be charged, that is, it was only something which came into operation when there was a breach of the agreement; and that the primary agreement was therefore not void under s. 257A of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882. *Bhagchand v. T's objection to the attachment having failed, A applied for the sale of the debt and having purchased it himself at the Court sale brought a suit against T, the garnishee, for the recovery of the debt. Garnishee having set up the same facts in defence as he had set up when he unsuccessfully objected to the attachment: Held, that the equity arising from the cross debt could be set up by the defendant without payment of Court-fee as on a counter claim, that if a cross debt were due to a garnishee, there should be a right of set-off in his favour. Held, however, that it was not open to the garnishee to plead a defence which had already, in an execution inquiry, been unsuccessful, except in a suit instituted within one year from the date of the adverse order, that the property attached could be regarded as property in the possession of the garnishee in trust for the judgment-debtor, and, therefore, could be attached. Held, further, that a garnishee's claims and objections should be decided as promptly as other objections to the attachment. *Chidambara Patter v. When no such ground can be made out, but the order is sought to be challenged on the ground that it was made without jurisdiction, the proper course for the aggrieved party is to move the High Court in revision. When an application for review has been granted, the Court is not restricted at the re-hearing to a consideration of that question alone which has been argued upon the rule for review and found to have been erroneously decided. Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879)—
Redemption suit—Direction to a Commissioner to take account—The direction not a preliminary decree.
In a redemption suit tried under the provisions of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879), the first Court, on the 15th August 1910, referred the taking of the account to a Commissioner and on the 30th August 1910 passed a decree for the plaintiffs for possession free from incumbrances, the defendants having received profits for 25 years after the debt had been paid off. One of the defendants having appealed on the 10th October 1910, the Appellate Court dismissed the appeal as time-barred on a preliminary objection taken by the plaintiff-respondents, namely, that the period of 30 days for the appeal ran from the date when the Court issued the commission to the Commissioner on the 15th August 1910 because the issue of commission constituted a preliminary decree within the definition of s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908). The defendant having appealed to the High Court. Held, reversing the decree of the Appellate Court and remanding the case for disposal on the merits, that there was nothing in the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) which prevented the Appellate Court from entertaining the appeal inasmuch as there was not a preliminary decree within the meaning of s. 97 of the Code, that in applying the definition of the decree contained in s. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), the right of the parties in respect to matters in controversy should be taken to mean the general rights in relation to status, in relation to jurisdiction, in relation to limitation, in relation to frame of the suit and in relation to liability to account which, if decided, must have a general effect upon the proceedings in the suit and could be decided preliminary to the investi-

 —“Might and ought”—Res judicata even as regards implied decisions, if necessary for the decree—Applicability to issues also. A, a landlord, tendered a patta to B, his tenant, who objected to the patta on the ground that the extent of his holding was overstated, some of the lands included in the patta not belonging to A but to B himself. The issue was raised whether the patta tendered was proper; the Court found that it did not contain any objectionable matter and was therefore a proper patta. Decree was accordingly given for rent in favour of A. A tendered a similar patta to B, for a subsequent year and B again raised a similar objection to the extent of the holding. In a suit brought by A for the rent, B objected to the extent of the holding and it was contended that the matter was res judicata by reason of the decision in the previous suit. Held, by the Full Bench, upholding the contention and agreeing with MUNRO, J. in Bayya Naidu v. Paradesi Naidu, I. L. R. 35 Mad. 216, (i) that the question of the extent of the defendant's holding was directly and substantially an issue in the previous suit and must be taken to have been heard and finally decided in plaintiff's favour, as such a decision is necessarily involved in the decree passed in plaintiff's favour, seeing that if the decision had been the other way, it would, under the Rent Recovery Act, have been fatal to his suit which must have been dismissed on the ground that the patta was not a proper one; (ii) that even if it was not expressly in question, it must be deemed to have been raised and decided within the meaning of explanation IV to s. 11 of the Civil Procedure Code, as it was ground of defence which might and ought to have been raised by the defendant; (iii) and that it is unnecessary in such a case of failure to raise the available ground of defence, that there should have been an express decision by the Court upon it in order to make it res judicata. Sri Gopal v. Pirithu Singh, I. L. R. 24 All. 429, and Mahomed Ibrahim Hosain Khan v. Ambika Pershad Singh, I L. R. 39 Calc. 527, followed. Per SUNDARA AYYAR, J.—The doctrine of res judicata applies to suit, as well as issues and the force of res judicata with regard to an implied decision is applicable also to what ought to have been made ground of attack or defence with respect to an issue. The test is not whether the decision was explicit, but whether the issue was one on which the judgment of the previous suit was based quite apart from the question whether the decree itself would be affected by the matter being reopened in the later suit. If the judgment was not based upon the issue then the decision of the issue whether express or implied cannot constitute the matter res judicata in the later suit. Per SADASIVA AYYAR, J.—In order to constitute a decision on an issue of fact res judicata it is not necessary that the cause of action and the subject-matter of the suits should be the same. Where the subject-matter of the former decision and the relief claimed therein were the same as those claimed in the subsequent litigation the Courts should try their best to hold that the causes of action are the same. A decree for rent between an ordinary landlord and tenant may not necessarily involve a decision as to the terms of the lease or as to the extent of the land comprised in the lease but a decision under the Rent Recovery Act is otherwise. *BAYYAN NAIDU v. In such a case no formal order of transfer of a particular case or of all pending cases is necessary. On principle, unless the authority which changes the venue reserves the right to the Court which has lost the jurisdiction to continue pending proceedings affecting the property so transferred to another jurisdiction, such proceedings are also ipso facto transferred by the change of venue to the new Court, the records relating to that action becoming part of the records of the new Court. Section 150, Civil Procedure Code, implies that the whole business of a Court might be transferred to another Court, without any order of transfer by a superior Court under s. 24, or any other section of Code, thereby adopting the Calcutta view, that by changes of venue made by the local Government, the business of a Court which loses jurisdiction over a certain area, so far as such area is concerned, will be ipso facto transferred to the new Court. On 13th December 1907, the decree-holder again applied to the Court at Vizagapatam for sale of the attached properties, and the application was simply recorded. The present application for execution was made to the Vizagapatam Court on 21st April 1910, for attachment and sale of certain properties. Held, that the application was barred as the application of the 13th December 1907, though a step in aid of execution [see Pachappa Achari v. Poojahi Seenan, I. L. R. 28 Mad. 577], was not made to the proper Court, and hence could not serve limitation. N were substituted as the heirs of Y who had died in the meantime, and the appeal was ultimately dismissed as against G and decreed on a compromise as between the appellant and N, "allowing the appellant to recover the money due to him by sale of 4 annas share of the properties." On an application for execution of this decree of the High Court without making G a party to the execution, G appeared and objected that he was the sole mutwalli of the property which was wakf and could not be sold in execution of the decree. The lower Appellate Court refused execution, holding that a suit for declaration could not legally terminate in a mortgage-decree and that the decree which could be executed was the original mortgage-decree, but not the compromise decree. Held, that as G was a party to the suit in his personal capacity as also as mutwalli his objection came within s. 47 of the Civil Procedure Code and an appeal lay from the order refusing to execute the decree. Kartik Chandra Ghose v. Ashutosh Dhara, I. L. R. 39 Calc. 298; 16 C. W. N. 26, distinguished. That the ground upon which the application for execution was refused was erroneous, the decree of the High Court in the present case was, however, incapable of execution inasmuch as the decree in so far as it dismissed the appeal as against G as a part representative of the former mutwalli was a final decision, that the property was wakf and inalienable, and a direction in the same decree that a portion of the property could be sold was irreconcilable with the rest of the decision and made it impossible to carry the whole decree into effect. *KALI PRASANNO GHOSH v. The accounts were next taken by a commissioner and a decree was passed in accordance with his report, dismissing the suit. The plaintiff appealed against the final decree and urged objections against finding on preliminary issues. Held, that the plaintiff was not barred of his right to urge objections against the findings on preliminary issues, for under the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 97, his right to appeal arose only when there was a decree based on those findings. Art. 41, Sch. II—Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 69, 70 The plaintiffs purchased the interest of one of the defendants in a tenancy held by them all. Some out of the entire body of landlords who claimed a half share in the superior tenancy obtained a decree for rent and in execution thereof were about to bring the property to sale when the plaintiffs deposited in Court the necessary amount in satisfaction of the decree. The plaintiffs brought an action for declaration that the defendants were liable to pay the judgment-debt and they themselves had paid the money under circumstances which entitled them in equity to recover the same from the defendants. The suit was described as one for contribution. The lower Courts dismissed the plaintiffs' claim on the ground that as the decree had been obtained by co-sharer landlords, the interest of the plaintiffs in the tenancy was not in jeopardy and the payment made by them must consequently be deemed voluntary. The plaintiffs appealed to the High Court. Held, that contribution signifies payment by each of the parties interested of his share in any common liability. Consequently an action for contribution is a suit brought by one of such parties who has discharged the liability common to them all to compel the others to make good their shares. That the suit as framed could not be deemed a suit for contribution: it was really a suit by the plaintiffs for recovery of money paid by them for the benefit of the defendants. That Art. 41 of the Second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act does not cover the present case. The suit was clearly one of a nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes and as the sum claimed was less than Rs. 500, the appeal was incompetent under s. 102, Civil Procedure Code, and must be dismissed. That the view taken by the lower Courts that the payment made by the plaintiffs was voluntary, as the decree for rent was obtained by co-sharer landlords who could not have executed it so as to prejudice the interest of the plaintiffs, was erroneous. The question of the precise effect of a sale in these circumstances would at any rate be a matter for controversy and the party liable to be affected would consequently be entitled to satisfy the decree to protect himself from the apprehended injury to his right; he would also be entitled if he made the payment to be reimbursed under s. 69 or s. 70 of the Indian Contract Act. Held, however, as to the application of the plaintiffs for the memorandum of appeal being treated as an application for revision, that the error committed by the lower Court being one of law and not affecting the jurisdiction of the Court, the High Court could not interfere in the exercise of its revisional powers. *SATYA BHUSAN BANERJEE v. That the defect in the decree could be amended under either s. 151 or s. 152 of the Civil Procedure Code, and an application for review of judgment was not the only remedy of the other defendants. Brij Ratan v. the landlord should be entitled to take possession of the lands. The tenants having failed to pay the rent of two years, the landlord sued them and obtained a decree which directed that on the defendants' default to pay all the arrears of rent and costs within three months, the plaintiff should take possession of the lands. In the said suit the plaintiff had asked for permission to bring a separate suit for the rent in arrears for two years, but none was given. Subsequently the plaintiff having brought a suit for the said rent of two years. Held, that the suit was barred under Order II, rule 2, of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) as the claim in the suit for rent up to the date of forfeiture arose upon the same contract as did the landlord's right of forfeiture for non-payment of rent; that no necessity or reason existed for a separate suit for rent where there had been a forfeiture on non-payment and that the claim for possession and the claim for rent ought to be enforced in one suit, provided the cause of action was the same, unless the Court should give leave for the reservation of one of the remedies. KASHI-NATH RAMCHANDRA v. in all to Rs. 28,224 odd and prescribed the mode in which it was to be paid, namely, by a cash payment of Rs. 224 odd (which was immediately paid) and by passing two promissory notes for Rs. 14,000 each "payable with interest" on two dates. The amount of interest was (probably by oversight) not specified, but there was no doubt that the parties intended that it would be at a certain customary rate which worked out to between 6 and 7 per cent per annum. A, however, subsequently, and without communication with B, went to one of the arbitrators and (without bad faith either on his part or the arbitrator's) persuaded him to alter both promissory notes by inserting therein 9 per cent as the rate of interest. A's action on the two promissory notes having been dismissed on the ground of material alteration, he sued B for two items of moneys amounting to Rs. 12,297 odd which he had claimed before the arbitrators and which were included in their award. Held, that the "receipt" constituted the award of the arbitrators. That whether it did or did not amount to an award it was clearly an "accord and satisfaction by a substituted agreement" whereby the respective rights of the parties inter se were abandoned in consideration of the acceptance by all of a new agreement. That the arrangement for the discharge of the unpaid balance of the amount found due by means of the promissory notes only expressed the mode of payment, which was essentially a matter of form only, the substance of the award being that the specified amount was actually due; the plaintiff could, therefore, sue for the balance due upon the agreement when his action on the promissory notes failed. That the form of the plaintiff's action which was based on rights already extinguished by the agreement was faulty. But the present action should be treated as one based on the new agreement, the defendant not having taken exception to plaintiff's statement of the grounds of his claim, so as to give him an opportunity to amend them at an earlier stage. That a claim on the promissory notes and a claim for the amount found due under the award were not the same cause of action, but were really inconsistent and mutually exclusive causes of action, and the plaintiff was not required in his suit on the promissory notes to ask for relief on the cause of action arising out of the agreement, by s. 34 of the Ceylon Civil Procedure Act. That the plaintiff's suit which was for a part only of the unpaid balance should be decreed. But he would be precluded by s. 34 of the Ceylon Civil Procedure Act from bringing a fresh action for the remainder. The object and meaning of s. 34 of the Ceylon Civil Procedure Act (which is very similar to O. II, r. 2. of the Indian Code) explained. This section is directed to securing the exhaustion of the relief in respect of a cause of action and not to the inclusion in one and the same action different causes of action, even though they arise from the same transactions. The first part of the clause makes it incumbent on the plaintiff to include the whole of his claim in the action. The second portion makes it incumbent on him to ask for the whole of his remedies. The final paragraph (Explanation in the Indian Code) is not intended to be an illustration of the foregoing provisions, but a substantive enactment making what otherwise would be independent causes of action, one cause of action for the purposes of the section. SAMINATHAN CHETTY v PALANIAPPA CHETTY (1913)

Procedure—Suit by mortgagee for simple money decree—Subsequent suit for sale on mortgage not barred—Res judicata—Limitation—Acknowledgment. Certain mortgagees sued for a simple money decree in respect of their mortgage debt, stating that they had relinquished their claim under their mortgage, and obtained a decree as prayed. The decree in this suit stated that "the plaintiff would not be entitled to bring to sale the property mortgaged in the bond sued on." As, however, this decree was not satisfied, the plaintiffs-mortgagees proceeded to put their mortgage into Court and prayed for a decree for sale on it. Held, that the former proceedings were no bar to the present suit. *INDARPAL SINGH v. II, r. 5—*Misjoinder of causes of action—Hindu family, position of surviving members of joint and undivided, not heirs of deceased member—Joinder of claim by widow of deceased member of joint and undivided Hindu family for maintenance against the property in which the deceased member was a co-parcener at the date of his death with claims against the surviving co-parceners for her stridhan ornaments. Members of a joint and undivided Hindu family hold the family estate jointly and are seized of it "per my et per tout." On the death of a co-parcener of a joint Hindu family his share and interest in the family property is automatically absorbed and the surviving co-parceners become the full owners of the whole estate. Such co-parceners are not the heirs of the deceased but inherit by survivorship and become the owners of the interest of the deceased in the family estate as co-owners in their own right and by the legal extinction of the interest of the deceased co-parcener by reason of his death. The claim of the widow of such a deceased co-parcener for maintenance is clearly not against "the estate of the deceased" husband, but is against the property of which he was a co-parcener at the time of his death. Accordingly there is no misjoinder of causes of action if the widow in one suit sues the co-parceners of her deceased husband to recover her stridhan property improperly or illegally detained by them and also to enforce her right of maintenance out of the estate of the joint family

The plaintiff having died, the name of his son was substituted in place of his name on the 13th April 1912. On the same day, the Court issued summons for the first time to the defendants, for final disposal. On the day fixed for hearing, the Court raised issues, and as neither party had witnesses ready, the Court found the claim not proved in absence of evidence. The plaintiff having appealed: Held, reversing the decree, that there was a miscarriage of justice in the way the case had been disposed of. The scheme of the Civil Procedure Code required, in cases like the present, that the parties should have the opportunity to produce evidence relevant to issues framed after ascertaining matters as to which the parties were in dispute. Held, further, that the summons to the defendants should have been for settlement of issues and not for final disposal. TULJARAM HARICHAND v. XVII, as the other condition, viz., that the adjournment must have been at the instance of a party, was not fulfilled. That the case fell under r. 2 of O. order under O. IX, r. 13, should have been entertained. The provisions of O. IX by themselves do not apply to a case in which the defendant has already appeared in answer to the summons but has failed to appear at an adjourned hearing of the suit. On such a case O. XVII applies, r. 2 applying to a hearing adjourned by the Court, r. 3 to a hearing adjourned at the instance of a party, in which last case, if the party fails to appear on the adjourned date and there are sufficient materials on the record to enable the Court to proceed to judgment the Court may dispose of the case under that rule. Even in such a case if there are not sufficient materials on the record the proper procedure to follow would be that laid down in r. 2. Mariannissa v. Ramkalpa, I. L. R. 34 Cal. 235, referred to. The test of a defendant's appearance in obedience to a summons for the purpose of r. 6, O. IX, is, as indicated in the form of the summons in App. B to Sch. I of the Code, whether the defendant has appeared in person or by pleader duly instructed and able to answer all material questions relating to the suit or who is accompanied by some person able to answer all such questions. In the present case, as the pleaders being furnished with due instruction could not be doubted, there was no non-appearance within r. 6. O. IX. REAJUJIN BASUNIA v. JIBAN MOHAN RAY (1914) 18 C. XXI, r. 46, Civil Procedure Code, and the procedure as to moveable property is applicable, the language of rule 46, which treats as moveable property a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument, is undoubtedly wide enough to cover a debt secured by a hypothecation bond or a simple mortgage. O. XXI, r. 54, is not applicable to such cases though the General Clauses Act and Transfer of Property Act speak of such debt as an interest in immoveable property. The security must follow the debt and if the debt is once attached, the benefit of the security would accrue to the attaching creditor if his remedy against the property still exists. *Tarvadi Bholanath v. The petitioner, who also held a decree for money against the same judgment-debtors, had applied on the 13th March 1912 for execution of his decree; but his application was dismissed for non-prosecution on the 13th May 1912, and on the 20th May 1912 the petitioner applied to the Court to have the sale set aside under r. 90, O. XXI, Civil Procedure Code, on the ground of fraud and material irregularity. The lower Court rejected this application holding that he was not entitled to make it. Held, that the dismissal of the petitioner's application for execution of his decree on the 13th May for non-prosecution did not affect the right of the petitioner to a share in a rateable distribution of the assets, and on the date on which the application to set aside the sale was made under r. 90, it was made by a person entitled to a share in the rateable distribution of the assets and consequently should have been entertained by the Court *BYOMKESH CHACKRABARTY v. ants entered into an agreement to submit the matter in difference between them to arbitration without the leave of the Court. Thereupon, the defendant having applied to the Court to stay the further progress of the suit, the Court rejected the application on the ground, inter alia, that the reference did not amount to an adjustment of the matter in suit within the meaning of O. XXIII, r. 3, of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908). On appeal by the defendant the District Judge confirmed the order. The defendant having applied under the extraordinary jurisdiction: Held, confirming the order, that where the Court was seized of a cause, its jurisdiction could not be ousted by the private and secret act of parties, and if they, after having invoked the authority of the Court and placed themselves under its superintendence, desired to alter the tribunal and substitute a private arbitrator for the Court, they must proceed according to the law laid down in the first sixteen clauses of the Second Schedule of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908). Held, further, that parties litigating in Court had perfect liberty to compose their differences amongst themselves into any lawful agreement, compromise or satisfaction, and that when this was done, they had only to apply to the Court under O. XXIII, r. 3, of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), but that a mere agreement to refer to arbitration, even though in other respects valid, could not be such an adjustment in whole or in part of the suit as the Court could give effect to under O. O. XXV—Addition of parties at late stage of case—Order for security for defendant's costs—Poverty of plaintiff if alone can justify such order. The plaintiff before bringing the suit made an agreement with one S by which the latter undertook to advance any amount that might be necessary to prosecute the suit up to the Privy Council. The amount so advanced was to be realised from any property recovered by a final decision or on compromise and the plaintiff and S agreed to divide equally the balance of what was recovered. S was to be able to compromise the suit and if the suit was unsuccessful the plaintiff was not to be liable to S for costs. The plaintiff brought the suit on the 31st July 1911. It came on for hearing on the 1st April 1913. The plaintiff closed his case on 22nd April and just before that the defendant applied to the Court to have S made a plaintiff and to have S and the plaintiff ordered to give security for the payment of the defendant's costs. The Court refused to make S a plaintiff, but ordered the plaintiff to give security for the costs of the suit up to Rs 5,000. The High Court issued a rule to show cause why S should not be made a defendant and why the order about costs should not be set aside. Held, that S should not be made a party defendant partly because the original application to make S a party plaintiff was made at too late a stage of the case and partly because it did not appear that S had any actual present interest in the property. That the order about costs was not made and could not be supported under O. XXV, but the Court has inherent power to make it. The question, however, which should determine the granting of such an order was whether the plaintiff had got a substantial interest in the suit or was he suing for another as a mere puppet. Such an order could not be made merely because the plaintiff was a poor man, and the lower Court having made the order only on that ground it was without jurisdiction. Held, further, that it could not be said that S's interference was illegal in the sense that it was against public policy as described by the Privy Council in Chedambara Chetty v Runga Krishna, L. R. 1 I A 241, 264 : s. c. 22 W. R. 149, 152. HARI NATH SINGH v. RAM KUMAR BAGCHI (1913) . . . 18 C. W. N. 119 ant in an action brought to recover certain sums claimed by the plaintiff under a mortgage and two deeds of further charge consented to the suit being referred to arbitration on a condition, which was embodied in the consent order referring the case to arbitration, to the following effect — "And it is further ordered that the said arbitrators do proceed on the basis of there having been no adjustments, and the adjustments relied upon by the plaintiff in this suit shall not be taken into consideration." The arbitration proceedings were carried on before arbitrators appointed for the purpose and afterwards before an umpire and in the course of the proceedings the umpire in spite of the defendant's protests admitted one of the adjustments in evidence as proof of an admission by the defendant that a certain item of Rs 1,300 included in the adjustment was due from him to the plaintiff. Previously the other of the two adjustments had been used by the plaintiff without protest from the defendant to prove one item therein. The defendant protested and asked the umpire to submit a special case for the consideration of the Court under clause 11 of the Civil Procedure Code. The umpire doubted whether that clause would apply, but postponed further consideration of the item in question to enable the defendant to move the Court, if so advised, for leave for the umpire to state a special case. The defendant, thereupon, purported to put an end to the umpire's authority and refused to go on with the reference, which nevertheless was proceeded with before the umpire ex parte and an award made. Held, that the passage in the consent order quoted above was reasonably susceptible of two constructions, that it was either a particular and specific, following upon a general, exclusion of all adjustments qua adjustments; or, as contended by the defendant, a stipulation that certain documents containing the adjustments should not be admitted in evidence for any purpose; and that it was possible to admit a document as evidence in support of a particular item and at the same time exclude it as evidence of a general settlement. Held, further, that if the defendant's contentions were correct, the stipulation relied on was a rule of evidence introduced pro hac vice, and that the honest though mistaken admission by the umpire of a document in violation of that rule would not be a ground for setting aside the award, and that the defendant's conduct in rejecting the umpire's offer to adjourn consideration of the item under discussion in order to give the defendant an opportunity to obtain the Court's leave for a statement of the case and in deciding to withdraw from the reference without the leave of the Court was incorrect. *AISHA-BAI v. — Suit by, for joint possession of land and injunction—Injury or likelihood thereof not alleged in plaint—Hostile title not set up by defence—Decree for joint possession if should be given—Ouster, meaning of—Common law action for ejectment and equity suit for injunction, distinction between, if should be introduced in this country—Principle of equity, justice and good conscience. The plaintiffs and the defendant were co-sharers in a mehal. Each co-sharer was in sole occupation of some lands appertaining to the mehal as khamar lands and the defendant was in such possession of some lands. On the defendant commencing some building on portions of the land the plaintiffs brought a suit for recovery of joint possession of the land in dispute on declaration of their proprietary right to their share in it, for demolition of the building raised, for an injunction restraining the defendant from building on the land. The defendant did not claim any exclusive title to the land and the plaintiffs did not allege that they had sustained, or were likely to sustain, any substantial injury by reason of the sole occupation of the land or building thereon by the defendant. Held, that the mere fact of sole occupation by one co-sharer does not necessarily constitute an ouster of other co-sharers nor does it entitle the latter to a decree for joint possession. Ouster means 'dispossession of one co-sharer by another where a hostile title is set up by the latter and when the occupation of the latter is not consistent with joint ownership. Held, that there being no assertion of hostile title in the present case, there was no ouster of the plaintiffs by the defendant. That the distinction between a common law action for ejectment and an equity suit for an injunction should not be introduced in this country and questions of joint possession and injunction should be decided on the principles of justice, equity and good conscience. That in the present case the mere fact that the land in suit adjoined the dwelling house of the plaintiffs irrespective of any injury would not be a sufficient ground, consistent with the principles of justice, equity and good conscience, to give joint possession or order the demolition of the buildings already erected, or restrain the defendant from building on it. BASANTA KUMARI DASSYA v. ss. 76, 77—Articles of association—Agent—Borrowing powers—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 237—Estoppel. The agents of a joint stock company—a joint Hindu family firm—borrowed a considerable sum of money on hundis executed by the managing member of the firm in the name of the company. These hundis were signed with the name of the managing member simply, having nothing on the face of them to indicate that the person who signed them was signing as an agent and not in his personal capacity. The company had no valid articles of association, and neither the memorandum of association nor table A of the Indian Companies Act, 1882, empowered the agents to borrow money. There were, however, what purported to be articles of association, which though legally invalid (they had never been registered), were treated by the company and submitted to the public as being the genuine and legally adopted articles of association of the company. These articles did give the agents of the company power to borrow. Held, that the signature of the managing member of the agent-firm was sufficient, and that, although the articles of association were not valid, yet the company was in the circumstances estopped from raising the plea of their invalidity against holders in due course of these hundis. KUNJ KISHORE v THE OFFICIAL LIQUIDATOR, SHRI BALDEO MILLS, LD. (1914)

The letter contained a provision that the company would be entitled to retain and cancel those shares in the event of R, who was to serve as the company's manager, by reason of death, resignation, etc., failing to complete 4 years' service. The company in their minutes recorded resolutions which did not embody this condition and in express terms spoke of the transaction as a sale of the patent for Rs. 30,000. Held, that the only contract between R and the company was that contained in the minute and that if this minute incorporated the terms of the letter, it did so in so far only as the letter was not inconsistent with the express terms of the minute. That on R's death within 4 years, R's widow was entitled to have fully paid-up shares to the amount of Rs. 20,000 allotted to her. PERFECT POTTERY COMPANY v. IDA L. ROSE (1914)

Registration of the transfer was refused by a person describing himself as the chief manager of the company, who, however, did not appear to have any authority under the articles of association to refuse to register a transfer of shares. Held, on suit by A on the bond, that it was not competent to B to plead as a defence that the transfer of the shares purchased by him had not been registered, as there had in fact been no refusal to register by the company. *BAHADUR SINGH v. known, and were acquitted by jury. Held, that the acquittal on the conspiracy charges did not conclude the liability of the petitioner for conviction of the same offence, as there were two others named and others unknown who were also alleged to have been members of the conspiracy. Held, also, that the acquittal did not affect the question of the petitioner's criminality, as the jury had not, and could not have, formed or expressed an opinion as regards him, as he was not then on trial, and that there was besides, distinct evidence alleged against him in the case. Technicalities of the English law based on the sacred character of jury-verdicts cannot be imported so as to give such a character to verdicts in India where by the express provisions of the law it does not attach to them Ramesh Chandra Banerjee v. Emperor, I. L. R. 41 Calc. 550, per BEACROFT, J., approved. The evidence of the same witness as to the identification of one person may be quite different to that as regards the identification of others. Where the Judge clearly stated that the identification of the two persons under trial was weak, and on that ground he accepted the verdict of acquittal, it would be unwarrantable for the High Court to stay the ordinary course of justice in the case of the petitioner. Where, after the acquittal of the two persons on trial, the warrant against the petitioner was withdrawn, but proceedings were re-instituted against him by the officer in charge of the police-station within whose jurisdiction the offence was committed, under the direction of the District Superintendent of Police who could not appear himself but had been instructed by the District Magistrate on the advice of the law officers of the Crown that the case could go on against the petitioner on the evidence. Held, that the District Magistrate was competent to take cognizance of the case if on taking legal advice he thought that the evidence brought the accused within the purview of the law. MANINDRA CHANDRA GHOSE v. EMPEROR

—21 Geo. III, c. 70, §21—Reg. IX of 1793—Reg. II of 1801, s. 2—Reg. XXX of 1841—16 Charles I, c. 10—53 Geo. III, c. 155—Reg VIII of 1816—Reg XIII of 1829. The Calcutta High Court has no jurisdiction to commit, on a summary proceeding, for contempt of a mofussil criminal Court. It has not any such powers from the jurisdiction it has inherited from the three abolished Courts,—the Supreme Court, the Sudder Dewani Adawlut and the Sudder Nizamut Adawlut;—nor have such powers been vested in it by any Statute, Letters Patent or local Acts; nor has it any such Common Law powers. Rex v. Davies, [1906] 1 K. B. 32, Queen v. Lefroy, L. R. 8 Q. B. 134, Queen v. Judge of the Brompton County Court and Vague, [1893] 2 Q. B. 195, and In re Venkat Rao, 21 Mad. L. J. 832, referred to. Surendra Nath Banerjee v. Chief Justice and Judges of the High Court, 1. L. R. 10 Calc. 109, L. R. 10 I. A. 171, distinguished. An offence in the nature of a contempt of an inferior Court within the limits of the Calcutta High Court's Original Jurisdiction as being a misdemeanour under the Common Law, can be punished by that High Court on a summary proceeding. The Calcutta High Court has also the power on its Crown side to punish, on a summary proceeding, an interference with the due administration of justice by a Division Bench in relation to a criminal appeal pending before it, where such interference amounts to an offence under the Common Law. It has such power to punish even before the appeal is filed in this Court. The constitution, jurisdiction, power and authority of the Supreme Court, the Sudder Dewani Adawlut, the Sudder Nizamut Adawlut and the King's Bench reviewed. Nature of "Courts of Record" analysed. A contempt of the inferior Court need not necessarily be a contempt of the High Court. But facts showing that witnesses before an inferior Court had been attacked, deterred and frightened or in some manner dissuaded, hindered or prevented from giving evidence may amount to contempt of the High Court; while an attack upon the Magistrate, any endeavour to corrupt him or any direct obstruction of his proceedings would not, speaking generally, be a contempt of the High Court. Skipworth's Case, L. R. 9 Q. B. 230, followed. To justify recourse to the arbitrary, unlimited and uncontrolled power to take summary proceedings in cases of criminal contempt of Court, it is not enough that there should be a technical contempt of Court. It must be shown that it was probable that the publication would substantially interfere with the due administration of justice. O'Shea v. O'Shea and Parnell, [1896] 15 P. D. 59, referred to. Where, notwithstanding the prima facie tendency of the language, there is no real prejudice created to the administration of justice or no real case made for the interference of the Court, the Court should not take summary proceedings in contempt. No person can be punished for criminal contempt unless the offence be proved by legal evidence. In re Pollard, 5 Moo. N. S. 110; 16 E. R. 457, followed. A state-

CONTEMPT OF COURT—con'd

ment resting on information and belief is not legal evidence in a case of criminal contempt of Court. A man in a criminal proceeding need not deny that which is not legally proved against him. The Queen v. Strange, L. R. 6 Q. B. 312, followed. Even in a civil proceeding a statement of information and belief is not admissible except on an interlocutory application, and in that case, the grounds of such belief must be stated. A Court can take an admission into consideration though contained in the affidavit in answer to the motion. 'Positive evidence' means evidence "which goes expressly to the very point in question, and that which, if believed, proves the point without aid from inference or reasoning as the testimony of an eye-witness to an occurrence, as distinguished from indirect or circumstantial evidence." The Penal Code contains no specific repeal of the penal laws then in force. This was intentional as it was considered possible that some offences might have been omitted which it would not be intended to exempt from penal consequences. Supplementary affidavits or evidence to make up defects of original motion should not be allowed and are against the rules of the Calcutta High Court. There may be difficulty as to an application for taking proceedings for contempt of Court by the officer described as "The Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs and ex officio Public Prosecutor, Bengal." The officer described as the Legal Remembrancer is not authorised to represent the Government on the Original Side of the Court. The usual rule, when a motion for contempt is dismissed, is that the respondents' costs should be paid. Per MOOKERJEE, J. Whatever share the Criminal Investigation Department may have in the investigation of a case, they cannot be deemed in law to be the prosecutors in a criminal case. It is a matter of vital importance for the party against whom an order for contempt of Court is sought, to know the person or persons at whose instance the application is made, if the application is refused he is entitled to know who is responsible for his costs. If, on the other hand, the application is successful, he is entitled to know who the respondent is in a possible appeal by him. LEGAL REMEMBRANCER v. MATILAL GHOSE AND OTHERS (1913). I. L. 2. — — — — — Receiver appointed by the Court, interference with, while discharging his duty—Interference by one not a party to the suit if contempt—Strangers to the suit, duty of, when affected by order appointing Receiver—Practice in contempt matter—Affidavit. The right of a stranger in possession to continue in possession is not affected by the order appointing a Receiver, but the fact of his possession does not give him the privilege to interfere with the Receiver directed to take possession of the property. His proper course is to apply to the Court for the redress of his grievance. If he interferes with the Receiver he does so at his peril. The Court will not permit a Receiver appointed by its authority to be interfered with or dispossessed of the property he is directed to receive

The plaintiffs (appellants) advanced money to the first defendant under an agreement by which the money was to be employed in purchasing paddy to be stored in the plaintiffs' godown at Dounngyi, and thence to be taken to Rangoon for sale. The agent of the first defendant at Dounngyi induced the plaintiffs' agent to allow the paddy to be shipped to Rangoon in boats belonging to the second defendant Company in the name of the first defendant as shipper. Eleven boat-loads in all were sent in respect of eight of which the first defendant paid the money to the plaintiffs' nominees at Rangoon. In respect of the cargoes of the last three boats the agent of the first defendant endorsed and delivered to the plaintiffs what purported to be mate's receipts for the cargoes loaded. The first defendant sold the cargoes, obtained delivery of the paddy from the defendant Company without producing the mate's receipts which the Company's agents had given for the paddy and delivered the paddy to the purchasers, paying nothing to the plaintiffs. In a suit against the first defendant for the amount due for advances, and against the defendant Company for damages for that amount on the ground that the Company's agents had delivered the paddy to the first defendant without production by him of the mate's receipts, and that their doing so was in breach of a representation which the Company made to the public by a printed Rate Circular or Notice, and by the usual course of business, that delivery of cargo carried by the Company's boats would only be made to persons holding mate's receipts for the cargo. Held (affirming the decision of the Chief Court of Lower Burma), that the receipt was not bill of lading, nor a mate's receipt, and not a negotiable instrument, nor was it a document falling within s 137 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), and therefore not a negotiable document in the sense of that section. It was merely a simple ordinary receipt for goods, and not a document of title upon the transfer of which the goods passed. Held, also, that the clause in the defendant Company's circular that "mate's receipts must be given up before discharge is allowed to commence, or in the event of the mate's receipt not having come to hand, the Company's usual guarantee must be signed," merely set forth a mode in which, in conducting their own business, the Company would protect themselves in the course of their trade, but did not constitute an obligation upon which the plaintiffs were entitled to found any liability on the part of the Company if the clause was not strictly complied with. There was therefore no document constituting a contract, and no course of business from which a contract could be inferred between the plaintiffs and the defendant Company. Nor was there any failure of duty on the part of the Company in delivering the goods without production of the mate's receipt by reason of the knowledge that the plaintiffs had rights against the shipper, because the evidence in the case showed that these rights had been the subject of negotiation and settlement, which resulted in the plaintiffs consenting to the goods being forwarded in the name of the first defendant, to whom they were therefore rightly delivered. *NATCHEAPPA CHETTY v. illegal, and the promissory-note was consequently unenforceable. The fact that the complainant may have a right to claim damages for the injury caused to the deceased would make no difference, unless such right had been set up and proved. The High Court as a Court of Revision has no power to consider justice apart from such justice as the law recognises. Sheikh Nubbee Buksh v. Bebee Hingon, 8 W. K. 412, referred to. *MOTTAI v. 3. ————— Minor—Minor's rights over property purchased for his benefit by maternal uncle—Sale of such property by father, invalid. Where certain immovable property was purchased for the benefit of a minor by his maternal uncle, and was subsequently sold by the minor's father, as if it belonged to the joint family of which himself and the minor were members. Held, in a suit by the minor after attaining majority to recover the property from the alienee, that the sale for the benefit of the minor was valid, and he was entitled to recover. *Kulla Pandithan v. ss. 4, 61 and 103—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s 137—Stoppage in transit Instruments of title—Railway receipts, effect of assignment of. A, from Bagalkote, consigned to B at Bombay certain consignments of bales of cotton. These consignments A entrusted to the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway at Bagalkote for conveyance to Bombay, which was effected by rail as far as Murmagoa on the lines of that Company and afterwards from Murmagoa to Bombay by sea by ships of the Bombay Steam Navigation Company. The Railway Company issued in respect of these consignments receipts to A which A handed over to B as the consignee of the goods in exchange for hundies for the amount of the value of the goods drawn by B in favour of A. These railway receipts contained, inter alia, the following condition—"That the railway receipt given by the Railway Company for the articles delivered for conveyance must be delivered up at destination by the consignee to the Railway Company or the Railway may refuse to deliver and that the signature of the consignee or his agent in the delivery book at destination shall be evidence of complete delivery. If the consignee does not himself attend to take delivery he must endorse on the receipt a request for delivery to the person to whom he wishes it made and if the receipt is not produced the delivery of the goods may at the discretion of the Railway Company be withheld until the person entitled in its opinion to receive them has given an indemnity to the satisfaction of the Railway Company." While the goods were in transit and in the possession of the Bombay Steam Navigation Company, B became insolvent and some of the hundies given by him to A in respect of the goods in transit were dishonoured. A thereon purported to stop the goods and gave the Steamship Company instructions not to deliver them to B but to C. In the meantime B had borrowed monies from D and E and had transferred to D and E respectively the railway receipts for certain of these consignments as security. On the arrival of the bales at Bombay, they were claimed by D and E respectively and also by C. The Bombay Steam Navigation Company filed two suits, one against A, B and D and the other against A and E, claiming that the defendants in each suit might be restrained from taking proceedings against the plaintiff Company in relation to the bales, and that the defendants in each suit might be required to interplead together concerning their claim to the goods in question in such suit. Held, that reading section 103 of the Contract Act in conjunction with section 137 of the Transfer of Property Act (as provided for by section 4 of the Transfer of Property Act) railway receipts must be taken to be mercantile documents of title fulfilling one or other of the conditions specified in the explanation to section 137 of the Transfer of Property Act, viz., proving in the ordinary course of business the possession or control of goods, or authorising or purporting to authorise either by endorsement or delivery the possessor of the document to transfer or receive the goods thereby represented, and that under the third condition of the railway receipts in question it was clear that those documents fell under the latter class. Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company v. Hannandus Ramkison and Virji Hansraj, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 57, not followed. Simultaneously with these suits D had filed a suit against A and B to recover the monies advanced by him against the railway receipts transferred to him. Subsequently the entries in the general account of B in D's books showed that various sums were credited to B which, if the rule laid down in section 61 of the Contract Act were applied, would extinguish that debt. Held, that the intention of D as indicated by his suit to enforce his claim against the proceeds of the bales of cotton covered by the railway receipts in question negatived the application of the rule. Held, accordingly, that D and E were respectively entitled to the benefit of section 103 of the Contract Act as against A and,

s. 28—Limitation Act (IX of 1938), s. 3—Insurance—Agreement in restraint of legal proceedings—Modification of the law of limitation by agreement of the parties—Rights and remedies, distinction between—Conditional release or forfeiture not invalid. The S Insurance Co granted a policy of insurance against fire to the B. Co. on certain property of the latter, the policy containing a clause to the effect that if a claim were made and rejected and an action or suit were not commenced within three months after such rejection, all benefit under the policy should be forfeited. Damage was caused to the property of the B. Co. thus insured and a claim was made by that company of the S. Insurance Co. which was rejected by the latter. More than three months after such rejection the B. Co. filed a suit against the S. Insurance Co. to recover the amount of their claim. Held, that there is a distinction between the extinction of a right and the loss of a remedy, that section 28 of the Contract Act was aimed only at covenants not to sue at any time and at covenants not to sue for a limited time, that a conditional release or forfeiture was a very different thing from a covenant not to sue, although to avoid circuity of action a covenant not to sue had sometimes been held equivalent in effect to a conditional release, and that the condition of forfeiture in the policy in question in the suit was not within the scope of section 28 of the Contract Act. The correctness of the decision in Hirabhai v. Manufacturers Life Insurance Co, 14 Bom. L. R. 741, doubted. Per BACHELOR, J. As I understand the matter, what the plaintiff was forbidden to do was to limit the time within which he was to enforce his rights, what he has done is to limit the time within which he is to have any rights to enforce, and that appears to me to be a very different thing. *BARODA SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY, LTD. v. The defendants, however, did not pay the price agreed upon and the plaintiffs resold the pit at a loss. They then sued the defendants to recover the loss on the resale of the pit and their commission. Held, that whether or not it might have been the intention of the parties that the grain pit should be resold as it was, the defendants making a profit or bearing a loss on the transaction, the transaction between the parties was not a wagering contract within the meaning of section 30 of the Contract Act. *Forget v. — ss. 39, 55, 63 and 73—Breach of contract to deliver goods at a particular time—Damages, measure of—Time at which damages should be computed. A contract to deliver goods within a certain period is broken by non-delivery before its expiry, in the absence of an agreement between the parties to extend the time for performance. The measure of damages in such a case is the difference between the contract rate and the market rate at the expiry of the period agreed upon as the time for delivery in the contract. Per WHITE, C. J. Section 63 of the Contract Act does not entitle a promisee for his own purposes and without the consent of the promisor to extend the time for performance which had been agreed to by the parties to the contract. Nor does section 55 enable him to keep alive a broken contract in the hope of being able to recover heavier damages for its breach. Ogle v. Earl Vane, L. R. 2 Q. B. 275, 284, and Ashmore & Co v. Cox & Co., [1899] 1 Q. B. 43, explained, Nickell & Knight v. Ashton, Edridge & Co., [1910] 2 Q. B. 228, and Roth v. Taysen, 1 Com. Cas 306, s. c. 73 L. T. 628, referred to. Per AYLING, J.—Section 63 deals only with concessions on the part of the promisee advantageous to the promisor, and cannot be invoked to support an extension of time by the promisee for his own benefit. Section 55 read with section 2 (1) means nothing more than this: on the promisor's failure to perform within the contract time, the promisor loses the power to enforce the contract, that is, to claim any advantage due to himself thereunder. The promisee has the option of enforcing it or not as it may suit him, and if he elects to enforce the contract he can, under section 73, obtain only such damages as naturally arose in the usual course of things from the breach or the parties knew, when they made the contract, to be likely to result, which cannot include any aggravation of damages caused by the promisee's action or inaction subsequent to the breach. *MUTHAYA MANIAGARAN v. The deed contained a personal covenant whereby the plaintiff bound himself to give compensation to the defendants in case their possession was obstructed. In 1910, the plaintiff sued to recover possession of the property by redeeming the valatdana patta which he alleged was a mortgage. The lower Courts held that the alienation was void under the provisions of the Bhagdari Act (Bom. Act V of 1862); and following the decision of Jyibhai v. Nagji, 11 Bom. L. R. 693, ordered that the plaintiff could recover possession on payment of moneys he had received from the defendants. The plaintiff having appealed: Held, that the order of compensation against the plaintiff was justified, inasmuch as the agreement was discovered to be void within the meaning of section 65 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872) long after the transaction, and as there was a personal covenant in the agreement. Per SHAH, J. Neither under section 65 of the Indian Contract Act nor under the ruling in *Jyibhai v. compensation in all cases as a matter of course where a document is found to be void in consequence of the provisions of the Bhagdari Act. It has to be considered in each case whether the agreement is discovered to be void and whether any person has received any advantage under such agreement as required by section 65 or whether the covenant in each particular case justifies the order of compensation. The amount of compensation also has to be determined with reference to the circumstances of each particular case. HARIBHAI HANSJI v. NATHUBHAI RATNAJI (1913) . . . I. L. R. 38 Bom. 249 meaning of—Decree against Hindu widow and sale of husband's estate—Sale set aside by reversionary heir by deposit under s. 310A, Civil Procedure Code (XIV of 1882)—Suit to recover deposit from widow—Payment, if voluntary, if decree in law appears to bind widow personally Where by a deposit duly made under s. 310A of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 the reversionary heir expectant upon the death of a Hindu widow in possession of her husband's estate as his heiress, had a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent of properties other than the defaulting tenure set aside, and then sued the widow for recovery of the amount deposited: Held, that as the decree-holder professed to sell the entire interest in the properties sold and the auction-purchaser also claimed to have acquired the entire interest, the reversionary heir was "interested in the payment" of the decretal amount which the widow "was bound by law to pay"—within the meaning of s. 69 of the Contract Act. Until the sale is confirmed, the judgment-debt remains unsatisfied, and it is in satisfaction of the judgment-debt that the payment under s. 310A (excluding the portion which represents damages payable to the execution purchaser) is made. The question whether in point of law the reversionary interest was or was not touched by the sale, being a matter for serious controversy, the payment could not be viewed as a voluntary payment. The words "interested in the payment of money which another is bound by law to pay" may include the apprehension of any kind of loss or inconvenience and not merely the actual detriment capable of assessment in money. S. 69 thus lays down a more comprehensive rule than is supported by English authority. PANKHABATI CHAUDHURANI v. NANI LAL SINGH (1913)

In such a suit for contribution, a plea that the plaintiffs were the only wrong-doers in the sense that they alone were in possession of the land in respect of which mesne profits were awarded, is of such a special nature and requires such special consideration that it should be distinctly pleaded and made the subject of a distinct issue. Dhing v. The Court of first instance decreed the suit for possession holding that payment of the defendant's dower, whatever it might amount to, was not a condition precedent to the plaintiff's obtaining a decree. The defendant appealed, paying court-fees on the value of the property. Nrode Kamini Dass, 17 C. W. N. 21, may require re-examination and further consideration. The interpretation of the expression “value of property” in Sch. I, Art. 11, as the “market value” of property or the value of the entire property less the amount of encumbrance, is the reasonable construction of the expression. The true mode of interpreting a Statute like the Court-Fees Act which has been repeatedly amended, is not to consider individual sections, but to take them as a whole and to give effect to the legislative intent upon a particular matter. In the goods of Keer (1913) . 18 C. 2. Claim of right, Magistrate's duty to decide bonâ fides of—Magistrate bound to refer parties to Civil Court if such claim is not mere pretence—Steps which Magistrate may take, if suit not instituted in Civil Court within reasonable time Per SHARFUDDIN, J. (TEUNON, J. dubitant). Sub-s (3) of s. 133, Criminal Procedure Code, provides that no order duly made by a Magistrate under the section shall be called in question in any Civil Court. From this latter provision it is clear that the provision of s. 133, Criminal Procedure Code, should be sparingly used. Any order passed under the section cannot be questioned in any Civil Court. It is therefore necessary that if the party against whom the order is contemplated to be passed raises a question that the pathway is not a public property in the sense of the provision of this section, the Magistrate trying the case should be careful not only to decide as to whether the pathway in question is situated on a private land or if it is for public use, but he should, even when the claim of the objection is not substantiated, find whether the claim is bonâ fide or it is set up only to oust the jurisdiction of the Court. If the Magistrate finds that the claim which is set up is a mere pretence, he should then proceed to pass a final order and make the rule issued by him absolute. If, however, he finds that the claim, although not substantiated, is not a mere pretence and is not raised to oust the jurisdiction of the Court, but that it is raised bonâ fide, he should stay his hand and refer the party to Civil Court. And if the party within a reasonable time does not have recourse to Civil Court, the Magistrate may then proceed to make the rule absolute MANIPUR DEX v. BIDHU BHUSAN SARKAR (1914) . 13 C. W. When once a party who raised a private right has asked for a jury and has had the case referred to the jury, the jury are bound to hear the parties and such witnesses as they may desire to be heard. When a second party to a proceeding under s. 133, Criminal Procedure Code, raises a question of private right and insists on having it decided, the Magistrate should look into the bond fides of that claim before submitting the case to a jury. Where, however, the second party raised the question of private right and also stated that if it was thought proper a jury might be appointed, and a jury was appointed who on evidence held that inasmuch as a question of title was involved, the proceeding could not be proceeded with and the Magistrate on perusing the materials placed before the jury decided that the matter was one for the Civil Court and dropped the proceedings. Held, that the Magistrate was justified in making the order passed by him. ASHRAFUDDIN v. It appeared that one of the parties was present in Court but was not examined. Held, that the Magistrate was bound to take such further evidence as became necessary after a consideration of the documents, and the final order was without jurisdiction. favour there was a general power-of-attorney authorising the presentation of criminal complaints, but no power-of-attorney authorising the presentation of the specific complaint. The Chief Presidency Magistrate issued process against the accused and transferred the case to another Magistrate. Held (on a reference under s. 432, Criminal Procedure Code), that the Chief Presidency Magistrate was wrong in issuing process against the accused. It is perfectly well-settled that a process cannot be issued against an accused person either by the Magistrate first taking cognizance of an offence or by the Magistrate to whom the case is transferred under the proviso to s. 200, Criminal Procedure Code, unless and until the Magistrate issuing process has first examined the complainant. And this is more necessary in the case of a purdanashin lady than in other cases to enable the Magistrate to satisfy himself that the complaint is really her own action. That the Magistrate should be very loth to take cognizance of any complaint which is not presented in person. The words "at once" in s. 200 of the Code clearly indicate that ordinarily a complaint must be presented in person and a complaint should not be accepted which is not signed by the complainant and is not preferred by a person duly authorised to prefer that specific complaint. That whether the requirements of s. 198, Criminal Procedure Code, were satisfied in the present case depended upon whether or not the complaint was the complaint of the lady. [The High Court quashed the proceedings, giving liberty to the lady to file a fresh complaint and directed her examination, if fresh complaint was made, by a commission issued to a Magistrate.] Held, that the terms of s. 503, Criminal Procedure Code, are very wide. They refer not only to an enquiry and a trial, but to any other proceedings. The section authorises the examination of any witness, and the complainant is a witness. *ABHOYESWARI DEVI v. tortion, mischief, etc., and the Magistrate who took cognizance of the case made it over to another Magistrate with a direction that the latter would make a local enquiry and then dispose of the case, and the Magistrate to whom the case was so made over made a local enquiry and after examining witnesses dismissed the complaint under s. 203, Criminal Procedure Code, and made an order under s. 476 for the prosecution of the petitioner under s. 211, Indian Penal Code. Held, that the order of the Magistrate before whom the complaint was laid was bad in directing the latter Magistrate to hold a local enquiry inasmuch as the Code of Criminal Procedure does not make any provision for such a course by a Magistrate to whom a case is made over for disposal. On a consideration of the circumstances of the case the High Court set aside the orders under ss. 203, 476, Criminal Procedure Code, and directed a further enquiry into the case. *IMAMUDDIN v. (2) of s. 83 of the Indian Registration Act (XVI of 1908), committed it to the Court of Session without giving any reasons for committal: Held, that the reasons for committal must include not merely reasons for not discharging the accused, but reasons for sending him to the Court of Session, as the trial could be had either by the Magistrate himself or by the Court of Session; and that the omission to give the reasons was an illegality. *EMPEROR v. On appeal, the Sessions Judge set aside the conviction and sentence under s. 147, Indian Penal Code, and convicted the petitioners under s. 323, Indian Penal Code. No charge had been framed against the petitioners under s. 323, Indian Penal Code. Held, that s. 237 has to be read with s. 236. If the facts of the case do not fall under s. 236, s. 237 has got no application. No charge under s. 353 or s. 323 was framed. The Magistrate convicted the petitioners under s. 147, Indian Penal Code. The Sessions Judge in appeal acquitted the petitioners of the offence of rioting and convicted them under s. 353, Indian Penal Code, in respect of the assault committed upon the several police officers. The Sessions Judge did not find which police officer was assaulted by which petitioner. Held, that the Sessions Judge was wrong in convicting the petitioners of an offence under s. 353, Indian Penal Code, the petitioners not having been called upon to answer any such charge. On the date fixed for hearing the mistake was discovered and the Magistrate ignored the order previously passed by him under s. 247, Criminal Procedure Code, and went on with the case which ended in a conviction: Held, that an order passed on a date which was not fixed for the hearing of the case and on which date the complainant was necessarily absent is no order at all, and the trying Magistrate had jurisdiction to ignore it and go on with the case and come to the finding which he did. High Court Proceedings, No. 1793, 2 Weir 307, followed. *Suresh Chandra v. It is sufficient that the Magistrate fixed the compensation in his order of discharge. The proviso to s. 250 clearly contemplates that the direction in the first paragraph of the section shall be considered as in the nature of a rule and that that rule shall not be made absolute until the complainant has shown cause. *HARU TAMR v. Four days later, after hearing the complainant, the Magistrate passed an order directing him to pay compensation. Held, that the proceedings, though not strictly in accordance with s. 250 of the Code, were not so far at variance with its provisions as to fall outside the purview of section 537. *Jugal Kishore v. The accused admitted his liability. The trying Magistrate framed a charge under s. 406, Indian Penal Code, and after cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution acquitted the accused under s. 258, Criminal Procedure Code, holding that the case was one of civil dispute. Held (on an appeal by the Local Government under s. 417, Criminal Procedure Code), that in an appeal from an acquittal the High Court could not interfere unless the judgment of the Court below was wrong and perverse or without jurisdiction and based upon obvious errors in procedure, and there being nothing of the kind in the case, the High Court should uphold the decision of the Magistrate, even though wrong, because it would be based at the most on a doubtful weighing of facts and not on any irregularity or negligence or other matter owing to the jurisdiction or the regularity of the trial. exercise the power conferred on a Court of Appeal by section 423, clause (b). In this view the High Court, having in revision altered a finding of rioting into one of murder, enhanced the sentences from five years' rigorous imprisonment to transportation for life. In the course of a riot the accused attacked and killed a man with dangerous weapons. Held, that the acts of the accused having caused the death of the man and there being nothing to suggest that they were not sufficient to cause death as their ordinary and natural result in the absence of proof of circumstances sufficient to give the accused the benefit of any of the exceptions to s. 300 of the Penal Code, they must be taken to have intended to kill the man and are guilty of murder. BALI REDDI, Re . . . . . I. ss. 439, 517, 520—Restoration of moveable property—Charge of theft—Malkhana register, order passed in, making over property to complainant—Acquittal by High Court—Subsequent order of Magistrate refusing to revise order in Malkhana register—Revision by High Court Certain properties alleged to be stolen properties, were found in the house of the petitioner who was tried and convicted of theft. These properties were in the custody of the Court and after the judgment of the Sessions Judge affirming the conviction of the petitioner, the trying Magistrate passed an order in the Malkhana register to the effect that the properties should be made over to the complainant. No order was passed on the record of the case. The petitioner moved the High Court against the conviction and sentence and was acquitted. After his acquittal by the High Court, the petitioner applied to the trying Magistrate for the restoration of the properties to him, but the Magistrate held that he could not revise his previous order in the Malkhana register. The petitioner then moved the High Court and obtained a Rule. Held, that the Malkhana register forms no part of any criminal case, unless it is brought on the record in a legal way and the order in complainant's favour recorded in it was not one under s. 517, Criminal Procedure Code, but the order refusing to revise that order was an order under s. 517, Criminal Procedure Code, and the High Court had jurisdiction to revise it under s. 520, as also under s. 439, Criminal Procedure Code. The intention of the Legislature in cl. (3) of s. 517 is that an order under s. 517 should not be carried into effect until it really becomes final either by there being no appeal within the prescribed period or by any final order by a Court of final jurisdiction. That after the accused is acquitted of theft or burglary, the proper order to make is to direct that the property found in the possession of the accused should be restored to him. The complainant in that case could go to the Civil Court, file a suit and secure an injunction. That, in the circumstances of the case, the absence of a prayer by the petitioner as to the restoration of the properties in his previous application to the High Court was no bar to his getting relief in this Rule. *KEDAR BISWAS v. It appeared that M had made a confession to a Magistrate and this confession was subsequently verified by the same or another Magistrate to whom M made further statements. A Judge ought not to put a long list of questions to the assessors before they have stated their own opinions, and then record their answers to them. He should allow them in the first instance to give their opinions in their own language and way, and he may then put to them such questions as are necessary to elucidate or supplement their opinions. Where the accused were charged, under s 399 of the Penal Code, with making preparations to commit dacoity by assembling together with masks, arms and implements which might be used for that purpose, and the Judge found that there had been such assembly with such articles, but that there was not sufficient evidence of preparation and acquitted them under s. 399 but convicted them under s 402 of the Penal Code: Held, that there was no repugnancy in his findings as, though he was of opinion that the accused did not commit an offence under s 399 by assembling with masks, arms and implements, he had found that they did assemble, within the meaning of s. 402, and that the discovery of these articles with the other circumstances of the case, showed that the purpose of the assembly was to commit dacoity. In a popular sense assembling to commit dacoity may be an act of preparation for it, but a mere assembling, without further preparation, is not "preparation" within s 399 of the Penal Code. Section 402 applies to mere assembling without proof of other preparation. A person may be not guilty of dacoity, yet guilty of preparation, and not guilty of preparation yet guilty of assembling. Evidence of the findings of masks, arms and implements at the place of the assembling is not necessary to constitute the offence under s. 402, but only to indicate the purpose of the assembling. Per CURIAM: Even if there was a repugnancy in the Judge's findings, the High Court has power to alter the finding of acquittal, under s. 399 of the Penal Code, into one of conviction thereunder, maintaining the sentence. Queen-Empress v Jabanulla, I. R. 39 Calc. 896, held not in point. Per BEACHCROFT, J.—There is no provision in the Code justifying interference with a conviction on the ground of repugnancy in the record. Repugnancy in the verdict of a Jury in India is not by itself a sufficient ground, in view of s 423 (2) of the Code, to quash the conviction. Per WOODROFFE, J.—A search is irregular if it is conducted in violation of the police rules relating thereto, such as the omission to make, at the time, a note of the articles found and where found, the permitting of unauthorized persons to go in and out of the place searched, and the omission to send up the articles found as soon as possible to the Magistrate. The exclusion of the occupants of the place during the search is not a technical, but a substantial violation of the law. The effect, however, of such regularities is to necessitate a careful scrutiny of the evidence of search, but if, notwithstanding the irregularities, the Court holds that no advantage has, or could have been, taken of them, they have no further effect Per BEACHCROFT, J.—The spirit of s. 103 requires that an option be given to the "occupant" of the place searched to be present at it, and not that he is to be allowed to be present only on demand. The words "occupant of the place" refer to persons residing in, or being in charge of, the place, but it is desirable in practice that any person against whom an inference may be drawn from the finding of articles should be present at the search. If the bonâ fides of the search is impeached, it must be shown that the law has been ignored, and an inference against bonâ fides will not arise from the mere failure to exercise a wise discretion on the part of the officers conducting the search Per WOODROFFE, J.—The accused are entitled to urge any defence open to them, technical or otherwise, and to have the Court's judgment on it, but (per BEACHCROFT, J.) the technicality must be one found in the Code and not based on peculiar rules of the English law. It is not for the accused to supplement or explain deficiencies or suspicious circumstances in the prosecution case. They may refer to them to show suspicious character of the evidence, but if they put forward a case of fraud, or if the prosecution evidence is not ambiguous, they should cross-examine the witnesses on the point so as to give the prosecution an opportunity of explanation. If incriminating articles are found in a place, knowledge of their being there cannot, without other evidence, be imputable to any one other than the occupants, nor would the presumption operate even against him if they might have been placed there without his knowledge Per BEACHCROFT, J.—When an article is found in a man's house, the ordinary presumption is that he, as owner of the house, is aware of its existence, provided that no other person has access to that particular place. If the house is occupied by more persons than one having access to the particular place, there is no presumption against them individually that they have put the article where it is found, though if it has been for a considerable time in a place to which all have frequent access, it might reasonably be presumed that all were aware of its existence. *RAMESH CHANDRA BANERJEE v. DANDIDARI RIGHT.

————— Dandidari right, if a monopoly or a legal right to be recognised by Courts of Justice—Such right if personal or if can be transferred—Transfer, if must be by registered instrument—Estoppel, application of rule of, to employes and contracting parties—Assignee of right having enjoyed profits, if can deny assignor's title At a public auction held at the instance of Government the plaintiff as the highest bidder purchased the road-side lands on the bank of a river together with the dandidari right for one year. It appeared from the lease granted to him by Government that he became entitled to occupy the lands for one year and to exercise the calling of a broker in the market held thereon during that period. The defendants took an assignment from the plaintiff of the dandidari right and they commenced at once to exercise the calling of a broker in the market place by virtue of the Government license which was made over to them, but they withheld payment of the money they had agreed to pay. The plaintiff sued for recovery of the consideration with damages for unlawful detention of his money: Held, that the term dandidar literally means a measurer and is applied to signify a broker who negotiates the sale of paddy and other produce in a market-place and receives as remuneration for his service a commission from the seller and the buyer who may choose to employ him. That the contention of the defendants that the alleged dandidari right tended to create a monopoly and should not be recognised as a legal right by any Court of Justice was untenable. The principle that every arrangement which places a restriction upon a man's right to exercise his trade or calling tends to create a monopoly and is void as against public policy, has no application to the present case. There is nothing illegal or contrary to public policy in Government allowing a market to be held on its land and taking measures to restrict the admission of brokers. That the dandidari right was not a right personal to the grantor from Government and could be transferred. The very fact that the right was granted by Government to the highest bidder affords some indication that the personal element does not enter into consideration when the grant is made. That the dandidari right was transferable only by a registered instrument. That the defendants were at least licensees under the plaintiff and as they had exercised their calling without interruption or interference they at any rate were not entitled to contend that the plaintiff had no title or that they themselves had acquired none from him. LAKHAN JENA v ARJUN NAIK (1914) 18 C. 1. ——— Construction of, whether executable or merely declaratory—Appeal against preliminary order after passing of final order, maintainability of—What orders in execution are appealable—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 2, 47. A decree which does not direct possession of any of the suit lands to be given to plaintiff who sued for possession of all the lands in suit but merely declared the right of the defendant to remain in possession of a portion of the lands of the whole of which she was in possession, is one that is not capable of execution by the plaintiff, by way of possession of the rest being given to him, especially when there was not even a declaration of plaintiff's right to the rest of the lands. A question whether a decree is executable or not is certainly one that comes within ss. 2 and 47 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), the former of which enacts that the determination of any questions within s. 47 is a decree; an appeal lies from such determination under section 2. The determination of a mere issue by the executing Court, made prior to the passing of the final order, would not be regarded as an adjudication between the parties against which an appeal would lie. Venkatagiri Iyer v. Sadagopachariar, 14 Mad. L. J. 359, referred to. Orders in execution which declare (i) that execution shall issue and that a Commissioner be appointed for carrying out execution, (ii) that interest is payable, and (iii) that a party is entitled to mesne profits are appealable, though the final orders determining the extent of amount will have to be passed only thereafter. Narayana Pattar v. Tara Sundari Debi, I. L. R. 9 Calc. 619, and Deoki Nandan Singh v. Bansi Singh, 14 C. L. J. 35, referred to. Held, that an appeal against a preliminary order in execution can be filed even after the date of the final order, which merely carries out and is consequential on the preliminary order, though no appeal has been filed against the final order. *Uman Kunwari v. DIGWARI TENURE.

— Incidents of Digwari tenure—Limitations subject to which such tenures are hereditary—Powers of Government to decide fitness of heir—Sanction of Government, if means prior approval—Jurisdiction of Courts—Grounds of disapproval of heir by Government, if open to review by the Court—Sanction of Government, if may be withheld on grounds other than that of fitness—Temporary appointment, if signifies approval of fitness for permanent post. One K, who was a Sardar Digwar, was dismissed for neglect of duty and improper conduct, and two persons were successively appointed to the post, and ultimately the plaintiff's father. Thereafter on the recommendation of the police for the re-employment of K, K was informed that in the case of a vacancy occurring, the appointment would be first offered to him. Prior to his death, the plaintiff's father was allowed leave for six months and the plaintiff was appointed as being a fit person to act in his place. On the death of his father the plaintiff was directed by the District Magistrate to act in place of his deceased father until further orders. The widow of K thereupon applied to the District Magistrate on behalf of her minor son praying that he might be appointed in accordance with the promise made to his father, but the District Magistrate rejected her application and confirmed the appointment of the plaintiff. The Divisional Commissioner reversed this decision of the District Magistrate and appointed K's son not on the ground of plaintiff's unfitness, but upon his view of the legal rights of the parties. On appeal to the Lieutenant-Governor, the plaintiff was referred for remedy to the Civil Court and brought this suit. Held, that a Digwari tenure in the district of Bankura, which is similar to a Ghatwali tenure is hereditary, but the right of the heir to the tenure is subject to the approval or sanction of the Government, and notwithstanding that the tenure is hereditary, the Government has the power of dismissing the Ghatwal for misconduct. Per N. R. CHATTERJEE, J.—When a Ghatwal is dismissed and has no male member of the family fit to be appointed at the time of his dismissal, there is a forfeiture of the tenure so far as his family is concerned, and wherein such a case a stranger to the family is permanently appointed in his place, a subsequently born son of the dismissed Ghatwal on the death of the latter and after the tenure has passed to another family, cannot claim it on the ground that it is his hereditary tenure. It is for the Government to say whether the heir is a fit and proper person, and so far as that question is concerned, the Government is the sole judge, and the Civil Courts cannot go into that question; but the Government cannot disapprove of the heir or withhold its sanction upon any ground it likes, and apart from the question whether he is a fit and proper person. That in the present case, having regard to the proceedings taken, the plaintiff should be held to have been approved by Government as a fit and proper person. Per FLETCHER, J.—Sanction in its ordinary signification means prior approval and implies a power to disapprove. It would be contrary to the practice in India to hold that the approval of a person to hold an appointment in an acting capacity is an approval of him for the permanent post. In view of the authorities that the Court cannot interfere to reinstate a person who has actually been in possession of the Ghatwali land, it must be held that the Court cannot interfere in favour of a person who has never in fact been appointed Ghatwal. That in the present case the plaintiff failed to obtain the sanction of the Government which was a condition precedent to his succeeding to the Ghatwali lands. That the decision of the executive authorities refusing to sanction the appointment of the heir of a deceased Ghatwal as Ghatwal cannot be challenged in the Civil Court on the ground that sanction has been unreasonably withheld. A Civil Court is not in a position to determine what are the qualifications necessary in a Ghatwal. It is a matter solely for the executive authorities. *Nilmoney Singh v. Subsequently the parties lived together for some time in London and then came out to Bombay where they also lived together for some time. Afterwards the parties returned to England, but, apparently owing to differences which had arisen between them, immediately on their arrival in London, at Victoria Railway Station, the respondent deserted the petitioner and never thereafter lived together again, the respondent having made up his mind about that time that he could not live with the petitioner. The respondent remained in England but the petitioner returned to Bombay with the intention of taking legal proceedings against the respondent there and did sue the respondent in the Bombay High Court claiming restitution of her conjugal rights. Held, that under s. 9 of the High Courts Act and cl. 35 of the Amended Letters Patent of the Bombay High Court, the jurisdiction exercised by the High Court in matrimonial matters previous to the coming into force of the Indian Divorce Act had been confined to matters between British subjects professing the Christian religion. Held, further, that as regards the jurisdiction confirmed to the Bombay High Court by s. 4 of the Indian Divorce Act (which included jurisdiction to entertain suits for the restitution of conjugal rights) the powers of the Bombay High Court were still limited to Christian subjects within the Presidency so that the High Court had no jurisdiction to grant a decree of restitution either against a Parsi respondent or against any respondent not within the Presidency. Held, further, that following the principles on which the Courts for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England have acted and given relief, which principles are made applicable in India under s. 7 of the Indian Divorce Act, the Bombay High Court could not give relief by way of restitution of conjugal rights if the respondent named in the petition were absent from the jurisdiction at the time the suit was instituted and remained absent, although residence at the date of the suit of both spouses, whatever their domicile might be, would be sufficient to give jurisdiction in suits of this nature. Frebrace v. Frebrace, 4 P. D. 63, Chichester v. Chichester, 10 P. D. 186, and Armstrong v. Armstrong, [1898] P. 178, followed. Semble: In the case of matrimonial offences including those other than adultery, the application of the Civil Procedure Code, s. 20 (corresponding to s. 17 of Act XIV of 1882), under s. 45 of the Indian Divorce Act involves the necessity of either residence on the part of the defendant or the accrual of the cause of action within the jurisdiction in order to enable the Court to entertain the suit. Thornton v. Thornton, I. L. R. 10 Bom. 422, referred to. Semble: Also, that mere residence in India at the time of the institution of a suit is not residence within the meaning of s. 2 of the Indian Divorce Act and that the residence of the petitioner should be bona fide and not casual or as a traveller. Held, however, that moneys deposited by a husband respondent as security for his wife's costs of a petition constituted a fund paid in for the benefit of her attorney who was entitled to have it applied for his benefit whatever the result of the petition, provided that he had been in no way to blame and that that rule applied to moneys deposited by a respondent appealing from the decision of the lower Court as security for the costs of the appeal in accordance with the rules of the Bombay High Court. NUSSERWANJEE WADIA v. Distinction between surface water, and water flowing in a definite channel. No claim can be made either as a natural right or as an easement by prescription, to water which does not flow in a definite course, but which should be regarded as surface water or surface drainage. The right to the water of a stream does not cease, when it ceases to flow in a confined water-course, unless it exhausts itself as a stream, and merely soaks into the ground. The chief characteristic of surface water is its inability to maintain its identity and existence as a water body. When the flow of water on one person's land can be identified with that on another, a right to such flow can arise, although the water may flow along an intervening piece of land. Water flowing into a field from a known channel and passing along the field onwards into another field though not over a confined track in the former field, but along its whole area, is not surface water. Well-defined existence arising from an ascertained course is the real test in coming to a conclusion against any body of water being regarded as surface water. The question whether or not particular water is surface water is one of fact to be determined by the circumstances attending its origin and continued existence. The right to the water of a stream is sustainable notwithstanding the fact that the water in the stream is not always sufficient for the purpose for which the right is claimed, or that it reaches the plaintiff's land not directly but indirectly by flowing into another channel. A river channel supplied the means of irrigation for the lands of the parties to the suit, and the other ryots of the village. A branch leading from the main channel passed through the lands of defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3 in a definite water-course, up to the fourth defendant's lands when it entered the fourth defendant's field, and after irrigating it, flowed, over its bunds, and joined another channel which irrigated the plaintiff's lands. Defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3 blocked up the channel at a point higher than the fourth defendant's land. In a suit by plaintiff for declaration of his right to the customary supply of water through the channel, and for an injunction restraining the defendants from obstructing the water-course: Held, that the water of the channel when it entered the fourth defendant's field could not be regarded as surface water, but continued in a definite water-course, and plaintiff was entitled to the usual supply of water unobstructed. 3. Right of support —Disturbance—Actual damage when necessary, to support action—Temporary structure, whether an easement of support acquirable in respect of. No actual damage is necessary to support an action for the disturbance of an easement of support for a building: Contra where the disturbance is of a natural right. Backhouse v. Bonomi, 9 H.L.C., 503, referred to. The rule requiring actual damage is applicable only to an action for damages, but actual damage is not necessary to entitle a person having a right of support, to relief by way of injunction. Corporation of Birmingham v. Allen, 6 Ch. D. 284, followed. The question whether a right of support can be claimed for a temporary structure, which has been in existence for the statutory period, was not decided. *Maberlay v. 5. ————— Right to take water from tank along defined route—Servient owner if may alter route—Dominant owner, if may insist on use of old route—Motive of servient owner, if material. When the owner of a dominant tenement has acquired a prescriptive right to take water from a tank on the servient tenement and has for this purpose used a particular means of access for the statutory period, he has acquired a right to reach the water by means of such definite mode of access and the servient owner cannot at his discretion substitute for his use some other means of access, any more than the dominant owner himself can, at his discretion, take recourse to a different path. The dominant owner may insist on his right to use the old path, his motive in so doing being immaterial. JIBANANDA CHAKRABARTY v. KALIDAS MAJUMDAR (1914) . 18 C. W. N. 1296

DIGWARI TENURE—*concl'd.

ss. 18, 23.—Easement—Projection of eaves—Raising the height of the eaves—Burden on the servient tenement not to be increased—Customary easement—Privacy—Invasion. The term "easement" as defined in the Easement Act (V of 1882) applied just as much to a projection of eaves in a dry country where there is no discharge of water as in a country where there is abundant rainfall and there is discharge of water. If a man has acquired an easement from a projection of his eaves to a fixed extent over his neighbour's land, he can raise the height of those eaves so long as he does not throw an increased burden on the servient tenement. The defendant constructed a window and apertures (jalus) in the back wall of his house and they commanded the plaintiff's khadki or courtyard which could be used for females to bathe and similar purposes of privacy. From the defendants' window the people sleeping in the plaintiff's house could be seen and from the apertures, though above a man's height, a person, if he was so inclined, could peep through into the plaintiff's house and the male apartment next to the open verandah (osari). The plaintiff having sued for an injunction restraining the defendant from making any openings in his wall Held, that though it was doubtful whether the plaintiff was entitled to relief on the ground of the invasion of his privacy, still as there was a written agreement between the parties in the year 1870 whereby the defendant's father agreed that he would not make any opening in his back wall, the plaintiff had the right to require the defendant to close the said apertures and window. *MULIA BHANA v. — Suit based on title to recover possession—Presumption of right arising from possession applies as much to defendant as to plaintiff—Plaintiff to prove such possession as will give him better title—Proof of such title as carries a present right to possession—Determination of annual tenancy—Notice to quit—Relinquishment of tenancy gives no right to present possession—Jus tertii. In a suit based on title to recover possession, the presumption of right arising from possession applies as much to a defendant as to a plaintiff and the fact of possession within twelve years of suit will not avail the plaintiff unless it is shown to be such a possession as gives a better title to the land than the defendant can show. To succeed in ejectment it is only necessary for the plaintiff to establish such title as carries a present right to possession. Ordinarily, unless there is an express agreement for the expiry of a tenancy on a certain day, a tenancy from year to year is only determined by a notice to quit. It is a reasonable inference that if the plaintiff had not asserted his right as yearly tenant for eight years, he must be taken to have abandoned the tenancy or to have relinquished such other occupancy right as he might have, and, if so, he would have no right to present possession such as would entitle him to maintain a suit for ejectment. The defendant in ejectment might set up and prove jus tertii. The defendant is entitled to rely on the jus tertii appearing from the facts adduced by the plaintiff.

The Court in interfering in cases of disputed elections, should apply the principles followed by the Courts of Common Law in granting or refusing prerogative writs. *BHUPENDRA NATH BASU v. creditor recovered judgment both for principal and interest on the debts, in a suit to which the plaintiff and second defendant were parties, the court finding that second defendant's plea of payment of interest was false. In a suit by the plaintiff for recovery of damages against the second defendant, on account of the latter's default in payment of the stipulated interest, the second defendant again pleaded payment. Held, that whether the technical rule of res judicata was applicable or not, the second defendant was equitably estopped, by reason of the finding in the previous suit from raising the contention that he had really paid the interest due to the creditor. Where there is a contract to indemnify, a decree passed against the promisee cannot be impeached by the promisor and if both the promisee and the promisor were parties to the suit by the third party, or if the promisor had notice of the suit, the judgment would be conclusive against the promisor. The contract on the part of the promisor is substantially broken when the Court finds in a suit honestly defended by the promisee, that there has been a violation of duty by the promisor, which has entitled a third party to the damage for which the indemnity has been given. *Parker v. It is not necessary that it should be signed; it is enough if it is traced to the writer, and it is admissible though it may have been intercepted or surreptitiously detained and opened. Rer v. Derrington, 2 C. & P. 418, referred to. An unsigned letter, proved to have been written by the accused addressed to a firm in London, which had shipped certain contraband cocaine which the accused was charged with importing into Bengal, is admissible in evidence, though intercepted under the order of the Magistrate at the Post Office during the course of transit. A letter written by the exporter of certain contraband cocaine, the subject of the charge against the accused, containing a reference to a telegram signed in a different name but bearing the same business address as that of the accused, is relevant under s. 11 of the Evidence Act as showing that the accused was the sender of the telegram, though the letter was intercepted at the Post Office under an order of the Magistrate before delivery. *Queen v. In a suit by Hindu reversioners for recovery of immoveable property left by their maternal grandfather and sold by their maternal grandmother for alleged necessity, the purchaser's representative adduced oral evidence to show that the widow had sold it for her husband's debts. This evidence was found by the trial Judge to be unreliable but the learned Judge, adverting to documentary evidence, chiefly relied on an affidavit which was filed in another suit and was signed by the reversioners' mothers and fathers and which contained a statement to the effect that certain other premises had been mortgaged by the widow (grandmother) for her husband's debt and that her daughters and sons-in-law had joined for protecting the reversioners' (the present plaintiffs') interest, and the Judge held that the affidavit was admissible, regarding "the parents as the guardians of the plaintiffs and as capable of making admissions against their interest on their behalf." Held (on appeal), *per JENKINS, C. Owing to this difference in opinion, the case was referred to MACLEOD, J. Held, that there was nothing in s. 30 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, which prevented the Court from convicting after taking the confession of a co-accused into consideration; but that the High Courts in India had laid down a rule of practice which had all the reverence of law, that a conviction founded solely on the confession of a co-accused could not be sustained. Held, further, that the confession of one co-accused could not be said to be corroborated by the confession of other co-accused. Per MACLEOD, J.—I do not think that "confession" in section 30 can be restricted to an unretracted confession, as once a confession is proved it may be taken into consideration. EMPEROR v. Subsequently a nephew of the testator made an application to the Court for the revocation of the probate on the ground that the will was a forgery and that he had been prepared to prove it in the proceeding, but at the last moment the executor had bought him off under a mutual arrangement, but after the order for probate had been made, the executor failed to perform his part of the arrangement and had thus committed a fraud both on the Court and the applicant. The application for revocation was disposed of by the Court on the ground that the applicant, on his own showing, was a party to a fraud upon the Court, that he had not come with clean hands and was not, therefore, entitled to the relief sought. Thereafter the executor having brought a suit in the Court of the Subordinate Judge to recover rent and possession against a tenant of the testator as defendant 1 and against the aforesaid nephew as defendant 2, defendant 1 pleaded that the deceased (testator) had asked him to pay rent to defendant 2 and defendant 2 contended, as in the previous proceedings, that the deceased had made no will, that the will produced was a fabrication and that probate had been obtained by fraud Held, that defendant 2 was barred by the decision of the District Court in the revocation proceeding from raising the same question in the Court of the Subordinate Judge. Held, further, that it was the District Court which was competent to decide the question of fraud and collusion vitiating the decree of that Court under which probate had been granted, and that as the Subordinate Judge who tied the suit had no jurisdiction in probate matters, the title of the plaintiff was conclusively proved on the production of probate and it was no valid defence for the defendants to allege that the will was a forgery and that probate had been obtained by fraud and deception. Quære Whether a debtor of the estate could raise such a defence if sued by the executor in a Court having jurisdiction to revoke the probate? KISHORBHAI REVADAS v. In a contentious proceeding for probate, the will produced by the applicants was held not proved and the probate was refused. The applicants appealed to the High Court which dismissed the appeal. The widow of the deceased thereupon brought a suit for the recovery of the property of the deceased from the defendants who held it as executors under the will and the first Court allowed the claim. On appeal by the defendants, two questions having arisen, namely, (1) whether the judgment refusing probate was as much within the scope and intention of s. 41 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872) as a judgment granting probate, and (2) whether the judgment in the probate proceeding operated as res judicata. Held by the Full Bench, that s. 41 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872) was not applicable to the judgment of the Appellate Court refusing probate. Held, further, that the judgment in the probate proceeding operated as res judicata between the parties under s. 83 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) and s. 11 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908). KALYANCHAND LALCHAND v. The complainant in a petty criminal case before a bench of Honorary Magistrates, in the course of negotiations concerning a compromise, made a statement to the effect that he had paid a certain sum of money by way of an illegal gratification to the peshkar of the Court. The peshkar was at once called up and examined, by way of departmental inquiry and not on oath, and he admitted having received money from the complainant. The Honorary Magistrates reported the circumstances to the District Magistrate, who directed the prosecution of the peshkar. Held, that the statement made by the peshkar to the Magistrates was not a statement which was required by law to be in writing and could be proved by the evidence of either of the Magistrates who had heard it. EMPEROR v. Ultimately the plaintiffs sued on a set of renewed hundis, but it was found that these particular hundis were insufficiently stamped and could not be admitted in evidence. Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to fall back upon the last preceding set of hundis, and, as these were in the possession of the defendants, to give secondary evidence of their contents. JAGAN PRASAD v. rendering it fit for human consumption—“Excisable article” and “liquor,” whether diluted denatured spirit is—“Manufacture,” meaning of—Mere dilution of denatured spirit not a “process”—Bengal Excise Act (Beng. V of 1909), ss. 2 (6), (7) (14) (15), 46, 48, 75, 81, 84—Application of the Criminal Procedure Code to trials for excise offences—Misjoinder of charges—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 233 The words “effectually and permanently rendered unfit” in s. 2 (6), read with s. 48, of the Bengal Excise Act, appear to contemplate such a process of denaturing as will defy any chemical treatment which, while not substantially increasing the bulk of the liquid, renders the spirit fit for human consumption. Where the liquid was so manipulated as to lose its characteristics of a denatured spirit, and the accused had succeeded in the attempt to render the spirit fit for human consumption, the conviction under s. 48 was held bad in the above meaning. Semble: If the words imply only a process which would be permanently effective in the absence of some chemical treatment or process of filtration, the conviction under s. 48 was still bad for want of evidence that the spirit was in fact ever so denatured by the accused. The words “unfit for human consumption” may be taken to mean “liable to be injurious to health.” The term “manufacture” in s. 2 (11) of the Act does not include the act of mere dilution of denatured spirit with water, but a continuous and regular action or a succession of actions taking place or carried on in a definite manner and leading to the accomplishment of some result. Quære: Whether denatured spirit diluted with water is an “excisable article” or “liquor,” within s. 2 (7) and (14) of the Act. Ss. 75 and 81 of the Act apply to proceedings before a Collector, and s. 84 shows that the Criminal Procedure Code is applicable to trials before a Magistrate under the Act subject to specified restrictions. An appeal, therefore, lies under s. 410 of the Code, from a conviction and sentence by a Presidency Magistrate, passed under the Act. The acts of manufacturing the excisable article brought into Court, bottling, and possessing the same, and of selling from time to time various other and similar articles not before the Court, and of attempting to render denatured spirit fit for human consumption, do not constitute the same transaction, and a trial in respect of all such acts is bad for misjoinder, under s. 233 of the Code. (5) and (6) of Art. 182 of the Limitation Act. Where an application for execution which was reported by the office of the executing Court to be time-barred was, without notice to the judgment-debtor, held by the Court to be within time, and registered and later on dismissed for default: Held, that the decision that the application was not time-barred was not binding on the judgment-debtor. IX by themselves do not apply to a case in which the defendant has already appeared in answer to the summons but has failed to appear at an adjourned hearing of the suit. For such a case the procedure is laid down in O. XVII which deals with adjournments. The distinction between rr. 2 and 3 of O. XVII is that while the former rule applies to hearings adjourned at the instance of the Court, the latter applies to hearings adjourned at the instance of a party to whom time has been allowed to do some act to further the progress of the suit but who has defaulted. There is yet another distinction between the two rules. Where there are no materials on the record, the proper procedure to follow would be that laid down in r. 2 but if there are materials on the record the Court ought to proceed under r. 3. To apply the procedure, therefore, laid down in r. 3 to a case there must be the presence of both the elements, viz., (i) the adjournment must have been at the instance of a party; and (ii) there

(3) to Art V of the China and Corea Order-in-Council, 1904, the Supreme Court of China and Corea has civil and criminal jurisdiction over a "foreigner" as such have no application to "British protected persons" who even when in fact natural born foreigners are "British subjects" as defined by Art. III and so subject to the jurisdiction of that Court under cl. (1) to Art V. The accused, a natural born subject of the Ameer of Afghanistan, was duly enlisted and enrolled in a British Indian regiment, took the oath of allegiance to His Majesty and made a solemn declaration undertaking, among other things, to go wherever ordered by land or sea, and whilst serving with the detachment of that regiment which was encamped on Shameen Island at Canton as a guard of the Concession, was alleged to have murdered a Subadar of that regiment. The Acting Consul at Canton, who also served as Judge under Art XIX of the Order-in-Council, gave evidence (which was uncontradicted) "that the place of murder was within his jurisdiction and that the jurisdiction exercised at Canton on Shameen was the same ex-territorial jurisdiction as was exercised throughout China by the Supreme Court, that Indian soldiers enjoy His Majesty's protection in Shameen, Canton, and the Court exercises jurisdiction over them, and that consular protection extends to trying persons and protecting them if they are improperly arrested." Held, that s. 4 (1) of the Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890, did not make this evidence inadmissible to prove that by "usage, sufferance or other lawful means" His Majesty has jurisdiction at Canton. That the accused being, during his service in the Indian Army, subject to military law was entitled to His Majesty's protection and was a "British protected person" within Art. III. When the Crown lawfully enlists in its forces aliens along with British subjects and requires of them the same service, loyalty and allegiance as on the duties of British enlisted subjects, it extends to them the same protection in a foreign country where all are serving together in the armed forces of His Majesty. Protection enjoyed by virtue of the Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890, "or otherwise," as mentioned in Art. III, includes that derived from other Statutes, Imperial or Indian, applicable to the person in question. Quære Whether the Court could take judicial notice of the political change in China in considering the question of jurisdiction. Quære Whether it may not be reasonably inferred from the practice (which is a matter of public knowledge) of enlisting native Afghans in the Indian Army whereby they are de facto brought under the authority of His Majesty, that the Ameer does in fact consent to such enlistment with its consequences, so as to bring such enlisted Afghans within the terms of cl. (4) Art. V, v.e., "foreigners with respect to whom any State, King, Chief or Government whose subjects they are, consents to the exercise of power or authority by His Majesty." The officer commanding the detachment, who spoke to the accused shortly after the occurrence, deposed to having asked the accused why he had done such a senseless act—not thereby meaning to convey a threat or inducement—and to the accused having replied that he was being abused by the deceased three or four days and that without a doubt he had killed him. The Judicial Committee found that the words of the officer though formally a question, were really an exclamation of dismay: Held, that the prosecution having by the evidence of this officer proved to the satisfaction of the trial Judge that the statement of the accused was voluntary in the sense that it had not been obtained from him either by fear of prejudice or hope of advantage exercised or held out by a person in authority, its admission in evidence was not in breach of the long established rule of English Criminal law which makes statements obtained from the accused by pressure of authority and fear of consequences inadmissible in evidence and which casts on the prosecution the onus of proving that the statement relied on was voluntary. On the question whether the statement should not have been excluded from evidence on the ground of its having been made by a person in custody in answer to a question put by a person having authority over him and having custody of him through his subordinates: Held, on a review of English authorities, that the English law on the point was still unsettled, some Judges being of opinion that such a statement is admissible in evidence without exception, whilst others treat its exclusion from evidence as a matter for the Judge's discretion depending largely on his view of the impropriety of the questioner's conduct and the general circumstances of the case. That the trial Judge in admitting this evidence decided in accordance with what at any rate was a "probable opinion" of the present law if it was not actually the better opinion, and his so doing was not a violation of "the principles of natural justice," calling for His Majesty's interference. That even if the evidence was admissible in the exercise of the trial Judge's discretion, that discretion in the present case was not shown to have been exercised improperly. With reference to Act XXXV (2) of the China and Corea Order-in-Council which provides that, subject to the provisions of that order, criminal jurisdiction under the Order shall, as far as circumstances admit, be exercised on the principle of and in conformity with English law for the time being: Held, that in the absence of any provision in the Order on the point modifying or excluding the principles and practice of English law, the question of the admissibility of the statement of the accused might justly be treated as if English criminal law and practice applied to the criminal jurisdiction of the Supreme Court at Hong-Kong, subject, however, to the following reservations:—(i) That such law and practice are not to be considered as in all respects and particulars binding on that Court; (ii) that regard must be had to the necessary distinction that must be drawn between the criminal procedure of a European country whose jurisprudence has a defined history extending over many centuries and that applicable to a British possession in the Far East, where a mixed and fluctuating population is subject to the administration of law by European Judges whose duty it is to have regard alike to the principle of British justice and to the necessities of local order; (iii) that the words "so far as circumstances admit," may well (a) refer to absence of facilities at Hong Kong for formal proof of Statutes passed and administrative orders made in various parts of His Majesty's dominions, and (b) be intended to cover some necessary departures from the formalities only as distinguished from the essentials of English justice, when, as in the present case, a force detailed for the protection of European residents beyond His Majesty's dominions in the midst of a population often turbulent, and at the particular time disturbed was itself disturbed by such a crime as the murder of a Subadar by a native private in the ranks. That in view of the position which the Privy Council held in regard to criminal proceedings, the Judicial Committee did not in this case decide what the rule of English law should be with regard to the admissibility in evidence of statements made by an accused person in answer to a question put by a person in authority in whose custody he is; that should be left to a Court which exercises the revising functions of a general Court of criminal appeal. Clifford v. The King-Emperor, L. R. 40 I. A. 241, referred to. The Privy Council cannot in a criminal matter allow an appeal on grounds that would not have sufficed for granting leave to appeal. Misdirection as such or irregularity as such will not suffice. There must be something which in the particular case deprives the accused of the substance of fair trial and the protection of the law, or which, in general, tends to divert the due and orderly administration of law into a new course, which may be drawn into an evil precedent in future. Ex parte Macrea, [1893] A. C. 346, R. v. Bertrand, 16 L. J. N. S. 752, followed. Ruel v. The Queen, 10 A. C. at p. 675, In re Dillet, 12 A. C. 459, referred to. The jurisdiction of the Privy Council in appeals in criminal matters involves a general consideration of the evidence and of the circumstances of the case in order to place the irregularities complained of, if substantiated, in their proper relation to the whole matter. Held, upon a review of the evidence, that the preponderance of unquestioned over the questioned evidence (the accused's statement to the commanding officer) was so great, that it was impossible, at any rate highly improbable, that the jury was substantially influenced by that evidence. Therefore, the fact that the Judge left the objectionable evidence for the consideration of the jury without any warning to disregard it, did not justify the conclusion that there was any miscarriage of justice, substantial, grave or otherwise. Semble: Where it is highly improbable that evidence improperly admitted can have had any influence on the verdict of the jury, the Appellate Court will be justified in refusing to interfere. Makin v. A.-G. for New South Wales, [1894] A. C. 57, considered. IBRAHIM v. THE KING (1914) . 18 C. W. N. 705

Proceedings before the Magistrate without jurisdiction—Power of High Court to interfere with order directing delivery of fugitive offender—Extradition Act (XV of 1903), ss. 10, 15. S. 15 of the Extradition Act ousts the jurisdiction of the High Court to inquire into the propriety of a warrant issued under Chapter III. Where, however, the order of the Magistrate is sought to be justified under an authority supposed to be derived from the law, but is in fact without jurisdiction, such order is revisable by the Court at the instance of the party whose liberty is affected by it. Emperor v. Huseinally Nazalky, 7 Bom. L. R. 463, In the matter of Ahadyar, Punj. Rec. 45, followed. Attorney-General for Hong-Kong v Kwok-a-Sing, L. R. 5 P. C. 179, referred to. FOREIGN JUDGMENT.

Foreign Judgment, suit on—Jurisdiction of Foreign Court—submission to, by defendants, when defendant carrying on business in foreign territory through agent—No residence thereby—Service of notice of suit on agent, insufficient as against principals outside jurisdiction—Service on principals out of jurisdiction Submission to the jurisdiction of a foreign forum is largely a question of fact in each case or a mixed question of law and fact. Where defendants submitted to the jurisdiction of foreign Courts by giving a power of attorney as abovementioned to an agent and a decision is passed against them after service of summons of the suit on them while they were out of jurisdiction, by order of Court, the defendants are prima facie bound by the judgment, and where no other defence is raised but that of non-submission and non-service of notice both of which were found against, a decree against the defendants in accordance with the foreign judgment must necessarily follow. Persons who carry on business in a foreign country through an agent submit to the jurisdiction of the Courts of that country by giving that agent a power-of-attorney containing very wide powers including right to institute or defend any suits that might be brought against them touching any matters connected with their business or otherwise. A power-of-attorney of this character which presumably is brought to the notice of persons dealing with the firm is evidence that the principals adopted the Court of the place wherein the business is carried on, as the forum before which their claims were to be brought. Bank of Australasia v. Harding, 19 L. J. Q. B. 345, and In re Hainault Forest Act, 9 C. B. Rep. 648 at p. 661 and Bank of Australasia v. Nias, 20 L. J. Q. B. 284, followed. Obiter. A decree obtained in a foreign country against a firm after serving the agent of the firm with notice of the suit while the principals of the firm, who were defendants in the case, were out of its jurisdiction cannot be enforced as a personal decree against them in other Courts. Sahib Thambi v. Hamid, 22 Mad. L. J. 109, followed. Service of suit on an agent of a partnership whose members reside out of jurisdiction, does not create jurisdiction on the ground of residence. Nalla Karuppa Sethu v. Mahomed Ibrahim Sahib, 1 L. On an application under the Indian Press Act, 1910, to set aside the order of forfeiture of a pamphlet made by the Local Government: Held, that the onus was cast on the petitioner to establish that it was impossible for the pamphlet to come within the terms of s. 4 of the Act and that the functions of the High Court were limited under ss. 17 and 19 to considering whether the petitioner had discharged that onus: the High Court had no jurisdiction to pronounce on the wisdom or unwisdom of the order of forfeiture. The direction in s. 12 of the Act ("stating the grounds of its opinion") was mandatory, and it was not a compliance with the direction merely to cite the words of the section invoked without setting out facts on which the opinion was based, but the High Court was debarred by s. 22 from questioning the legality of the forfeiture on that ground. In an enquiry under this Act, the question of the intention of the writer or publisher is not directly material. Per STEPHEN, J.—The omission of the Local Government to comply with the mandatory direction contained in s. 12, did not oust the jurisdiction of the High Court to revise the order of forfeiture on its merits. In re MAHOMED ALI (1913). — Decree, when can be set aside for fraud—Onus of proof—Res judicata—Evidence Act (I of 1872) s. 41. It is beyond question that the jurisdiction to impugn a previous decree for fraud exists. But it is a jurisdiction to be exercised with care and reserve, for it would be highly detrimental to encourage the idea in litigants that the final judgment in a suit is to be merely a prelude to further litigation. The fraud used in obtaining a decree being the principal point in issue, it is necessary to establish it by proof before the propriety of the prior decree can be investigated. One who seeks to impugn a decree passed after contest takes on himself a heavy burden, and it is not satisfied by merely inducing the Court to come to the conclusion that the appreciation of the evidence and the ultimate decision in the former suit was erroneous. Nor can a prior judgment be upset on a mere general allegation of fraud or collusion, it must be shown how, when, where and in what way the fraud was committed. The fraud must be actual, positive fraud,—a meditated and intentional contrivance to keep the parties and the Court in ignorance of the real facts of the case and obtaining that decree by that contrivance. *Shedden v. 1. ———— Suit for possession—Court-fee—Court-Fees Act (VII of 1870) s. 7, cl. v., sub. cls. (a), (c), (d). Where a suit had been brought for recovery of possession of the Ghatwali lands of Rohini and Court-fees had been paid under sub-cl. (a) of cl. v. of s. 7 of the Court-Fees Act on ten times the revenue alleged to be payable, and the Court below held that sub-cl. (c) was applicable and the value of the subject-matter should be deemed to be fifteen times the net profits: Held, that the Ghatwali lands formed part of the estate of the zemindar of Birbhum and the contention that sub-cl. (c) was applicable could not be supported. Kustura Kumari v. Manohar Deo, (1864) W. R. 39, Raja Lilanand v. The Government of Bengal, 6 Moo. I. A. 101, Moonranjan v. Raja Lilanand, 3 W. R. 3 Calc. 251, referred to Held, also, that sub-clause (d) was applicable, as the land in suit formed part of an estate paying revenue to Government but did not constitute a definite share of such estate, nor was it separately assessed with revenue. Consequently, the value of the subject-matter must be deemed to be the market value of the land. CHANDRA NARAYAN SINGH v. ASUTOSH DE (1914). I. L. R. 41 Calc. 812

2. ———— Suit for resumption of land by proprietor—Jaigu, two kinds of—Not necessarily conditional and inalienable—Tenure created by document, evidence necessary to prove incidents of—Fact of descent of land from father to son for a long time, inference to be drawn from—Facts necessary to be proved even if grant originally made subject to performance of service—Limitation—Fact of service being incapable of being enforced, effect of, on service tenure. The plaintiff brought a suit for the possession of two mouzahs within his zemindari against the defendants who were in possession, having acquired them by a series of purchases from the persons who previously held them under the plaintiff. The plaintiff's case was that the mouzahs in question were a jaigu conditional on the performance of Ghatwali services and as such were inalienable and the original holders having alienated them the plaintiff was entitled to resume possession: Held, on the evidence, that the plaintiff had failed to prove that the land was held on a service tenure, whether Ghatwali or otherwise. That a jaigu is not necessarily conditional; it may be unconditional and the mere fact that a tenure is described as a jaigu by no means conclusive and its incidents must be determined from other circumstances. That where the tenure in question was created by a document, the terms on which the land is held, its alienability and its liability to forfeiture must depend on the terms of the particular grant and not on the terms of grants that may have been made to others. Per MOOKERJEE, J.—Assuming that the evidence of terms of grants to other persons was admissible, their probative force in this case was valueless. If it is proved by long uninterrupted usage that the lands have passed from father to son for two or three generations without objection, the inference would be that the grant was a grant of inheritance because the fact of descent from father to son is the strongest possible evidence of hereditary character. Assuming it to be established that performance of service was annexed to the grant, the plaintiff would have to prove whether the grant was a mere grant in lieu of wages or was a grant subject to a burden of service; and if the grant was made as a reward for past service the plaintiff would have to prove that merely because performance of service was annexed to the grant, non-performance thereof entitles him to treat the tenure as forfeited. Further, assuming that performance of service could be claimed and had been improperly refused, the plaintiff would have to establish that the tenure which was held partly at least one condition of payment of rent in cash was liable to forfeiture for mere refusal of performance of service, although the cash rent was being paid. That the Ghatwali service if ever rendered having terminated in 1886 and the suit having been brought in 1905, any possible claim of the plaintiff to enforce performance of the service or to recover possession on the ground of forfeiture by reason of non-performance of service was barred by limitation. That on principle it may well be maintained that where service can no longer be enforced and the tenure consequently ceases to be a service tenure, the land can be alienated. *BHAGWAT BAKSH RAY v. *Acquitted at Criminal trial dismissed without opportunity to defend himself—Notification of dismissal in gazette—Surt for declaration that dismissal without good grounds and in contravention of Government rules and that notification illegal, if lies—Surt against Crown by dismissed servants for wrongful dismissal or libel, if lies—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42 Where plaintiff who held a ministerial post in the Burdwan Collectorate, having been tried under ss. 116, 161, and 466 of the Penal Code and acquitted, was dismissed by the Collector who based his conclusion not only on the materials on the record of the criminal trial but also on matters outside the record, and this was followed by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette to the effect that "R. H. having been dismissed from Government service is debarred from re-employment in any capacity under Government." Held, that since a servant of the Crown is liable to dismissal without cause assigned, the plaintiff was not entitled to sue in a Civil Court for a declaration that there were no good grounds for dismissing him. Voss v. Secretary of State, I. L. R. 33 Calc. 669, King v. Secretary of State, 13 C. L. J. 357 : s. c. 15 C. W. N. 486n, Cursetjee v. Secretary of State, I. L. R. 27 Bom. 189, relied on. GRANT OF LAND.

Grant of land, proof of—Title-deeds, what are—Original grant not forthcoming—Subsequent conveyances through which title derived, if title-deeds—Court refusing to consider them as title-deeds and basing decision on conduct of parties—Error vitiating judgment—Real question not considered—Drainage-channel, dispute between Municipality and private owner as to title to—Boundaries in title-deeds, if may be ignored and title declared up to centre line of channel—Court, if may vary boundaries in title-deeds Plaintiffs who sued for recovery of possession of a strip of land lying between their premises and a public road, including a khal or nullah which lay between the said premises and the road, proved a clear title for over 50 years by a succession of duly registered conveyances, mortgages, reconveyances and other title-deeds and also proved that during that period they had leased portions of the land by leases that themselves were registered. The Judge at the trial accordingly found in the plaintiff's favour, dispossession having taken place within 12 years of the suit. On appeal, the High Court reversed that decision observing that the original grant of the land made by Government about the year 1830 to one Smith to whom plaintiff traced their title, was not forthcoming, and that though in the later conveyances referred to above, the khal appeared to have been treated as a part of the subject of the grant, it was unlikely that Government would include it in their grant without securing the continued maintenance in the public interest of a water channel which existed from time out of memory and played a conspicuous part in the drainage system of the local Municipality; and that in the absence of the original grant none of the other documents referred to in the case could be regarded as "being in any sense title-deeds," they being "obviously insufficient to create title" and being "at most mere assertions of title made from time to time by the predecessors-in-interest of the plaintiffs" In this view, it treated the case as though it was one in which the Court had nothing relevant before it but the conduct of the parties to decide whether the plaintiffs or the defendant Municipality were entitled to the land. Held, affirming the trial Judge, that it was scarcely possible to conceive of a clearer title by deeds than that which was proved by the plaintiffs, and the High Court was wrong in saying that the plaintiffs had no title-deeds—in consequence of which error it never considered the real question in the case. That having regard to the boundary consistently found in the deeds, which was stated to be the public road, it was impossible to hold that the title of the plaintiffs ss. 7 (2), 29 and 30—Guardian appointed by Court incumbrance of minor's property by natural guardian while Court guardian in existence—Encumbrance void—Void deed no consideration for fresh contract on attaining majority. The appointment of a guardian under the Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890) has the effect of extinguishing the rights of the minor's natural guardian to deal with the minor's property. Where the natural guardian with rights thus extinguished but purporting to act as a de facto guardian encumbered the minor's property with his consent: Held, that the encumbrances were null and void. An encumbrance thus created without authority cannot be ratified by the minor on attaining majority. There can be no ratification of a transaction which is void owing to the promisor possessing no contractual capacity at the time. Nor can a void deed form a good consideration for a fresh contract made by the minor on attaining majority. ARUMUGUM CHETTI v DURAISINGA TEVAR (1914) . . . . . I. L. R. 37 Mad. 38 mitakshara school of Hindu law—Purdanashin lady, if may be appointed guardian of person and property of infant—Minor step-mother, if competent to act as guardian of infant adopted son—Considerations which should guide Courts in appointing guardian—Appointment of stranger as guardian of person. One Dayamidhi died leaving a widow S, a daughter and an infant son whom he had adopted during the life-time of his first wife before marrying S. The widow applied to be appointed guardian of the person and property of the infant: the application was opposed by the relations of her husband. The objection was that the widow was herself a minor and was not competent as a purdanashin lady to take effective charge of the person and property of the infant, and that the application in substance was not made bona fide in the best interests of the minor concerned. One of the objectors proposed that G, a pleader, who was related both to the widow and to the infant, should be appointed guardian and the Collector also acting under s. 8 of the Guardians and Wards Act intimated to the District Judge that a guardian should be appointed, and that the other objector was the most suitable person available for appointment as guardian. The District Judge appointed G guardian of the person and property of the infant: Held, that the petition of objection suggesting the appointment of G as guardian was in substance an application by a relative or friend of the minor for the appointment of a guardian within the meaning of s. 8, cl. (b) of the Act, and that the fact that this application was not notified in accordance with s. 11 did not constitute a fatal defect inasmuch as the object of s. 11 is to bring the application to the notice of persons interested in opposing it, and in the present case all the persons interested in the matter of the appointment of a suitable guardian for the minor were present before the Court. That under the Mitakshara school of Hindu law the step-mother is not the heir of her step-son and she cannot be deemed disqualified from being appointed guardian of the step-son on that ground. That it cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule of law that a purdanashin lady should not be appointed guardian of the person and property of her infant son, but in the circumstances of the present case the widow could not be appointed guardian of the property of the infant with any prospect of advantage to the infant. That s. 21 of the Act clearly refers to the guardian of the person of an infant and there is much force in the contention that the section is wide enough to cover the case of an adopted son and the step-mother, even if a minor, is competent to act as guardian of the person of the infant adopted son. That in the matter of choosing a guardian of an infant, the Court must be guided entirely by the interests of the ward and in the circumstances of the present case the step-mother should be appointed guardian of the person of the infant, such appointment being for the benefit of the infant. I, who had been outcasted, died in April 1899, leaving an infant son who in 1914 was about 15 years old, a widow who died in 1913 and his father B who was appointed guardian of the person and property of the infant, in July 1899. B, being unable owing to caste difficulties to keep the infant in his custody acquiesced in the appointment, in December 1905, of the infant's mother as guardian of his person, he himself continuing to be the guardian of the infant's property. The infant and his mother took up residence with the latter's sister F, and before her death she made a will clearly expressing therein her wish that her sister F should after her death be the infant's guardian. On her death B applied for the appointment of a nephew of his as the guardian of the person of the infant, and F also made a similar application. The uncle and not the aunt was appointed by the District Court. On appeal the High Court ascertained on enquiry from B as well as his nominee that neither of them was willing to take the infant into his family circle, and their idea was to place him in charge of a tutor. The infant himself on being examined by the High Court expressed his preference for the aunt. It was found by the District Judge that the education of the infant in her aunt's house had been satisfactory. Held, that it was desirable for the welfare of the minor that the aunt and not the uncle should be appointed guardian of the infant's person, and that her being a purdanashin lady did not make her unfit to be so appointed as it was undesirable that the infant should at his age be removed from the influences of home life. But it was ordered and the aunt gave assurance that the grandfather and the uncle should have free access to the infant. The primary point for consideration in such a case is what in the circumstances of the case is for the welfare of the infant. In appointing a guardian the Court will pay great attention to the wishes of the father or mother of the infant unless such a course would be disadvantageous to the infant and*

Ch. II. Appointment of guardian —Procedure—Evidence—Admissibility of qanungo's report as to fitness of applicant. Three persons applied to the District Judge to be appointed guardian of the person and property of a minor. The District Judge asked the Collector to say which one of the three persons was the fittest to be appointed guardian. A report was called for by the Collector from the gurdawar qanungo, who reported in favour of the respondent. The District Judge, thereupon, appointed him as guardian of the person and property of the minor. Held, that the report of the qanungo could not be treated in law as evidence, and it was the duty of the District Judge to have called upon the different claimants to give evidence and decide on that evidence. *SUBHAG SINGH v. The first Court held the mortgage to be invalid under the provisions of the Gujarat Talukdars Act (Bom. Act VI of 1888) and granted to the plaintiff a personal decree. On the 27th September 1905, the plaintiff appealed to the District Court against the said decree and a notice of the appeal was issued to the Talukdari Settlement Officer. On the 21st November following, the Talukdari Settlement Officer took over the management of the defendant's estate. The notice of the appeal was served on that officer on the 24th of the same month. On the 28th December 1905, the Talukdari Settlement Officer issued a notification under s. 29B of the Gujarat Talukdars Act (Bom. Act VI of 1888 as amended by Bom. Act II of 1905) calling upon claimants to submit their claims within six months of the date of the notification. On the 14th March 1906 the District Court decided the plaintiff's appeal and modified the decree of the first Court by holding that the plaintiff had a valid mortgage upon the property of the defendants. On the 16th of the same month a copy of the appellate decree was sent to the Talukdari Settlement

Officer on the application of his office. In July 1906, that is, after the expiry of the period of six months given under the notification of the 28th December 1905, the Talukdari Settlement Officer as representing the defendants preferred a second appeal to the High Court against the District Court's decree. The second appeal having failed in August 1907, the plaintiff applied to the Talukdari Settlement Officer for a certificate in order that he might proceed with the execution of the decree and he was informed in reply on the 12th August 1908 that as he had not submitted his claim within six months of the date of the publication of the said notification, his claim was deemed to have been duly discharged and no certificate could be granted to him. One month after the date of the receipt of the said reply, the plaintiff applied for execution and both the lower Courts dismissed his application for execution on the ground that the want of a certificate under s. 29E of the Gujarat Talukdars Act (Bom. Act VI of 1888 as amended by Bom. Act II of 1905) was a valid bar to the execution. On second appeal by the plaintiff: Held, that the words "unable" in s. 29B of the Gujarat Talukdars Act (Bom. Act VI of 1888 as amended by Bom. Act II of 1905) was not confined to physical inability on the part of the claimant, that the plaintiff was unable to put forward his real claim at the date of the notification and at the date of the notice he was unable to comply with it within the meaning of s. 29B (3) of the Gujarat Talukdars Act (Bom. Act VI of 1888 as amended by Bom. Act II of 1905), and that the inability of the plaintiff having continued during the period of the six months from the date of the notification, the plaintiff was not barred by s. 29B from prosecuting the proceedings in Court. *MANILAL POPATLAL v. 1. ————— Alienation by widow—Arrangement come to by the widow with consent of then reversioners—Alienation beyond life of widow—Acquiescence in arrangement by persons afterwards suing to set it aside—Iyara, beneficial to estate The question in this case was as to the validity of an iyara for 60 years dated 7th September 1863, which had been executed by a Hindu widow, a padanashin lady aged 42, with the consent of the then reversioners, and which was part of an arrangement of settlement in which all the branches of her husband's family shared. In a suit brought after the death of the widow by the reversionary heirs of her husband to set aside the iyara on the ground that it was an unauthorized interference by the widow with the reversionary interest which she had no power to make: Held (affirming the decision of the High Court), that under the circumstances the arrangement was one dictated by the necessities of the case, and the choice of the term of 60 years was for the benefit of the estate. In accordance with the practice of the Board Their lordships attached great weight to the sanction by expectant reversioners of an alienation of property by a Hindu woman as affording evidence that the alienation was made under circumstances which rendered it lawful and valid. In this case, from 1832 to 1893 when the Court of Wards*, I L R. 2 Mad 128 s.c., L. R. 7 I A. 38, followed. In order to establish that any estate is descendible otherwise than in accordance with the ordinary rules of inheritance of the Hindu law, it must be proved either that it is from its nature impartible and descendible to a single heir, or that it is so impartible and descendible by virtue of a special family custom. Baboo Ganesh Dutt Singh v. Mahawajah Moheshur Singh, 6 Moo I A. 164, 187, followed. The nature of the estate, and existence or otherwise of a special family custom are questions of fact to be determined on the evidence in each case. Mallikarajuna v. Durga, I L R. 13 Mad 406 s.c. L. R. 17 I. A. 134, followed. In a case in which the question was whether the estate of Nidadavole in the Kistna district of the Madras Presidency, which was the subject of a sanad in common form under Madras Regulation XXV of 1802, was partible or impartible, the appellant contended that the grantee had, at and prior to the date of the sanad, an estate of the nature of a raj or principality, and therefore impartible, but he did not rely on any special family custom. Held (on the above principles), that the question whether the prior estate was of the nature of a raj or not was a question of fact to be determined on the evidence, and that where both Courts in India had concurrently found it was not a raj but was partible, those findings ought not, according to the practice of the Board, to be disturbed unless they were shown to be not justified by the evidence.

HINDU LAW—IMPARTIBLE ESTATE—concl'd.

Allen v. Quebec Warehouse Company, L. R. 12 A. C. 101, 104, followed. Their Lordships, after considering the evidence, so far from being so satisfied, were not prepared to say that they should not have come to the same conclusion on that point. The appeal was therefore dismissed. A Hindu of the Sudra caste by his will made the day before his death in 1864, after bequeathing his estates to his two widows gave them the following power of adoption, "You should adopt a boy who is our sannihita (one closely related) whenever it strikes that our samastanam (family) should continue." This power was not exercised whilst both widows were alive, but by the survivor of the two widows in 1890. Held, without deciding the question of the validity or otherwise, under the Hindu law, of a joint power of adoption (for the proper determination of which Their Lordships were of opinion that the materials in this case were insufficient) that the will gave to the widows jointly the power to adopt a son should occasion arise which in their opinion made it desirable to do so: but only one of the widows could receive the boy in adoption so as to step into the position of being his adoptive mother. On a consideration of the surrounding circumstances there was nothing which required or justified their Lordships in interpreting the provisions of the will with regard to the adoption in any special way arising from the fact that the testator was a Hindu; and they must adhere to the plain meaning of the language used. The exercise of the power was vested in the discretion of the joint donees, and it was clearly the law that in such a case the death of one of the donees put an end to the joint power, not by virtue of any peculiar doctrine of English law, or series of English decisions, but flowing from the nature of a joint power. The case was different when the power vested not in specific persons, but in the occupants for the time being of a specified office, such as executors. The words of the will, when properly construed, related to choice and adoption by the two widows acting jointly. Hence the words referred only to the period of time when both widows were living. To hold that one of the widows could adopt a son after the death of the other widow, would be providing for a period of time which the testator left unprovided for, and would be making an addition to his testamentary dispositions which no Court construing a will was entitled to do. *NARASIMHA v. to properties so granted, but there was no evidence of the exclusion of a widow after a partition between members of the family jointly holding properties originally the subject of babuna and schag grants. Held, (1) that the custom excluding widows applied notwithstanding a partition; (2) that the words "auras putra poutradik" in sanads for babuna grants must be construed as subject to the custom excluding widows and not as general words of inheritance. *Durgadut Singh v. 2. ————— Mitakshara—Bandhus—Limit of Heritable Bandhus—Bhinna gotra sapindas. The word "bandhu" has in the system of Mitakshara a distinct and technical meaning and signifies the bhinna-gotra sapindas. The sapinda relationship, upon which the heritable right of collaterals is founded, ceases in the case of bhinna-gotra sapindas with the fifth degree from the common ancestor, further, in order to entitle a bandhu to inherit he must be so related to the deceased person that they are mutually sapindas of one another. The right of inheritance, consequently, does not extend to a deceased person's paternal grandfather's son's son's daughter's daughter's sons, since they are bhinna gotras beyond the fifth degree and the element of mutuality of sapindaship is wanting. *RAM CHANDRA MARTAND WAIKAR v. HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY.

1. ————— Joint Hindu family—Antecedent debt—Mortgage executed by father to complete purchase of immoveable property at an execution sale, but executed after expiry of time for paying in the balance of the price—Property nevertheless remaining with the purchaser. An auction-purchaser of immoveable property paid in the amount required by law as a preliminary deposit, but, being unable to find the remainder of the auction price, borrowed it on the security of a mortgage comprising the property purchased at the auction sale and also some property of the joint family of which the auction purchaser was the head. This mortgage was, however, executed after the expiry of the time fixed by law for payment of the balance of the auction price. The executing Court refused to accept payment of the balance, but the property remained with the purchaser, apparently in virtue of some arrangements with the judgment-debtor by whom ostensibly, the decree was satisfied. Held, in the circumstances above described, that the mortgagee was entitled to recover on his mortgage, and that the sons of the mortgagor could not be heard to plead that the mortgage money was not borrowed to pay an antecedent debt, within the meaning of the Hindu law. *KAPILDEO v. 2. ————— Sale of family property by managing member for the benefit of the family—Sale binding on minor members of the family—The managing member of a joint Hindu family sold certain joint family property for the purpose of providing funds for the marriage of one of the female members of the family and partly of carrying on a shop in which the family was interested. Held, that sale was valid and binding on the minor members of the family, although the vendor was not in the circumstances of the case their natural guardian. Hunoomanpersaud Panday v. Sheo Shankar Ram, I. L. R. 33 All. 71, on the ground that the plaintiffs (appellants) who sued to redeem a mortgage after foreclosure on the plea that they had not been parties to the mortgage suit, were properly and effectively represented in the suit by the managing members of the Hindu joint family of which the plaintiffs were also members, and that in such a case the Court was not bound to set aside the execution proceedings where substantial justice had been done merely because every existing member of the family was not formally a party to the suit. Their Lordships saw no reason to dissent from the Indian decisions which showed that there were occasions, including foreclosure actions, when the managers of a Hindu joint family so effectively represented all the other members that the family as whole was bound and were of opinion that it was clear on the facts of this case, and on the findings of the Court upon them, that it was a case where that principle ought to be applied. There was not the slightest ground for suggesting that the managers of the joint family did not act in every way in the interests of the family itself, and no question arose under s. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), because the mortgagee had no notice of the plaintiff's interests. *SHEO SHANKAR RAM v. Where the managing member of a joint Hindu family consisting of himself and his nephew sold family property for a consideration of which part was found to be binding on the family, and the nephew sued to recover his share of the property from the alienee. Held, that according to equitable principles, in the absence of anything appearing to the contrary, the whole of the consideration for the sale, the valid as well as the invalid portion thereof, must be distributed over the whole of the property sold in proportion to the value of each part. Marappa Gaundam v. Rangasami Gaundam, I. L. R. 23 Mad. 80, dissented from. The proper decree in such a case is to decree to the plaintiff his share of the property sold after division by metes and bounds, on condition that he pays to the defendant a proportionate share of the consideration found binding, together with mesne profits from the day that he deposits the amount into Court, and gives notice thereof, to the defendant. *VADIVELAM v. HINDU LAW—MAINTENANCE.

Maintenance—Daughter-in-law, whether entitled to be maintained, in the absence of ancestral property—Rules of Hindu Law, when binding on Courts—Rule of equity, justice and good conscience A Hindu is under no legal obligation to maintain his widowed daughter-in-law when he has no ancestral assets in his hands. The rules on Hindu Law are binding on the Court only where it is necessary to decide any question regarding succession, inheritance, marriage or caste or any religious usage or institution. Where maintenance is claimed against a person not on the ground that the property coming by inheritance to him is burdened with the maintenance of the person claiming it, but on the ground that the Hindu Law-givers have placed such a duty on him, the Hindu Law, as such, has no obligatory force, and the Court would have to decide the question in accordance with equity, justice and good conscience. Though the rules and precepts of Hindu Law-givers might often be entitled to great respect in deciding the rule of justice in such cases, the weight due to them would depend upon the circumstances of each case including the conditions of modern society, and the conceptions of equity and justice which the Court considers it right to give effect to. Semble. There may be special circumstances which may make it equitable and just in a particular case to uphold the claim for maintenance, in the absence of ancestral property. Khetramani Dasi v Kashinath Das, 2 B. HINDU LAW—PARTITION.

——— Hindu Joint Family—Decrees for partition—Defect in share of last co-sharer—Res judicata—Estoppel—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 13. A decree for partition made in a suit instituted by a member of a joint Hindu family is res judicata as between all co-sharers who are parties to the suit. Where, therefore, in a series of suits all the co-sharers except one have obtained decrees partitioning to them their respective shares by metes and bounds, a co-sharer, who was a party to the suits, is estopped from alleging that the property left unpartitioned is less than the share to which he is entitled. *NALINI KANTA LAHIRI v. HINDU LAW—SHEBAIT.

——— Shebait's right to take a share of surplus income from offerings—Hindu widow succeeding to shebaitship—Sale of right to take surplus offerings by creditor of widow in execution and purchase by himself—Suit by widow to set aside decree and sale as fraudulent—Dismissal of suit as barred under s. 244, Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) if legal—Suit by reversioner for declaration of his right to surplus income—Limitation—Appropriation of income if amounts to dispossession of office, or is act of ordinary trespass only.—Res judicata. One of several co-shebait of a temple who was entitled to receive a  $3\frac{1}{2}$  as. share of the daily surplus income from the offerings to the temple having died, his widow succeeded to the shebaitship. A creditor of the widow, G, obtained a decree against her and caused the  $3\frac{1}{2}$  as. share of the surplus daily offerings to be put up for sale, and himself purchased it, and from 1892 onwards went on appropriating the same.

HINDU LAW—SHEBAIT—concl'd.

The widow's suit to set aside the sale on the ground that both the decree and the sale were fraudulent was dismissed in the view that her remedy was by application under s. 244 of Act XIV of 1882 and not by a suit. The widow died in 1890, and the plaintiff, her husband's reversionary heir, brought this suit in 1910 for a declaration that he was entitled to receive the said  $3\frac{1}{2}$  as. share of the surplus income. The office of the shebait was a hereditary one which could not be held by any one who was not a Brahmin Panda, and the purchaser was not a Brahmin Panda but a man of inferior caste who was not competent to hold the shebait's office or to provide for the performance of the duties of that office. Held, that the appropriation from time to time by the purchaser of the income derivable from the  $3\frac{1}{2}$  as. share did not deprive G or the plaintiff of the possession of the office of the shebait, although that income was receivable by them in right of the shebaitship, and Art. 124 of the Limitation Act had no application to the case. By adversely taking and appropriating to his own use a share of the surplus daily income from the offerings, the purchaser acquired no title and no right to a share of that income. On each occasion upon which he appropriated the share of the surplus income, he committed a fresh actionable wrong in respect of which a suit could be brought against the shebait. The right to the office of the shebait did not arise from or depend upon the receipt of a share of the surplus daily income from the offerings, although the right to receive it was attached to and dependent on the possession of the right to the shebaitship. Held, also, that the defendant's further plea that the suit was barred by res judicata was untenable. *BHATAJI THAKUR v. Where a party relies upon a special custom of a family to take the succession out of the ordinary Hindu Law such custom must be proved to be ancient and continuous. The alleged custom must be very satisfactorily proved by evidence of particular instances so numerous as to justify the Court in finding in favour of the custom. Where subsequently to the institution of the suit, and at the attestation stage of proceedings for preparation of record-of-rights, an Assistant Settlement Officer found upon information gathered from the tehsildar of the Raja's estate that the custom of primogeniture prevailed among Kurmi Mahtos in 82 out of 84 of the villages within the estate and the lower Appellate Court relying upon this judgment found the custom established in the village in suit, the parties being Kurmi Mahtos. Held, that, apart from the circumstance that the fact of the record-of-rights having been completed since the institution of the suit affected the value and importance of the decision of the Settlement Officer, his judgment had been used for a purpose for which it was not admissible in law. That reliance might possibly have been placed upon it to show that the custom was recognised by the revenue authorities, but the findings of the Settlement Officer could not be incorporated into the evidence in the case and treated as practically conclusive between the parties. That whether the Assistant Settlement Officer was competent or not to act upon information gathered from the Raja's tehsildar (which was clearly not legal evidence), that statement of the tahsildar was inadmissible in evidence in the Civil Court. *DURGA CHARAN MAHTO v. 4. Succession to a yati (religious ascetic)—Chela or sisya (disciple or pupil) of Hindu religious ascetic or mendicant—Heirs natural and special under rules of Hindu Law. A Brahmin who had left his home in early life and settled in Burra-bazar in Calcutta, where he lived the life of a Hindu mendicant and practised religious austerities but dressed himself in ordinary cloths and deposited monies with firms in Burra-bazar on interest, and had also acquired property in the Punjab, cannot be taken to have renounced the world and was not a yati or a religious ascetic in the sense of the Hindu Law and on his death his natural heirs under the ordinary rules of the Hindu Law are entitled to succeed to his property. Nor was the plaintiff who claimed to be the heir of the deceased Brahmin as his chela, was his sat-sisya or virtuous pupil in the sense of the Hindu law and was not entitled to succeed against his natural heirs, who have proved themselves to be his legal heirs. GOURI SUNKER BYAS v. I, Art 141. Where one of two daughters of a Hindu, who inherited his properties, died, the survivor did not acquire in the interest enjoyed by the deceased a title of the nature described in Art. 141 of Sch. I of the Limitation Act. Where after both daughters had been kept out of possession for more than 12 years one of them died, and the other by some means or other got back possession Held, that she could not maintain her possession against the person who by 12 years adverse possession had acquired title in the entire property, including the interest of the deceased daughter, to which she succeeded by survivorship and not by inheritance. SACHINDRA KISHORE DEY v. RAJANI KANT CHUCKERBUTTY (1914) . . . . . 18 C. W. N. 904

7. *Mitakshara—“Sapindaship,” definition of, if governs inheritance or marriage only—Bhinnagotra sapindas or bandhus who may succeed as—Limit of five degrees and mutuality to be satisfied—Classes of bandhus enumerated in Mitakshara, if to be extended—Interpretation of rules of Hindu Law—Suit in ejectment—Plaintiff to strictly prove title. Sapinda relationship, according to the Mitakshara, is based not on the presentation of funeral oblations, but on descent from a common ancestor, and in the case of females, also on marriage with descendants from a common ancestor, this relationship ceasing—not merely for purposes of marriage, but generally and therefore for purposes of inheritance also—after the seventh degree from the common ancestor on the father's side and fifth on the mother's. The word “bandhu” in the system of the Mitakshara bears a distinct and technical meaning signifying the bhinnagotra sapindas, and the limitation of the five degrees clearly applies and can only apply to the bhinnagotra sapindas. Besides being within the fifth degree from the common ancestor, a bandhu to be entitled to succeed to the inheritance must be so related to the propositus that they are sapindas to each other. Held, accordingly, that the plaintiffs who were the paternal grand-father's son's son's daughter's daughter's sons of the propositus were not his heirs, both because they were his bhinnagotra beyond the fifth degree and also because the element of mutuality was wanting between them and the propositus. The ruling in Grudari Lal v. The Bengal Government, 12 Moo. I. A. 448, that the enumeration of bandhus who were entitled to succeed is not exhaustive but merely illustrative, hardly warrants the conclu-*

1. Widow—Alienation—Consent of next reversioner—Validity of alienation—Legal necessity need not be proved—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s 17, cl. (d)—Document showing assent—Spes successionis is—Registration not compulsory. A Hindu widow who had inherited property from her husband alienated a portion of it. Her only daughter assented to the alienation a few days after by a writing which was not registered. After the deaths of the widow and the daughter, an heir of the daughter sued to set aside the alienation on the ground that it was not made for legal necessity. The Court found the legal necessity not proved, and decreed the claim. The defendant having appealed—Held, that the alienation having been assented to by the next reversioner, no question of legal necessity could arise. Held, also, that the assent in writing was not compulsorily registrable under s 17, cl. In a suit by a daughter of the alleged adopted son (as one of the reversionary heirs expectant on her mother's death) to set aside the compromise as beyond the competence of a limited owner like her mother: Held, that the compromise was in no sense of the word an alienation by a limited owner of the family property, but a family settlement in which each party takes a share of the family property by virtue of the independent title which is, to that extent, and by way of compromise, admitted by the other parties. *Lala Khunni Lal v. In case of death of an adopted son my said wife shall adopt one after another five sons in succession. If my said wife dies without adopting a son or if such adopted son predeceases her without leaving any male issue, in such case my estate after the death of my said wife shall pass to the sons of my sister, Sreemati Benodini Dassee, who may be living at the time of my death." There were two sons of the testator's sister living at his death. The widow adopted a son who predeceased her unmarried: she then died. On a suit for a construction of the will:—Held, that there was a valid contingent bequest in favour of the testator's nephews, which came into operation in the events that had occurred. A contingent bequest in futuro of the whole estate of a testator is valid and operative under Hindu Law. *Soorjee Money Dassee v. Denobundoo Mullick, 9 Moo. I. A. 123, referred to. 2. ————— Construction of will—Bequests to daughters in equal shares—Subsequent event of death of one daughter leaving male issue—Gift to a class some of whom born out of time. In this case their Lordships of the Judicial Committee upheld the decision, on appeal, of the High Court in Radha Prasad Mullick v. Ranmoni Das, I. L. R. 38 Calc. 188, to the effect that on the death of Premmoni Dassi leaving male issue, the moiety of the testator's estate enjoyed by her did not pass by survivorship to her sister Ranmoni Dasi, but devolved on the sons of Premmoni Dasi, who were in existence at the date of the death of the testator. Their Lordships did not decide the question whether the High Court was wrong in holding that no grandson of the testator born or adopted after his death could take under his will, but said that their decision in the present appeal was not to prejudice the position of Jugal Kishore Sen, the second appellant, if and when such question came before a Court for decision. *RANMONI DASI v. 3. ————— Construction of will—Self-acquired property—Bequest dividing property between testator's two sons with gift over to survivor—Survivorship whether limited to period after his death—Period of distribution A Hindu resident of Surat in the Presidency of Bombay made a will dated 20th August 1899, by which after appointing his two sons "executors, heirs and owners" of the whole of his property (which was self-acquired) and directing them to divide and take equal shares in it with certain exceptions, gave each of them a half share of his estate not speci-finally disposed of by the will. By clause 9 he made the following bequests: "I have divided between and given to my two sons the whole of my property as mentioned above. But should either of these two sons die without having had (leaving) any male issue, the survivor of the said two sons is duly to take the whole of the property appertaining to the share of the deceased son who may have (leave) no male issue (behind him) after undertaking (to defray) the expenses in connection with the maintenance of his widow and marriage of his minor daughter. But under the circumstances the heirs of my deceased son Surajlal shall not get any right whatever." The testator died on 4th July 1901 leaving him surviving his two sons. The elder son died on 2nd January 1903 leaving a widow and a daughter. In a suit by the surviving son to enforce the provisions of cl. 9 of the will, the High Court held that the period of distribution contemplated by the testator was the period of his death at which his time half of his estate became vested in each of his sons absolutely, and that cl. 9 should be read as if the survivorship there provided was limited to survivorship at the death of the testator. Held, (reversing that decision) that the words of cl. 9 were not limited to survivorship during the testator's life, but clearly pointed to survivorship whenever it should occur; and that the surviving son was as such survivor entitled to the estate conveyed by the clause, subject to the obligation imposed upon him of maintaining his brother's widow and daughter. CHUNILAL PARVATISHANKAR v. 4. ——— Will by Hindu—Absolute gift by will to Hindu widow—Property acquired after date of will—Rule of law that will speaks from the death of the testator, before and after the Hindu Wills Act. A Hindu testator executed a will at Benares in which he provided: "Upon my death my wife shall get the lands, jamas, cash money, Government promissory notes, etc., and all other immoveable and moveable properties of which I am in possession and enjoyment save and except the lands and buildings mentioned in the schedule and possess and enjoy the same with the right to transfer by gift or sale, and no one will be entitled to raise any objection regarding any gift or sale to be made by her." The testator after the date of the will purchased a house at Benares of which he was in possession and enjoyment at the time of his death. Held, that the widow did not get merely a widow's estate in the property bequeathed but she took it as an absolute heritable estate. That the Hindu Wills Act did not apply to the property in Benares. That the words "upon my death my wife shall get all my properties of which I am in possession" meant that she was to take all the property which the testator would possess at the time of his death and there was no intestacy so far as the house at Benares was concerned. Section 77 of the Succession Act which is incorporated in the Hindu Wills Act enacts in other words that the will speaks from the death of the testator. The Hindu Wills Act did not vary the mode of construction of wills in this respect nor is it correct to hold that in parts of India, where the Act does not apply, the ordinary rule that the will speaks from the death of the testator does not obtain. JITENDRA KUMAR CHATTOPADHYA v. INAM LANDS.

Regulation XVI of 1827—Bombay Act XI of 1843, s. 2—Summary Settlement Act (Bom. Act II of 1863), s. 12—Hereditary Offices Act (Bom. Act III of 1874)—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 11 and 15—Service inam land—Summary settlement—Alienation—Will—Probate—Decision of Probate Court not to be destroyed by adjudication in a regular suit—Res judicata. The title of the family of Naval Gund Desai came into existence in the time of the Bijapur Monarchs in the 17th century. The Desai was the chief revenue officer of the district under both the Mahomedan rule and the Maratha rule which followed it. The services of the Desai as revenue officer were not made use of during the British rule and he was informed in 1848 by the Collector, under the provisions of s. 2 of Bom. Act XI of 1843, that his services as a revenue officer would not be required of him. As the result of inquiry regarding claims to inam lands, the Desai for the time being was offered the option of commuting his service by payment of an annual sum in the nature of a quit-rent for the lands which he held up to that time on a service tenure, or by occasional payments in the nature of fines, both which classes of payments were styled "Nazarana." In the year 1862 the Government passed a Resolution No. 455, sanctioning the treatment of the Naval Gund Desai's potgee (allowance) as a personal holding continuable to the holder on the terms of the summary settlement and the Desai consequently accepted the settlement on the terms that the commutation payment should be in the nature of an annual "Nazarana" or quit-rent. Lingappa Sar Desai, the last male member of the Desai family, made a will prohibiting his widow from making an adoption and bequeathing the whole of his property to charity. The will was propounded for probate in the District Court of Belgaum and was duly admitted to probate and the grant of the probate was confirmed by the High Court in appeal. The widow of Lingappa made an adoption and she and the adopted son brought the present suit for a declaration that the testator had no power to make a will and to alienate the property which being service inam was inalienable. Held, that the settlement of the Naval Gund Desai of the year 1862 was a settlement valid and binding upon Government, that under the settlement the Desai was no longer liable to render any service in respect of the lands held by him and they were, therefore, no longer held upon service tenure and that the possession of lands as service lands for 200 years in the absence of any evidence as to family custom could not impress them with the character of inalienability. Held, further, that where service has been commuted for a quit-rent, if the donee's descendants should continue to pay the rent, the tenure would be altered from service to rent, that in the case of service land, which in practice at all events was not usually alienated, it would be difficult to establish a family custom which should have any effect, as distinct from the ordinary incidents of a service tenure, and evidence that land had remained in a family for a long period of years and had descended by the rule of primogeniture where it was service land, would be more consistent with the fact of its having been held for service than with the theory of any special family custom and that when service had come to an end the last holder, if he had no sons or co-sharers, could put an end to a tenure based upon family custom, and that the lands might be treated as the property of an ordinary Hindu land owner subject to the payment of the agreed quit-rent to Government and in the absence of co-parceners the owner could dispose of the lands by will. Held, further, that under section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure it was not open to the Court, after the decision of the District Court granting probate of the will, to try the question of the authority of the widow to adopt, which question was bound up with the question of the revocation of the will in the present suit, inasmuch as the issue decided by the Probate Court had conclusively determined between the parties the question of whether or not the testator had revoked his will before death and whether the statement that he had given authority to his widow to adopt expressed his wishes at the time of his death, and inasmuch as the District Court which had tried the probate case was a Court competent to have tried the present case.

Although a decree may have been passed by a Revenue Court, when it is under execution in a Civil Court, proceedings may be stayed by the Civil Court if a suit has been brought for declaration that the decree was obtained by fraud or was made without jurisdiction and for a perpetual injunction, to restrain the decree-holder from executing the decree. In granting a temporary injunction, the Court acts in aid of the legal right so that the property may be preserved in status quo. Where the plaintiffs sued for a declaration that a certain order by the Revenue Court was without jurisdiction, but did not ask for a perpetual injunction, it was not competent to them to ask for a temporary injunction during the pendency of the suit. JITLAL SINGH v. KAMALESWARI PRASAD (1912) . 18 C. W. N. 92

2. ———— temporary or permanent, wrongfully obtained—Suit for damages, if lies—Limitation. No suit lies for damages against a defendant for maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause obtaining a perpetual injunction which has been subsequently dissolved on appeal. A temporary injunction granted in such a suit is ipso facto dissolved by the Court's decree granting a perpetual injunction. In a suit for damages in respect of the temporary injunction, limitation would therefore run from the date when the temporary injunction was dissolved by the decree granting perpetual injunction. Per FLETCHER J. Nothing in the Limitation Act can give a party a right of suit, unless such right exists independent of the Limitation Act. Nand Kumar Shaha v. Gour Sunkur, 13 W. R. 305, is questionable authority in so far as it decides that a plaintiff can maintain a suit for damages against a defendant for maliciously and without probable cause obtaining an interlocutory injunction. An allegation by the plaintiff that the defendants were actuated by malice and that their suit for perpetual injunction ultimately proved unsuccessful when the decree of the High Court in their favour was set aside by His Majesty in Council was not a sufficient allegation of want of reasonable and probable cause. Want of probable cause is not to be inferred because of mere evidence of malice. Turner v. Ambler, 10 Q. B. 252, referred to. Per RICHARDSON, J. S. 95, Civil Procedure Code, seems to contemplate the possibility of a suit being brought to recover compensation in respect of a temporary injunction applied for on insufficient grounds or in a suit instituted without reasonable or probable cause. It is at least doubtful whether such a suit is maintainable in the absence of an undertaking to pay compensation. A party is not liable in damages for procuring an erroneous decision. Dharmo Narain v. Sreemutty Dossee, 18 W. R. 440, referred to. MOHINI MOHAN MISSEER v. SURENDRA NARAYAN SINGH. (1914)

III of 1872), ss. 5 and 6—Sonthal Parganas Justice Regulation (Beng V of 1893), Part II—Civil Procedure Code (XIV of 1882), s. 19* A suit was brought in 1904 in the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Bhagalpur to enforce a mortgage of land, of which a portion was situate in the Sonthal Parganas (a part only of that land having been settled) and a portion in the Bhagalpur district. The mortgage provided that it might be enforced in the Bhagalpur Court.—Held, (1) that all suits in regard to land in the Sonthal Parganas, so long as the land has not been settled and the settlement notified in the Calcutta Gazette, must be brought before the settlement officers or the Courts of officers appointed under the Sonthal Parganas Act, 1855, and the Sonthal Parganas Justice Regulation, 1893, and that the Bhagalpur Court had no jurisdiction in the present suit under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, s. 19, or otherwise, (2) that the Court exercising jurisdiction to enforce the mortgage was bound by the rules as to usury contained in s. 6 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation, 1872 *MAHA PRASAD v. Where, therefore, there is no doubt that two Courts are equally competent to exercise jurisdiction, the High Court has no power under the section. RAJANI BENODE

Though the same individual may be appointed to discharge the duties of Sub-Divisional Officer and Subordinate Judge or Deputy Commissioner and District Judge, and in one set of Courts be subject to the superintendence of this High Court, still the two sets of Courts as institutions or tribunals were entirely distinct from each other. *Abdul Karim v. This may be the case both when a serious demand requiring very attentive consideration had been made on the plaintiffs and reasonable time has not been given to the latter to take advice on the subject and when the cantonment authorities have wholly disregarded the basis on which the rate should have been assessed, by assessing the rate upon the gross income of the plaintiffs. *Kasandas v. Kadri was transferred to the territorial jurisdiction of the District Munsif's Court at Penukonda, from which appeals lay to the District Court at Bellary, whereas appeals from the District Munsif's Court at Madanapalle lay to the District Court at Cuddapah. Held, on the question as to the proper appellate forum in the case, that the appeal from the decree lay to the District Court at Bellary, as the transfer of territorial jurisdiction ipso facto effected a transfer of venue. *SUBBAYYA v. _____ Hindu law, how far applicable to Khojas—Joint family—Presumption as to membership of joint family—Mahomedan law—Spes successions, transfer of—Family arrangement in the nature of a partition, reasonableness of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Articles 91 and 127. In the year 1879 one D, a Khoja, was living at Malad in the Thana District, where he carried on a small business, together with, inter alia, his mother and unmarried daughter, his sons A and I and A's wife and A's son J. In that year it was agreed that A should separate from the rest of the family and should receive what was considered to be his share in the family property. The family property was valued at Rs. 4,500 and Rs. 900 or the fifth part of it was made over to A or the members of his family as his share, namely, Rs. 400 in cash given to A, ornaments of the value of Rs. 200 given to A's wife and a house of the value of Rs. 300 settled on J. The terms of this transaction were contained in a deed of release dated the 13th of February 1879, by which deed A released all claims of himself and his wife and son against the family and family property. Subsequently I by himself or assisted by his father D continued to carry on business and acquired a considerable amount of property. After the release, A lived in the house given by the release to his son J and some 12 or 13 years after the release another son was born to A, namely X. J and X at times lived with their grandfather D and their uncle I and received assistance from them in various ways, in particular their marriage and other

ceremonies being performed from D's house and at his expense. J and X were at times also employed by D and I in their business for wages. In the year 1902, D made a gift to I of his property at Malad reserving about Rs. 7,000 to himself. J and X filed the present suit. In their plaint they stated that the release of the 13th of February 1879 was not valid or binding as having been obtained by fraud, undue influence, etc., and also because it had not been acted upon. They prayed, inter alia, for a declaration that the above-mentioned business and properties were the properties and business of an undivided family, that the rights of the plaintiffs and defendants therein might be ascertained and declared, that the properties might be partitioned between the plaintiffs and defendants in accordance with their interests so ascertained and declared, that all necessary accounts might be taken, that a receiver might be appointed, that D and I might be restrained by injunction from alienating the properties, that it might be declared that the release of the 13th of February 1879 was not valid and binding on the plaintiffs and A and that it might be declared that the deed of gift of the 8th of October 1902 was void and of no effect as against the interests of the plaintiffs and other members of the joint family. D and I filed written statements denying the allegations as to fraud, etc., and asserting that the release of the 13th of February 1879 had been acted on. It was assumed in the pleadings that the parties were governed by the Hindu law of the joint family. Held, that, as to the law governing Khojas the proper way to approach the question was as follows:—(i) Where Mahomedans were concerned the invariable and general presumption was that they were governed by the Mahomedan law and usage and that it lay on a party setting up a custom in derogation of that law to prove it strictly. (ii) But that in matter of simple succession and inheritance it was to be taken as established that succession and inheritance among Khojas and Memons were governed by Hindu law "as applied to separate and self-acquired property." Held, accordingly, that the plaint disclosed no cause of action at all unless the plaintiffs had alleged and were prepared to prove two or three salient features of the Hindu law of the joint family as customs adopted by the Khojas of Bombay as the question involved in the suit did not really arise on a plea of simple succession and inheritance and that there had been no allegation of custom and no attempt had been made to prove a custom and in any case many of the prayers in the plaint were on the face of them bad as the plaintiffs could not have the declaration asked for as to the nature of the property and their rights therein not sue for partition. Held, further, that assuming this to have been a joint family under Hindu law when A passed the release of the 13th of February 1879, he went out of the family and purported to take out of it his wife and infant son, that the plaintiffs could not dispose of the release as void under Mahomedan law as the mere transfer of a successionis as under Mahomedan law the plaintiffs had no cause of action and that X, having been born after his father A had gone out of the family, from the point of view of members of the joint family did not exist. Held, further, that it could not be inferred from the facts that their grandfather and uncle had kept the plaintiffs, educated them, and got them married, etc., that the plaintiffs thus became members of a joint family, that what was to be looked at in estimating the reasonableness of such family arrangements as the release of the 13th of February 1879 (under Hindu law) was not the state of the family fortune on the day it was called in question but at the time it was made and that if there was then an adequate motive the Court would not scrutinize too closely the adequateness of the consideration. Ramdas v. Chabildas, 12 Bom. L. R. 621, applied. Semble: Where the existence of a document if valid and binding on a party would defeat his suit to recover possession of any property, he must sue under Article 91 of the Limitation Act for the cancellation of the document and that if he does not take steps in time to remove what else will be a bar to the success of his suit, he cannot surmount that bar during the trial by exactly the attack he ought to have made on it directly and within the shorter period allowed by the law of limitation. Semble: Article 127 of the Limitation Act does not apply to Mahomedans as such or to Khojas and Memons except where the property is shown to have gone through one unimpaired descent and thereafter to have been held by the survivors as joint family property. Wasantrao v. Anandrao, 6 Bom. L. R. 925, considered. Semble: also, since no Khoja son can enforce a partition it follows that he cannot be a co-sharer. Ahmedbhoi Hubibbhoi v. Cassumbhoi Ahmedbhoi, I. L. The defendant resigned his occupancy rights in a khoti takshim to the plaintiff, who was one of the khots, in the year 1905. Synchronously with this resignation a lease for a term of five years was executed and the defendant attorned to the plaintiff in respect of the lands. The defendant's resignation was accompanied by consideration. After the expiration of the term of the lease, the plaintiff sued to recover possession of the lands and the defendant impugned the plaintiff's title. Held, dismissing the suit for recovery of possession, that the foundation of the plaintiff's title in 1905 was illegal, that the resignation and lease having been made at the same time and having formed part of what was virtually one transaction, if the transfer which the resignation was held to amount to were tainted with any illegality as being in contravention of the statute law, namely, the Khoti Settlement Act (Bom. Act I of 1880), the letting must go with it, that under section 9 of the said Act the consent of the khots including the plaintiff was necessary to the validity of the transfer and it was not shown that such consent had been obtained, that accordingly the conditions stated in s 9 being not complied with there was no transfer under that section, nor could the transaction be regarded as a resignation under s. 10 of the said Act because it was accompanied by consideration. Held, further, that in the case of a contract where both the parties were in pari delicto the plaintiff was not entitled to estop the defendant from showing the illegality of his title, nor was there any estoppel against any Act of Parliament or in India against an Act of the Legislature. SHRIDHAR BALKRISHNA v. Where in respect of a holding entered in the record-of-rights as “belagan” the District Judge presumed, from evidence of long and uninterrupted possession without payment of rent, a grant of land under conditions which make it rent-free: Held, that the District Judge was entitled to make that presumption and his determination in no way conflicted with the entry in the record-of-rights. There can be a rent-free grant of permanently settled land and such a grant cannot be treated as a nullity by the grantor or his heirs or by any person claiming through him. Mohamed Akil v. Adverse possession by tenant—Suit for declaration of title to jalkar and injunction against defendants—Plaintiff's title based on durputni lease—Defendants' possession as tenants for 12 years previous to lease—Knowledge, if necessary to constitute possession adverse. Where the plaintiff sued for a declaration of his title to a certain jalkar and for an injunction prohibiting the defendants from catching fish in that jalkar and it was admitted that the plaintiff was entitled to an eight annas share of the jalkar and the plaintiff claimed the other eight annas share under a durputni lease granted to them by one R, the putnidar of the said eight annas share, who, it was found, had no possession at the time of granting the lease to the plaintiffs and no knowledge as to who was in actual possession and the defendants proved possession as tenants for 12 years previous to the granting of the lease by R to the plaintiffs: Held, that the defendants by their possession gained title as against all the world and this held good as against the person who was in fact their landlord, though he did not know, and the defendants' possession was a good answer to the plaintiffs' claim which was equivalent to a claim for khas possession. *Ishan Chandra v. ## 3 LEASE

1. Lease of land for mining coal—Description in kabulyat given in bighas, and boundaries specified in schedule—Area of land delivered found less than area stated in kabulyat—Claim to abatement of rent in respect of deficiency—Onus on tenant to prove right to reduction of rent—Construction of kabulyat—Negotiations leading to contract and other extraneous evidence inadmissible in evidence. This appeal arose out of a suit for Rs. 23,868 as arrears of rent, cesses and interest under a mokarari mauzasi kabulyat dated 3rd December 1894 (1301) executed by the respondent on behalf of himself and his co-sharers (the other respondents) in favour of the predecessor in title of the appellant, for the right of coal mining under "400 bighas of land" in mauzah Dobari in Manbhumi (the boundaries of the area leased being specified in a schedule to the kabulyat) at a rental of Rs. 2,800 a year which the kabulyat stated "shall never on any account be varied." The land within the boundaries specified in the schedule was not measured at any time, or if measured it was not shown what the measurement was in bighas. The defence, so far as material, was mainly that the respondents had been given possession of the mining rights under an area less than 400 bighas of land, and were therefore entitled to an abatement of the rent in respect of the deficiency, that by an injunction made in 1902 in a suit brought by the appellant, the rights of the respondents to work coal underneath the land leased to them was restricted to an area of 275 bighas, and they tendered rent at a reduced rate which the appellant refused to accept. The rent had been reduced in 1898 (1305) by the original lessor on the ground that the coal taken out was of inferior quality, and rent had been paid at the reduced rate for 2 years; but the document witnessing the reduction had not been registered, and was therefore inadmissible in evidence. On the construction of the kabulyat the appellant contended that the respondents were entitled only to the coal underneath such quantity of land as was contained within the boundaries given in the schedule; and the contention of the respondents was that they were entitled to the coal underneath the full quantity of 400 bighas of land. Both Courts below found that 400 bighas of land had been demised; but the Subordinate Judge, while finding that the respondents were in possession of only 346 bighas, held that they were not entitled to any abatement of rent in respect of the deficiency. The High Court disregarded the description of the land by boundaries, but found on the evidence in the former suit that the respondents had only been in possession of 275 bighas, and held that they were entitled to a proportionate abatement of the rent fixed by the kabulyat. Held (reversing the decrees of the Courts in India), that the question as to what had been demised in 1894 turned on the true construction of the kabulyat which could not be varied by extraneous evidence as to the negotiations which led up to the contract, or by evidence showing that within the boundaries specified in the kabulyat there was not 400 bighas of land. Held, further, that there was no reliable and admissible evidence to prove that the original lessor ever bound himself permanently to accept a reduced rent; and the fact that he did so for some years was consistent with the reduction having been a mere voluntary and temporary abatement. It was for the respondents to make out a case for the abatement of the rent, but they had not proved how many bighas were contained in the area of mauzah Dobari within the boundaries specified in the schedule to the kabulyat, nor had they proved the area in bighas within those boundaries of which they were put in possession. They had not proved, otherwise than by the action of the Subordinate Judge on the former suit in granting an injunction in the form in which it was granted, and by their neglect to appeal from that decree, that they had been deprived of the right to work any coal which otherwise they would have been entitled to work under the demise; and the injunction as granted gave them no right which they could enforce by suit, or of which they could avail themselves as a defence to a suit for the fixed rent, they had in fact wholly failed to prove any facts which would entitle them to any abatement of the rent fixed by the kabulyat. The tenders based on a reduced rent were therefore not good, and were ineffective; and the appellant was entitled to a decree for the amount sued for, less the costs of the former suit. *DURGA PRASAD SINGH v. to person other than landlord—Purchase of tenure by stranger at sale in execution of money-decree—Purchaser if acquires good title—Landlord if can sue original tenants for rent and obtain decree binding on tenure The plaintiff purchased at an execution sale the right, title and interest of the tenants in a nim-houla tenure. Notwithstanding the purchase by the plaintiff which was duly notified to the landlord, the latter brought a suit for rent against the tenants and obtained a decree. The plaintiff brought a suit for declaration that this decree was not binding on him and that the tenure in his hands was not liable to be sold in execution thereof. The lease which created the nim-houla provided as follows: "Let it be known that if you find it necessary to transfer the nim-houla tenure, you will transfer it to me for proper price. You will not be at liberty to transfer it to any person other than myself. If you transfer it to any other person, such transfer will be invalid." Held, that there being no covenant against involuntary alienations and no covenant for re-entry, the plaintiff acquired a good title by his purchase and consequently it was not open to the landlord to sue the original tenants with a view to obtain a decree whereby he could proceed against the tenure in the hands of the plaintiff. *PROMODE RANJAN GHOSH v. 4. RENT.

1. ——— Owner of patni taluk within zamindari—Diluvion caused by tidal river—Right to abatement of rent under patni lease—Diluviated land part of taluk re-forming in situ—Claim by zamindars and patnidar—Bengal Act VIII of 1869, s. 19—Limitation by adverse possession—Failure to show relinquishment of submerged land by patnidar. The appellants were owners of a zamindari within which was a patni taluk created in 1837 by one of the predecessors in title of the appellants: this taluk was owned by the first respondent as patnidar, and a strong tidal river flowed close to the boundaries of the taluk. The patni lease covenanted that "if the land be found to be more in measurement by nal prevalent according to the custom of the pargana, I shall separately pay the rent thereof at this rate; if it be found to be less I shall get remission therefor." In 1843 the appellants obtained a decree in the Revenue Court for increased rent on the ground that additional land was found on measurement to be in the patnidars' possession. In 1889 part of the taluk having been washed away by the river, the respondent obtained a proportionate abatement of the rent. Subsequently the land so diluviated re-formed in situ, whereupon both parties claimed it, and each party attempted to exercise rights of ownership as evidence of adverse possession against the other: but it was found that neither party had proved sufficient adverse possession to give him a title. In 1906 the appellants sued for a declaration of their title to khas possession of the land re-formed on the ground that it was part of their zamindari; or in the alternative were entitled to receive a proper rent for it. The respondents pleaded that the land was an accretion to their taluk, and that the appellants were only entitled to rent and not to khas possession. Held, that the High Court whilst rightly holding that the land re-formed did not come within the provisions of s. 4 of Regulation XI of 1825, and that it could not be claimed by either party as an accretion to his lands, had laid too much stress on the terms of the lease, and the evidence of intention deducible from the proceedings in respect of additional rent and abatement of rent. There was nothing to show that by claiming or accepting remission of rent in respect of land washed away from time to time by the action of the river, the respondent abandoned or agreed to abandon his rights to such land on its re-formation in situ. The diluviated land formed part of a permanent heritable and transferable tenure, and until it could be established that the holder of the tenure had abandoned his right to the submerged land, it remained intact. Hemnath Dutt v. Ashgur Sindar, I. L. R. 4 Calc. 894, dissented from. Mazhar Rar v. Ramgat Singh, I. L. R. 18 All. 290, followed. ARUN CHANDRA SINGH v. KAMINI KUMAR (1913) . . . I. L. R. 41 Calc. 683

2. ——— Decree for rent—Execution of decree—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 65, 66, 148(h)—Bengal Regulation (VIII of 1819), ss. 8, 11, 13, sub-ss. (2) and (4)—Right to bring tenure to sale in execution of decree for arrears of rent—Assignees of decree. A zamindar having parted with all his interest in the zamindari, brought a suit for arrears of rent against the patnidar, and obtained a decree. Further arrears became due to recover which the purchaser of the zamindari took proceedings under Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819 (relating to patni tenures), and the darpatnidar deposited the amount of the arrears under s. 13 of the Regulation and was put into possession of the patni tenure. In a suit brought by him for a declaration that he had a first charge on the patni for the sum deposited by him, and for an injunction to restrain the defendants (persons to whom the ex-zamindar had assigned amongst other property, the decree for arrears of rent) from executing the decree: Held (reversing the decision of the High Court), that the decree was not one for rent within the meaning of s. 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Ss. 65 and 66 taken together cover practically the remedies provided by law for the landlord to recover arrears of rent. One section is the exact corollary of the other. The right to proceed to sale in one case, in the other to eject, is dependent on the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant at the time when the remedy provided by law is sought to be enforced. By S. 148(h) of the Act the right to apply for the execution of a decree for arrears of rent was attached to the status of decree-holder quâ landlord. The prohibition contained in that section referred to decrees obtained by the landlord under s. 65, and the right to bring the tenure to sale exists only so long as the relationship of landlord and tenant exists, and appertains exclusively to the landlord. A person, therefore, to whom rents are due and who obtains a decree for them after he has parted with the property in which the tenancy is situate, has no such right. Khetra Pal Singh v. Kirtarikhmoni Dassi, I. L. R. 33 Calc. 566, distinguished. Held, also, that the plaintiff by his deposit of the arrears for which the patni tenure was advertised for sale at the instance of the purchaser of the zamindari, acquired the special lien expressly created by Regulation VIII of 1819, arising not under any implication of law, but under the express directions and declarations contained in ss. 6, 11, 13, and 13 sub-s. (2) of the Regulation; and the Bengal Tenancy Act is declared by s. 195 of that Act not to affect any enactment relating to patni tenures, "so far as it relates to those tenures." FORBES v. MAHARAJ BAHADUR SINGH (1914). . . . I. L. R. 41 Calc. 926

3. ———— Abatement, tenant's claim of—Onus—Tenant deprived of a portion of land by form of injunction, erroneously decreed, in landlord's suit to restrain encroachment by tenant on khas lands—Agreement to take reduced rent, not registered, if admissible—Want of consideration. The receipt by the landlord of a reduced rent for some years, in the absence of reliable and admissible evidence to prove such an agreement, was held to be consistent with the reduction having been a mere voluntary and temporary abatement. Where after a permanent lease had been executed, the landlord sued the tenant for alleged wrongful entry upon his khas land by the tenant and prayed for an injunction to restrain the tenant from committing such trespass, but the Court instead of granting the injunction as prayed decreed that the tenant be restrained from dealing with property lying outside the demised mouzah "as delineated in the map prepared by the Civil Court Amin," and the tenant preferred no appeal against the decree. Held, that, it was not intended by that decree to reduce the area of the land which the tenant was entitled to deal with under his lease, and in a suit for arrears of rent he could not claim an abatement of the rent if in fact the injunction, which was granted in wider terms than were called for, had that effect, as he did not avail himself of his remedy by way of appeal and submitted to the decree. Where the tenant tendered a reduced amount of rent and interest, on the plea that owing to his having not been given possession of the entire area demised, he was entitled to an abatement of rent but no ground was made out by the tenant for such abatement, the tender was not a good tender. It is for the tenant to make out a case, if he has one, for an abatement of the fixed rent. DURGA PRASAD SINGH v. RAJENDRA NARAYAN BAGCHI (1913). . . . 18 C. W. N. 66

4. ———— Eviction by title paramount, if good defence to rent suit—Tenant induced to attorn to superior landlord by offer of reduced rent. Eviction by title paramount would be a good defence to a suit for rent, if the party evicting having a good title, the tenant quitted against his will. The same result would follow where the party seeking to evict should claim the rent and the tenant on such notice attorn to him. Hill v. Saunders, 4 B. & C. 529, followed. This doctrine of quasi eviction should apply in this country but it does not apply to a case where the tenant is induced to attorn to the superior landlord by an offer to accept reduced rent. *NOORJAN SARDAR v. 5. ———— Rent, abatement of—Construction of kabuliya. In a putni kabuliya there was the following provision for abatement of rent . . . . "If you obtain remission in the sudder jama from the Government in respect of lands taken up for culverts, embankments or roads, I shall also get from you reduction of jama on account of all the said remissions in the jama of this putni." Held, on a construction of the agreement, that the putnidar was to get the same amount of remission which the zamindar would get in the Government revenue. Held, also, that the words "culverts, embankments or roads" in the agreement were illustrative and not exhaustive. *HIRENDRA NATH DUTT v. Unexpired term of lease bequeathed to widow—Widow holding over on expiry of lease—Grant by Government to widow of property, the subject of the lease—Nature of estate taken by widow. A lease of a village in Kumaun was granted by the Government in 1844 for a period of twenty years. The widow, however, continued in possession of the village down to 1871, when the Government granted her proprietary interest in it, which she subsequently sold. Held, on suit for possession after the death of the widow and her daughter by a person claiming as reversioner to the original lessee, that the estate which the widow acquired in 1871 as the grantee of the Government was her own personal estate and not merely an enlargement of the leasehold estate of her husband, and that the plaintiff had consequently no right to succeed. *RAJ KISHORE DAS v. s. 13—Gross misconduct—Wilful neglect of pleader to appear after receipt of full fees—"Actionable claim" purchased of, by a pleader—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 3 and 136—Pleader engaging in trade without intimating to the High Court—Rule 27 of the Rules under Legal Practitioners Act. Held by the Full Bench: The judgment and evidence given in a civil suit, filed by a party, against his pleader, for refund of fees on account of non-appearance of the pleader are admissible, as evidence in an enquiry instituted for the purpose against the pleader, under the Legal Practitioners Act; but, they are not conclusive proof in the enquiry. Wilful neglect by a pleader to appear without any justification whatever, and conduct a case after receipt of full fees, is unprofessional conduct for which the pleader could be punished under s. 13 of the Legal Practitioners Act. Per BENSON (OFFG C. J.) and SUNDARA AYYAR, J.—A false defence of non-receipt of fees is an aggravation of the misconduct in failing to appear. Per SUNDARA AYYAR, J.—The judgment and the evidence in the civil suit, are relevant under s. 11 of the Evidence Act. Wilful neglect to appear, after receipt of full fees, is worse than gross negligence, for which also a pleader might be punished and it amounts to fraudulent conduct on the part of the pleader. Obiter: SANKARAN NAIR, J.—A vakil is bound to appear and conduct his case even if the fee or any portion thereof remains unpaid, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary or at least notice to the client in sufficient time to enable him to make other arrangements. Obiter: SUNDARA AYYAR, J.—In the absence of an agreement that the fee promised should be previously paid, it is, to say the least, very doubtful, whether a plea of non-payment of part of the fee, would be of any avail. Held, by the Full Bench, that a claim is none the less an "actionable claim" within the meaning of s. 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, because a suit had been instituted thereon. Purchase of an "actionable claim" by a pleader, is prohibited by s. 136 of the Transfer of Property Act, and a pleader is guilty of unprofessional conduct in such a purchase within the meaning of s. 13 of the Legal Practitioners Act. It is gross misconduct on the part of the pleader, if the purchase be speculative, especially if it is made, just when the claim is ripe for judgment and when the seller is his own client unable to judge of the result of the suit. Held, also, by the Full Bench: Whether the purchase of an "actionable claim" by a pleader, will amount to gross misconduct on the part of the pleader, is a question to be determined on the particular facts of each case. Per SUNDARA AYYAR, J.—The onus is on the pleader who purchases an "actionable claim," to show that in the circumstances of the particular case, it does not amount to gross misconduct. Held, by the Full Bench: A pleader who engages himself in trade but does not intimate the same to the High Court, as required by r. 27 of the Rules framed by the High Court under the Legal Practitioners Act, is guilty of misconduct, within the meaning of the s. 13 of the Act. Their Lordships of the Full Bench, considered it unnecessary to inflict any punishment for such violation of the rules, in the absence of a specific charge to that effect. Obiter: SUNDARA AYYAR J. A pleader who merely supervises a trade even if only during his leisure hours and holidays must be said to be personally carrying on the trade even if the ordinary routine work of the trade is carried on by means of servant and agent. If all the members of a family of whom the pleader is one, enter into a partnership and carry on a family-trade as partners, then all of them must be regarded as carrying on the trade. It is otherwise, if some members alone of the joint family carry on the family-trade, in which the pleader has no direct concern so far as the outside world is concerned, though, as between the members inter se all of them might be responsible for the result of the trade. Obiter: SANKARAN NAIR, J.—In the circumstances of this country and under the present conditions of the legal profession, it may be inexpedient and unnecessary for the High Court, to declare that a pleader should not follow any trade or business and that it is unprofessional for him to do so. *MUNI REDDI v. 1. ————— Sebat—Share of surplus offerings—Alienation by widow—Suit to recover—Hereditary office—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Arts. 124 and 140. In 1910, the sebat of a Hindu temple instituted a suit for a declaration that he was entitled to a 3 annas 6 pies share in the daily surplus offerings to the idol, that share being attached to the office. The defendant had been in possession of the share since 1892, having bought upon its sale in execution of a decree obtained by him against the widow of a former sebat. She died in 1900. The defendant was precluded by his caste from holding the office of sebat: Held, that the suit was not to recover an hereditary office, within the meaning of the Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 124, and that it was not barred since a fresh actionable wrong arose upon each occasion when the defendant received the share in question. JALANDHAR THAKUR v. JHARULA DAS (1914) . . . I. L. —Excuse of delay—Time taken up in proceedings before a conciliator—Non-granting of certificate owing to Government ending the conciliation system. The plaintiff advanced money on a bond which became due on the 31st May 1910. He applied to the conciliator for a certificate on the 28th March 1913, but before the certificate could be had Government abolished the conciliation system with effect from the 30th May 1913. The plaintiff filed a suit to recover the money on the 30th June 1913; and he claimed to exclude from the period of limitation the time between the 28th March and 30th May 1913: Held, that though the plaintiff was not entitled to deduct the time from 28th March to 30th May 1913, he was entitled to such extension of time as might be necessary to give him a reasonable opportunity to enable him to file the suit in time. *SATYABHAMBABAI v. He applied for a conciliator's certificate on the 13th February 1913 and obtained it on the 26th April 1913. From the 28th April to the 8th June 1913 the Court was closed for the Summer Vacation. In the meanwhile, Government abolished the conciliation system with effect from the 30th May 1913. The plaintiff filed the present suit to recover the money on the 9th June 1914 and claimed to exclude the time taken up in the conciliation proceedings: Held, that the suit, though filed on the 9th June 1913 when the conciliation system was abolished, was substantially one to which the provisions of Ch. VI of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act were applicable throughout the period of limitation which expired during the vacation, and the plaintiff was, therefore, entitled to deduct the period between his application and the grant of the certificate. Held, also, that assuming that s. 48 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists Relief Act did not apply, as the plaintiff's suit would be strictly in time up to a certain date during the vacation, on which day he could not file it as the Court was closed, he could file it on the re-opening of the Court under s. 4 of the Limitation Act. Held, further, that when the law had created a limitation, and the party had been disabled from conforming to that limitation without any default in him, and he had no remedy

s. 4, Sch. V—Dismissal of appeal for want of prosecution without order made in the appeal.* Under r. V of the Order in Council of 15th June, 1853, (1) where for a period specified in the order the appellant to His Majesty in Council, or his agent, has not taken any effectual steps for the prosecution of the appeal, it stands dismissed without further order. Such a dismissal for want of prosecution is not the final decree of an Appellate Court within the meaning of Art. 179, cl. 2, of Sch. II of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, from which a period of limitation can be reckoned under that article in support of an application for execution of a decree. In this case the application for execution having been made more than three years after the decree of the High Court was therefore barred by lapse of time, and should have been dismissed on that ground under s. 4 of the Limitation Act. *BATUK NATH v. Sch. II, Arts. 120, 132.—Suit by second mortgagee for surplus proceeds after sale by first mortgagee—Sale-proceeds wrongfully withdrawn from Court in execution of decree on later mortgage suit for money—Suit to enforce mortgage—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, ss. 244 and 295. cl.(c). Certain immoveable property was mortgaged on 21st May 1887 to the appellants, and on 19th September 1887 the same property was mortgaged by the same mortgagor to the respondents (the mortgage money being repayable on the 18th November 1888), and again on 19th July 1889 to the appellants. On 8th October 1890 the appellants, in a suit in which the respondents though made parties did not appear, obtained a decree on their mortgage of 21st May 1887 in execution of which the mortgaged property was sold; and after satisfying the decree the sale-proceeds were deposited in Court. On 14th January 1891 the appellants obtained a decree on their mortgage of 19th July 1889 in a suit to which they did not make the respondents parties; and in execution of that decree, without giving any notice to the respondents, they drew out of Court the surplus proceeds of the former sale, though they were aware of the respondents' mortgage of 19th September 1887, and of its priority to their own. In a suit brought on 17th November 1900 by the respondents against the appellants for the surplus sale-proceeds, it was contended that the suit was one for money governed by Art. 120 of Schedule II of the Limitation Act of 1877, and barred as not having been brought within 6 years from the 18th November 1888 when the money became due. Held (affirming the decision of a majority of a Bench of the High Court), that the suit was one "to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property" within the meaning of Art. 132 of Schedule II of the Act, and having been brought within 12 years from the date when the money became payable was not barred by limitation. The surplus sale-proceeds represented the security which the respondents had under their mortgage of 19th September 1887, and did not cease to represent that security by the fact of the appellants having wrongfully withdrawn the surplus sale-proceeds from the Court where they were deposited. Under the circumstances of the case section 295, clause (c) of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, was not applicable. BARHAMDEO PRASAD v. TARA CHAND (1913)

Sch. II, Art. 148.—Limitation—Suit for redemption—Mortgage by conditional sale—Specified period for redemption—Payment of mortgage debt within specified time—Accrual of cause of action. Ordinarily, and in the absence of a special condition entitling the mortgagor to redeem during the term for which the mortgage is created, the right of redemption can only arise on the expiration of the specified period. But there is nothing in law to prevent the parties from making a provision that the mortgagor may discharge the debt within the specified period, and take back the property. Such a provision is usually to the advantage of the mortgagor. The father of the plaintiff executed a mortgage by way of conditional sale on the 6th of January, 1830, in respect of 12 villages in favour of the predecessor in title of the principal defendant, and there was at the time of execution a contemporaneous agreement "that the sale would be cancelled on payment of the amount of consideration in nine years." In a suit brought on the 6th of January, 1899, for redemption the High Court held on the construction of the contract that the suit was not barred, as the right to redeem only arose on the expiry of the nine years. Held, by the Judicial Committee, that the case must be decided, not on the construction of the contract, but on the case made by the plaintiff on the pleadings, which was that she was entitled under the agreement to redeem the property within the period of nine years, and by the statement of account produced with the plaint which showed that the mortgage debt was actually satisfied under the contract on the 4th of September, 1838 ; and that being so, the right to redeem then accrued, and the whole suit was therefore barred, not having been brought within 60 years from that date [Art 148 of schedule II of the Limitation Act, XV of 1877] BAKHATAWEE BEGAM v HUSAINI KHANUM (1914) . . . . . I. On further appeal by the appellant: Held, that there being no sufficient cause as a matter of law for extending the time under section 5 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), there was no objection to the question being entertained after the provisional admission of the appeal to the file in the absence of the respondent. Held, further, that the appeal against the order dismissing the appeal was a second appeal and not a first appeal because it was an appeal against the decree of an Appellate Court. *RAOJI v. Where a decree on a bond was passed on 5th August 1904, in favour of the plaintiffs, some of whom were minors, the suit having been filed on 21st June 1904 through their manager and ammukhtear, who was appointed Receiver by the District Judge on 15th September, 1905, in a suit between the plaintiffs and was put in charge of the whole business of the plaintiffs with all its "pending and impending litigation," and a Receiver was in charge from that time onwards, and no steps were taken in execution of the decree until 11th May, 1910 when one of the minors applied for execution alleging that he had attained majority on 5th June 1907. Held, that the application for execution was barred by limitation. That the decretal debt vested in the Receiver when he was appointed on 15th September 1905, and from that date onwards he was competent to give a discharge; when once the debt had vested in him the minority of one or more of the decree-holders ceased to have any importance for the rights of the minor no less than the rights of the majors were all absorbed by the Receiver. *Jagat Tarini Dasi v. The mukhtiar was empowered to manage the estate as he thought fit including the power of sale and settle claims as K himself could have done during his life-time. In connection with the registration of the mukhtiar-nama, the Sub-Registrar examined the widows in the family including the widow of K, the manager, who had died in the meanwhile, and the deed was registered as the widows admitted the same. Subsequently the mukhtiar sold mulgeni (leasehold) rights of the family in certain lands for valuable consideration. K's eldest son having attained majority on the 10th December, 1894, he with his minor brother brought a suit on the 17th May, 1899, to recover possession of the property alleging that the sale of the mulgeni (leasehold) rights was void ab initio. whereby he was required to pay a sum of Rs. 600 by annual instalment of Rs. 50 and to redeem the mortgaged land. The instalments for 1901 and 1902 were duly paid, while the one for 1903 was only paid in part. No other payments were made. On the 20th July 1905, the plaintiff made an application to the Court, which was consented to by the defendant, for certifying the above payments in satisfaction of the decree. This application referred to the decree as an outstanding decree. On the 14th December, 1907, the defendant applied to foreclose the decree: but the application was dismissed for want of prosecution. He applied again on the 29th March 1909 for the purpose; but his application was dismissed as barred by limitation. The defendant having appealed:—Held, that the application was within time, for the application of 1905 was sufficient to give a fresh starting point for limitation, either as an acknowledgment within the meaning of s. 19 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908) or as a step-in-aid of execution under Article 182, clause 5 of the First Schedule to the Act. BACHARAJ NYAHALCHAND v. G. R. B. brought a suit and obtained a decree for the money deposited against R. and the representatives of his brothers S. and G. On appeal the High Court exempted G's representatives from liability under the decree in so far as they inherited the share of the family property from G. R. B. executed his decree against R. and advertised some properties exclusively belonging to R. for sale. On the 8th December 1900, one Raja S. as the purchaser of certain mehals belonging to R. and his son (the plaintiff) paid in the decretal amount and the execution case was finally struck off. R. put in an application stating that the petition filed by the decree-holder stating satisfaction of the decree was without his knowledge and that the negotiations between Raja S. and himself regarding the sale of the properties had not been concluded. Raja S. sued R. for specific performance of the contract to sell and ultimately the High Court held that he could not get a decree for specific performance, but was only entitled to get back the money advanced with interest from the 8th December 1900. On 11th January 1906, Raja S. in execution of this decree sold certain properties belonging to the plaintiff, the sale being confirmed on 21st June 1906, when Raja S. obtained payment. On 3rd February 1908, the plaintiff instituted a suit for contribution against the legal representatives of R.'s brother S. Held, that it was doubtful whether Arts. 61 and 99, Sch. I of the Limitation Act, were applicable to the present case and under Art. 120 the period of limitation was six years from the time when the right to sue accrued. The date of payment by Raja S. was not the date of payment by R. within the meaning of Art. 99 of the Limitation Act. The plaintiff's right to sue accrued when the decree obtained by Raja S. was satisfied by sale of plaintiff's property and the suit being brought within two years from the date of that payment, was not barred by limitation. *JANKI KOER v. Unlike cases governed by the Indian Succession Act and the Hindu Wills Act, in a case governed by the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), the obtaining of probate is not necessary to clothe the executor with the right to sue for debts due to the testator, and the estate is represented by the executor even in the absence of probate, within the meaning of s. 17 of the Limitation Act, and time begins to run from death of the testator's death, as the obtaining of a succession certificate is not a condition precedent to the filing of a suit but is only necessary before getting a decree. Where a word which is used in one sense in one Act is re-enacted in a subsequent Act which repeals the former, then unless there is some strong reason to the contrary, it must be read in the same sense in the subsequent Act in which it is re-enacted. *Mayor of Portsmouth v. It was attested by one witness and made the mortgage amount repayable in three instalments, the last one becoming due on the 24th June 1900. On the 24th August 1903, the defendant passed a promissory note in favour of the plaintiffs, wherein he stated : "An account is taken to-day and the amount due under the mortgage deed is set apart." Again, on the 11th August 1906, he passed another promissory note which recited : "Besides this the mortgage debt is distinct." The plaintiff sued on the 6th August 1910 to recover the money due under the bond : Held, that the words used in the two promissory notes amounted to acknowledgments within the meaning of section 19 of the Limitation Act. Held, further, that the suit was governed by Article 116 and not by Article 66 of the Limitation Act

In 1888, the vendors were recorded as exproprietary tenants of these 26 bighas. In 1903, the representatives of the vendors applied to have the village papers corrected, but their application was dismissed and they were told to go to the Civil Court. In 1910, the representatives of the purchasers applied to have rent assessed on the 26 bighas and obtained an order in their favour. The representatives of the vendors thereupon brought the present suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that they were proprietors. Held, that, whatever cause of action the plaintiffs might have had before the proceedings of 1910, the order passed in those proceedings gave them a fresh cause of action and their suit was not barred by limitation. *Legge v. Ex parte decree against unrepresented lunatic—Ignorance of Court as to fact of lunacy—Jurisdiction of Court—Fraudulent purchase by de facto manager of lunatic—Rights of purchasers from such fraudulent purchaser. One N was a lunatic not adjudged as such. During his lunacy a suit for rent was brought by the landlord for two plots of land belonging to the lunatic and two rent-decrees were obtained ex parte against the lunatic who was not at all represented in the suit. The fact of the lunacy was not brought to the notice of the Court. At the auction-sales in execution of the decrees the properties were purchased by a person who was the lunatic's de facto manager who again sold them to other persons who purchased with full knowledge of the lunacy. Held, that as the lunatic or his estate was not represented in the rent-suit, the sales under the decrees of the Court therein obtained were nullities and the purchaser acquired no title by his purchase. The purchaser, being besides a fraudulent purchaser who had acted deliberately in breach of his trust as de facto manager of the lunatic, could not in any case be allowed to take advantage of the Court-sales even if they had been made with jurisdiction. As he had no title whatever, the purchasers from him also acquired no title. Rasik Lal Datta v. Bidhumukhi Dass, I. L. R. 33 Calc. 1094, relied on. Khairaj Mal v. Daim, I. L. hope or expectation in himself created or encouraged by the landlord, he cannot claim compensation for the value of such improvements. Even if the landlord knew that the tenant was making the improvements under a mistaken belief, that he had occupancy rights in the land, and merely kept quiet without interfering, there will be no estoppel against the landlord Ramsden v Dyson, L. R. 1 H. L. 129, and Beni Ram v. Kundan Lal, I. L. R. 26 All. 496, followed. Mahalatchini Ammal v. Palani Chetti, 6 Mad. H. C. 245, doubted. S. 51 of the Transfer of Property Act will not apply to the case of a tenant as it cannot be said that he is a person believing in good faith to be "absolutely entitled" to the land. Neither s. 108, clause (h), of Transfer of Property Act, nor the Hindu, Muhammadan law nor Common Law of India is applicable to a case where the tenant, without removing the fixtures in the one case or the building erected by him in the other case, wants to recover compensation for the improvements effected by him. [Where there has been a periodical raising of the rent due by the tenants, and periodical resumptions of the tenants' lands by the landlords both of which were submitted to by the tenants without any contest, it may be concluded that the tenants have no occupancy rights. Lands held under Amaram tenure have generally been held to be resumable. So far as this Presidency is concerned, it would seem to be well settled that a person who has lawfully come into possession as a tenant from year to year or a term of years cannot, by setting up, however notoriously, during the continuance of such relation, any title adverse to that of the landlord, inconsistent with the legal relation between them acquire, by limitation, title as owner or any other title inconsistent with that under which he was let into possession. Seshamma Shettai v. Chikaya Hegade, I. L. R. 25 Mad. 507, followed. This doctrine is of doubtful applicability in a case where the landlord has shown by an unequivocal act that he intends to exercise his option and determine the tenancy even though he may not have succeeded in doing so. Srinivasa Ayyar v. Muthusami Pillai, I. L. R. 24 Mad. 246, referred to. It is also well established in this Presidency that if after the determination of the tenancy the tenant remains in possession as a trespasser for the statutory period, he will by prescription acquire a right as owner of such limited estate as he might prescribe for. A receipt of rent, subsequent to a notice to determine the tenancy, is consistent with the case of either party on the question as to the existence of occupancy rights as in any event there would be a liability to pay rent and it is therefore doubtful if such a receipt could be relied on as a waiver of the plaintiff's right to resume. Held, on the facts of the present case, that there was a determination of the tenancy by a reasonable notice and that there was no assertion of an adverse title for twelve years before the suit so as to entitle the defendants to claim a Janardhana Padma*, I. L. R. 36 Mad 439, on 14th November 1910. This case is now reported for the other points decided in the case which are noted below.) [Where, during the pendency of an appeal filed by the defendants in a suit brought by a zamindar to eject his tenants, the Madras Estates Land Act of 1908 came into force, the tenants who were ordered by the decree of the First Court to be ejected, cannot take advantage of s. 6 of the Act even if that section be assumed to be retrospective, as the ryoti lands in respect of which they claimed permanent occupancy rights, would be "old waste" as defined by s. 3, clause (7), of that Act, in respect of which, before the passing of the Act, the zamindar had obtained a final decree of a competent Civil Court negating the occupancy right.] The words "Final Decree" occurring in s. 3, clause (7), mean "final" with reference to the Court which passes the decree; a decree is none the less final for the purposes of the section because an appeal was pending when the Act came into operation. Quære. "River belonging to Government," meaning of—Zamindars and Rajas, rights of, to waters of rivers passing through their lands—Water, proprietary rights in, discussed—Madras Land Encroachment Act (III of 1905), effect of, upon such rights. Per MILLER, J. In a suit for the recovery from Government of water-cess illegally levied, the cause of action arises on each occasion on which the cess is demanded and Article 131 of Schedule II of the Limitation Act does not apply. The High Court having held in Kandukur Mahalakshamma Garu, Proprietrix of Urlam v Secretary of State for India, I. L. R. 34 Mad. 295, on facts similar to those relied upon in the present case, that the Vamsadhara river is a river belonging to Government, such finding was a matter of law which should be followed until overruled by a Full Bench or a higher Court. Followed accordingly. Per SANKARAN NAIR, J. Under the customary law of the country water belonged to the owner of the estate through which it passes, so long as the water remained on the land, subject to the claims of the proprietors below. The members of the village community and the zamindars or poligars were entitled to the water which flowed through their lands. If Government are the proprietors of the land, they are the owners of the water thereon and those rivers and streams of which they own, the bed and the banks belong to Government. It was the policy of the East India Company in granting the permanent sanads to recognise private proprietary rights and to divest themselves of such rights which may have been vested in them. It is against the policy and the spirit of the permanent settlement regulation to hold that the Government reserved to themselves any power to increase the revenue on the zamindari or to levy any assessment

for the use of water. The permanent sanads granted to Rajas and chieftains did not interfere with their use of the waters of natural streams for the cultivation of all lands within the ayacut (i.e., the area of land that can be irrigated according to the customary methods) subject to the claims of the ryots. The new zamindaris created by the East India Company were placed on the same footing as the old. "Speaking generally, whenever the Government contend that these zamindars are not entitled to exercise any of the rights which are capable of private ownership, and that such rights are vested in the Crown, it lies on the Government to prove that such zamindars were deprived of them either expressly or by necessary implication under the sanads granted under that Regulation (Regulation XXV of 1802); the new zamindars were placed on the same footing. The sanads referred to are those which were granted by Lord Clive, a copy of which will be found in the earlier editions of the Standing Orders of the Board of Revenue." Under the Regulation of 1802, the Government did not enter into any engagements with the landholders to supply water. The circumstances under which the permanent sanads were granted preclude any such engagement. In the case of new zamindaris created, there may be cases in which the Government reserved to themselves the control of water-courses. Act VII of 1865 was intended by the Legislature to refer to all rivers and streams in those ryotwari districts where no mirasi or any corresponding right prevailed, and the words "rivers belonging to Government" do not apply to rivers running through or by zamindaris. The Act was not intended to effect any change in the substantive law but to enable Government to levy a cess on account of the large expenditure incurred by Government in the construction and improvement of irrigation works. The ryotwari lands were assumed to be Government property; and all rivers running through ryotwari lands were accordingly treated as belonging to Government. But it does not enable the Government to levy a water-cess where the landowners use the waters of rivers in accordance with the rights they had before. The exemption clause in s. 1 of the Act—"Where a zamindar or inamdar by virtue of engagements with the Government is entitled to irrigation free of separate charge, no cess under this Act shall be imposed for water supplied to the extent of such right and no more"—does not apply to those zamindaris and proprietors who themselves take and are entitled to take the water for irrigation from the rivers and streams in their zamindaris without its being supplied to them by Government. Even if the section with the exemption clause applied, the "engagement" to be implied is one to allow the proprietors to irrigate all their lands within the ayacut which could be irrigated without any fee and without any charge. As Act III of 1905 does not interfere with vested rights, it cannot be used to interpret Act VII of 1865 to take away such rights. Therefore under

Act VII of 1865 (standing unaffected by subsequent legislation) it was not competent to the Government to levy any cess for any water taken from the Vamsadhara river without the aid of Government works. MAHOMEDAN LAW—DIVORCE.

1. ————— Sunni sect—Divorce—Evidence—Burden of proof No special form of formula is prescribed for a divorce under the Hanafia law. All that the law requires is to see that the words of divorce pronounced by a husband should show a clear intention on his part to dissolve the contract of marriage. Where witnesses depose that a divorce was effected, in their presence, it is for the party alleging the contrary to prove by cross-examination that the words used by the husband when pronouncing the divorce were insufficient and incomplete to support a valid divorce. WAHID KHAN v ZAINAB BIBI (1914)
I. L. R. 36 All. 458

2. ————— Kabinnamah—Condition that husband should live with wife in wife's father's house as khandamad and for divorce upon breach, if valid. A condition in a kabinnamah that the husband shall live with the wife in her father's house and that if he broke this condition she would be entitled to divorce him, is invalid under the Mahomedan law, and her claim for deferred dower following upon such a divorce must fail. IMAM ALI PATWARI v ARFATUNNESSA (1913) 18 C. W. N. 693

MAHOMEDAN LAW—DOWER.

————— Dower—Right of widow to remain in possession of her husband's property in lieu of dower. The right of a Mahomedan widow to whom dower is due, and who has got into possession of property of her husband in lieu thereof, to remain in possession until her dower is paid may, perhaps, be descendible to her heirs: but no right to possession is descendible in a case where the widow herself never got possession at all. Ali Bakhsh v Allahdad Khan, I. MAHOMEDAN LAW—GIFT.

1. ————— Shias—Gift—Marz-ul-maut—Disease of more than one year's duration. Under the Shia law a gift made in marz-ul-maut holds good to the extent of only one-third of the donor's estate in spite of delivery of possession prior to his death. Under the Shia law, if a person dies of a disease of more than one year's duration such disease is not considered a death-illness. But there is this condition attached to it that if the illness increases to such an extent as to cause, or another supervenes which causes, an apprehension of death in the mind of the donor the increase or the new disease is a death-illness. The nature of the gift does not change even if the donor had intended prior to death-illness to transfer the property to the donee KHURSHED HUSAIN v. FAIYAZ HUSAIN (1914) I. L. R. 36 All. 289

2. ————— Gift—Revocation—Substantial alteration of subject-matter—Partition. Held, that a Revenue Court partition of villages, the subject of a deed of gift, does not amount to such a substantial alteration of the subject-matter in the hands of the donee as would, under the Mahomedan law, render the gift irrevocable by the donor. MAQBUL HUSAIN v GHAFUR-UN-NISSA (1914) . I. L. R. 36 All. 333

MAHOMEDAN LAW—GUARDIAN.

1. ————— Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), ss 9 and 39—Application for appointment as guardian of minor girl—Qualifications for applicant. Held, that the husband of a minor girl's sister is not, under the Mahomedan law, entitled to be appointed a guardian of the person or property of the minor. Held, also, that the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, contemplates that an applicant for guardianship should reside within the jurisdiction of the Court to which he makes the application. ASGHAR ALI v. AMINA BEGAM (1914) . I. L. R. 36 All. 280

2. ————— Shia sect—Guardian and minor—Right to guardianship of female minor. According to the Mahomedan law applicable to the Shia sect, the right to the guardianship of a female minor rests primarily with the mother, on her death with the father, and only on the death of the father does the right pass to the maternal grandmother and other ascendants. SALIM-UN-NISSA v SAADAT HUSAIN (1914)
I. L. R. 36 All. 466

3. ————— Guardianship—Mahomedan infant—Mahomedan law—Maternal uncle if a proper guardian—Sister's husband, if qualified—Prohibited degrees of relationship—Adverse interest—Guardians and Wards Act (VII of 1890) Under the Mahomedan law no male has a right to the custody of a female child, unless he is a Mahram, that is, one who stands to her within the prohibited degrees of relationship and cannot under any circumstances marry her. A maternal uncle may be appointed as a guardian to a Mahomedan minor girl. When the girl was married to a person below her station in life, the Court ordered a governess to be appointed to stay with her until puberty, the husband not to have access to her meanwhile, so that the girl might have liberty to repudiate the marriage if she liked just on the attainment of puberty. HURUNNESSA BIBEE, In the matter of (1913) . 18 C. MAHOMEDAN LAW—MINOR.

————— Minor—De facto guardian's powers over minor's properties—Sale by mother for expenses of minor's sister's marriage, or for the discharge of proper family debts, not binding. Under the Mahomedan law the general rule is that the dealings of a de facto guardian of a minor with the minor's properties do not ipso facto bind the minor. The rule is, however, subject to exceptions. In cases of urgent and imperative necessity, or where the transaction from its nature must necessarily be beneficial to the minor, a de facto guardian can alienate the property of the minor, whether moveable or immoveable. According to Mahomedan law, sale of a minor's property by an unauthorized guardian, even if it was not made for a valid cause, is neither void nor voidable in the ordinary sense of the terms, but is regarded as manguf or dependent, that is, in a state of suspense, its validity or invalidity being determined by the minor adopting or not adopting after he has attained majority, though the effect of his decision will relate back to the date of inception of the transaction. A person who chooses to buy a minor's property from a person who has no power to deal with it, however bona fide his action may have been, cannot invoke any principles of justice and good conscience to support the transaction itself, though such considerations may be a good ground for the Court refusing to give relief to the minor except on condition of his restituting whatever benefit he has derived from the transaction. A sale by a mother of the minor's property for finding money for the marriage expenses of the minor's sisters or for the discharge of family debts and for other family purposes, is not binding on the minor. AYDERMAN KUTTI v. SYED ALI (1912)

I. L. R. 37 Mad. 514

MAHOMEDAN LAW—PRE-EMPTION.

1. Pre-emption—Shafa, right of—Delay in assertion—Waiver—Right of pre-emption, accrual of—General law to govern the incident of sale in applying the law of pre-emption and not the pure Mahomedan law. Per CARNDUFF, J. The right of shafa cannot arise until there has been a sale to a third party, for the right of shafa, recognised by the Mahomedan law, is not the right of pre-emption known to the Roman law; that is to say, the right arising out of an obligation on the part of an intending vendor to sell preferentially to the obligor if he offers as good conditions as any intended vendee, but rather the obligation attached to a particular status, which binds the purchaser from the person obliged to hand over the subject-matter to the other party to the obligation on receiving the price paid by him for it. The right accrues only when the property has passed from the original owner to a purchaser. The general law, which is paramount and has superseded the Mahomedan law, should govern the incident of sale in applying the law of pre-emption. Per RICHARDSON, J. Where possession is not given and the price is not paid till registration, the right of pre-emption arises upon registration and not before. Jadu Lal Sahu v. Janki Koer, I. L. 2. Right of pre-emption—Litigation between Hindus—Adoption of pre-emption as usage—Burden of proof—Ancient and invariable custom—Pre-emption, a personal right not descendible to heirs—A custom cannot be proved by the admission of parties or their counsel. In litigation between Hindus where one party alleges the adoption of a whole branch of the Mahomedan law, such as that of pre-emption, and the other party repudiates the application of the foreign law, it lies very heavily on the party alleging to prove that that law has been adopted as a usage and could be proved to have been so adopted by proof of ancient and invariable custom. Such a party must stand or fall by the strict Mahomedan law of pre-emption. Generally speaking the right of pre-emption is a personal right which, under the Mahomedan law, would not descend to heirs. Per MACLEOD, J. A custom must be proved by evidence in the first instance and once it is proved the Courts are entitled to recognize its existence. A custom cannot be proved by the admission of the parties or their counsel before the Court. DAHYABHAI MOTIRAM v. CHUNILAL KESHORDAS (1913)

‘ Prosecution,’ what amounts to—Magistrate sending only notice but not summons or warrant and dismissing complaint, no prosecution—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 202. Where on receiving a complaint of an offence of defamation, a Magistrate issued only a notice but not a summons or a warrant to the accused, which notice simply informed him that a preliminary enquiry would be held at a certain time in the matter of the complaint preferred by the complainant, and the complaint was dismissed under s. 202, Criminal Procedure Code, after hearing counsel for both parties. Held, that there was no prosecution of any offence by the complainant so as to give room for any suit for malicious prosecution. *DeRozario v. ss. 2, 4, 6—Hindu effecting a policy of life insurance for benefit of wife and children—Policy money if available for his debts on death—Statute, application of, leading to anomaly—Interpretation. A policy of life insurance effected by a Hindu for the benefit of his wife and children is not governed by the provisions of s 6 of the Married Women's Property Act of 1874. Per RICHARDSON, J Although s 2 of the Act expressly provides that nothing in the Act applies to any married woman who at the time of her marriage professed the Hindu amongst other religions, or whose husband at the time of such marriage professed that religion and does not expressly exempt their children from the operation of the Act, the intention of the Legislature, taking the Act as a whole, is to exclude the children also from the benefits of s. 6 of the Act. If the words of an Act are so plain that no other construction is reasonably possible the anomaly must be accepted and effect must be given to the language which the Legislature has chosen to employ. But if the language is of doubtful import, the most reasonable construction of which it is fairly capable ought to be adopted. Held, per CURIAM, that the money due under the policy in question formed part of the estate of the assured and was available for payment of his debts after his death. ESHANI DAS v. GOPAL CHANDRA DEY (1914) . . . 18 C. W. N. 1335

s. 6—Applicability to Hindus—Insurance—Policy for the benefit of wife and children, if creates a trust—Policy amount payable to the executors, administrators and assigns of the assured—Right of beneficiary to enforce—Presumption of advancement. Where a Hindu male effected a policy of insurance on his own life, expressed on the face of it to be for the benefit of his wife, or his wife and children or any of them, but payable to his executors, administrators and assigns, and died leaving a daughter. Held, by the Full Bench, that s. 6 of the Married Women's Property Act (III of 1874) applied to the case, and by virtue thereof a trust was created in favour of the daughter, in regard to the policy amount, against which the creditors of the assured have no right to proceed. Oriental Government Security Life Assurance, Limited v Vanteddu Ammiraju, I L R 35 Mad 162, overruled Per WHITE, C J (SANKARAN NAIR, J, concurring) Ss 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 of Act III of 1874 do not apply where either of the spouses, at the time of the marriage, professed the Hindu religion. The primary object of s 6 is to enable a man (though a Hindu male) to make provision for his wife and children by insuring his life for their benefit without executing a separate deed of trust, though the result may be that a Hindu woman derives a benefit thereby. Per WHITE, C J S. 6 does not affect the law of contract or the law of trust as regards the persons entitled to enforce the contract under the policy. The person entitled to enforce the rights of the beneficiary is the trustee, if a trustee has been appointed, and if no special trustee has been appointed, the Official Trustee, to whom the money is payable, and not the daughter, the beneficiary Held, also, that the daughter was not entitled to enforce her claim against the insurance company or as against a creditor as (i) the company was under a contractual obligation to pay the amount to the executor or administrator of the assured, and (ii) the presumption of advancement of a daughter was rebutted by the words "for the benefit of his wife and children," the policy not being one for the benefit of such of the children as are daughters Per TYABJI, J. The daughter's right under the insurance policies is affected by s 6 of Act III of 1874, and the operation of s 6 is not prevented by s. 2. For the daughter is not a married woman within the meaning of ss 2 and 6, though she may be married, as the expression 'married woman' cannot refer to any woman other than one who is married to the assured. BALAMBA v KRISHNAYYA (1913)

A mokurari was created before the passing of the Transfer of Property Act and a putni was granted of the zemindary within which the mokurari was created. Afterwards in 1886 the entire putni and the entire mokurari were acquired by the same person. Held, that the provisions of s 111 (d) of the Transfer of Property Act do not apply and there was no merger of the mokurari interest in the putni interest. Promotho Nath Mitter v. O XX, r. 12, O XXII, r. 10—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Art 181 A durputni held by three brothers, D, P and R, was sold for rent and purchased by the putnidar. One of the three brothers, D, brought a suit and obtained a decree for the recovery of possession of the durputni and mesne profits. After D's death his widow got herself substituted in his place and in execution of the decree took possession of the property and subsequently a deed was executed between herself and the two other brothers P and R in terms that the property belonged to the three brothers and she as the widow of the eldest was entitled to two annas and the remaining 14 annas were divided between her and the two brothers in equal shares as also the mesne profits. The durputni was thereafter sold in execution of a money-decree and ultimately passed into the hands of one A. On 21st May 1907 the two brothers P and R by a conveyance assigned their share of the costs and mesne profits under the decree obtained by D to M, a benamidar of A, and on the 10th June 1907

MESNE PROFITS—concl'd.

D's widow by another conveyance assigned her share of the mesne profits and costs to A. On 22nd February 1909 A applied for execution of the decree and the application was admitted by the Subordinate Judge, but under orders of the District Judge in appeal the application was returned for amendment on 4th March 1911 and amended on the same day. On appeal, the High Court directed that this application presented by A should be treated as an application under O XX, r. 12, and remanded the case, whereupon the amended application was placed on the record to be dealt with under O XX, r. 12, and A was substituted on the record in place of the original plaintiff. Held, that the application should be treated as having been made on the date on which it was originally presented and that date being within 3 years of the dates of the conveyances assigning mesne profits and costs to A, the application was not barred even if Art 181 of the Limitation Act was applicable. That even if the application was considered as having been made on the date on which it was amended, the right of the assignee to apply for substitution in a pending suit is a right which accrues from day to day and is therefore not barred by limitation. That an application in a pending suit for ascertainment of mesne profits is not barred by the three years' rule of limitation contained in Art 181 corresponding to Art. 178 of the old Limitation Act. The law has not been changed by the new Limitation Act or the new Code of Civil Procedure. Puran Chand v. Rai Radha Krishen, 1 L. R. 19 Calc 132, followed. Held (as to the contention that A could not be substituted when his two assignees P and R were not parties to the suit), that the property being the joint property of the three brothers and the suit having been brought by D as the eldest member of the family, he might be taken to have represented the other two brothers also. That even if P and R were considered as assignees from D's widow, the position was that A was an assignee from D's widow who was a party to the suit with respect to one-third of the property, and an assignee from P and R, who in their turn were assignees from D's widow with respect to two-thirds, and O. XX, r. 10, was applicable to an application made by a person who has not obtained an assignment directly from a party to the suit but who has obtained an assignment derivatively from a party to the suit. That a right to sue for damages cannot be transferred, but in the present case the claim for mesne profits had already merged in a judgment before the assignment and the right under the judgment was assignable although the original cause of action was not. There is nothing in law to prevent a benamidar from applying to the Court for ascertainment of mesne profits. A stranger cannot take exception to an assignment on the ground of inadequacy of consideration, that being a matter between the assignor and assignee. Bhagwat Dayal v. Debi Dayal, 1 L. 1. ——— Appointment of Guardian—Custody—Plaint in District Court—Transfer to High Court—Jurisdiction—Letters Patent, 1865, cls 13 and 20—Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), ss 9, 10 and 52. The first respondent instituted a suit against the appellant in a District Court by a plaint claiming a declaration that he was entitled to the guardianship and custody of his two minor sons (the added respondents) and for an order that they should be handed over to him. The suit having been transferred to the High Court under the Letters Patent, 1865, s. 13, that Court declared that the minors should be wards of the Court, that the first respondent was guardian of their persons, and ordered the appellant to hand them over to him. The minors were in England both when the suit was instituted and when the order was made; they were not made parties to the proceedings, nor were they represented before the Court. Held, (i) that the District Court had no jurisdiction, since the minors were not ordinarily resident in the district, as required by s. 9 of the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, and since the suit was not instituted by petition, as required by s. 10 of that Act, (ii) that, even if the High Court had any jurisdiction with regard to minors beyond that which might have been exercised by the District Court (which was not determined), the mandatory order ought not to have been made, since an attempt to enforce it would expose the appellant to habeas corpus proceedings in England, and since the minors were not represented before the Court, nor adequate steps taken to ascertain their wishes and interests. *BESANT v. Clerk as guardian on the affidavit of the plaintiff that there was no fit and proper person alive to act as the guardian of the minor, while as a matter of fact the plaintiff knew that the minor was living under the protection of his maternal grandfather. The decree passed in this suit was sought to be set aside by the minor on the ground of fraud. Held, that the statement in the affidavit could not be held to be deliberately false so as to constitute fraud, in the absence of any allegation of collusion between the plaintiff and the Head Clerk, and the decree could not be set aside unless there was no appointment of a guardian ad litem or the appointment was induced by fraud or what the Court would regard as tantamount to fraud. Hanuman Prasad v Muhammad Ishag, I. _____ Mistake, evidence of—
Similar mistake in other documents—Admissibility—Concurrent finding of fact, based on no evidence The proper description of houses in towns for the purpose of registration is by the street in which they are situated and the number which they bear in that street. Where a stranger to a mortgage-deed passed in the Original Side of the High Court, who had previous thereto acquired a title in property actually intended to be conveyed (all of which was outside Calcutta), proved that there was no property in Calcutta bearing the street, name and number given to the only item of Calcutta property included in the mortgage, and that the property in Calcutta, which in fact answered the description of that property by metes and bounds given in the mortgage deed, did not belong to the mortgagor: Held, that the onus of proving (as it was open to him to prove) that there was a clerical or other error in the description of the property and that in fact an existing property situated in Calcutta was intended by both parties to be mortgaged, was on the mortgagee-deed-holder. That to prove this the mortgagee should have examined himself as also his mortgagor. That as no evidence whatever was given to prove this case, it was not open to the Courts in India to come to the conclusion that the entry of the property was a mistake. Evidence to show that the mortgagor had purported to mortgage with other mortgagees the same property under the same description and had been compelled by them to consent to rectification, was irrelevant at the trial to prove that the entry in the document was a mistake. That the principle of concurrent findings of fact did not apply to such a case as it was a case of no evidence, and it was open to the Privy Council to hold from the conduct of the mortgagee in not examining himself or his mortgagor and from other evidence in the case, that the entry was intentionally fictitious. *HARENDRA LAL ROY CHOWDHURI v. The mere fact that a Court was not satisfied with the evidence which the plaintiff adduced in addition to the acknowledgment, would not absolve the defendants from producing evidence that, notwithstanding the acknowledgment in the body of the deed, there was no consideration in fact. BABBU v SITA RAM (1914) . . . The defendant pleaded that the mortgage deed was effected to protect his property from his creditor and that no consideration really passed under the deed. Previous to the suit the defendant's creditor had attached the mortgaged property, and the mortgagee (present plaintiff) had made a claim on the basis of the mortgage for the release of the property from attachment. The mortgagor (present defendant) admitted the mortgage and the property was ordered to be sold subject to the mortgage. But the property was, however, not sold because the mortgagor paid off his creditor before the order for sale was carried into effect. Both the lower Courts decreed the claim on the ground that the defendant could not be allowed to defeat the plaintiff by pleading his own fraud. On second appeal by the defendant. Held, setting aside the decree, that as the defend-

1. Purchase by mortgagees of part of mortgaged property—Tender of proportionate part of mortgage money by purchasers of the residue—Tender refused on ground of subsequent mortgages affecting the property—Suit for redemption—Form of decree Tender of payment under s. 83 of the Transfer of Property Act was made by the purchasers of part of the property comprised in a mortgage (the rest of the property having been purchased by the mortgagees themselves) who paid into Court what they believed to be the proportionate amount due on the share purchased by them, and within the period limited by the mortgage-deed. This tender was, however, refused upon the ground that there were two subsidiary mortgages affecting the property under which further sums were due. The mortgagors thereupon brought a suit for redemption expressing their readiness to pay what might be found by the Court to be the proper proportionate amount due by them in respect of the property which they had purchased. Held, on the finding, that the plaintiffs when they made their original tender were unaware of the existence of the two subsidiary bonds, that the Court below was right in giving a decree for redemption on payment of the amount due under the three mortgages in respect of the share purchased by the plaintiffs and for posses-

Where a mortgage was made for forty years and a provision was inserted in the deed fixing a particular day on which it was to be redeemed, failing which the mortgage was to be renewed for another term of forty years, and it was further provided that the mortgage should not be redeemed with borrowed money, it was held that these provisions were designed to make redemption very difficult, if not impossible, and should not be enforced. *Bans v. To this suit also H was not a party. In 1895 H sued on his own mortgage without making the first mortgagee a party. A decree was passed in terms of an award. The property was sold in execution of the decree subject to the first mortgage and was purchased by H with the permission of the Court. In 1908 the decree-holder applied to execute the decree of 1896. H was made a party to the execution proceedings. It was contended by H that he was not bound by the decree under execution and was entitled to have the mortgage amount determined again in the execution proceedings. The decree-holder urged that H's mortgage had been extinguished by his purchase at the Court sale; and as such purchaser he was bound by the decree by which the original mortgagors were bound at the date of the auction-sale; and that H did nothing to show that he intended to keep alive his mortgage. Held, that as a second mortgagee H was entitled to redeem the first mortgage; and to have the amount of the first mortgage determined again as between himself and the first mortgagee. Held, further, that as auction-purchaser H became entitled to all the rights which the mortgagors and the mortgagee had at the date of the sale, i.e., to all the rights of the mortgagors as they existed at the date of the mortgage upon which the decree was based. Held, also, that H must be presumed to have intended to keep his mortgage alive, as it was clearly for his benefit to do so. *SHANKAR VENKATESH v. 5. ———— Suit for redemption—Valuation—Jurisdiction—Malabar law—Mortgage by karnavan, whether a junior member is bound to sue to set aside. The proper valuation of a suit to redeem a mortgage is the amount of the mortgage admitted by the plaintiff to be binding on him, and not that of the mortgages set up by the defendant. In such a suit the question of jurisdiction has to be decided in the averments on the plaint, and not with reference to the pleas of the defendant. Chandu v. Kombi, I. L. Driving motor-car at excessive speed—Injury to bare licensee being driven

in car—Liability of car-owner—Quantum of damages.
The defendant was driving a party of relatives and friends (including the plaintiff) in his motor-car from Deolali to Igatpuri. The road at one point turned somewhat abruptly to the left and crossed the lines of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway by means of a level crossing, after the level crossing the road turned abruptly to the right. The defendant, who was driving his car at an excessive speed, drove over the crossing at the time that a train was there due. Though it got over the crossing safely the car failed to take the abrupt turning to the right and jumping an embankment rushed into a paddy field below. The occupants of the car, with the exception of the defendant, were thrown out with much violence and the plaintiff received such grave injuries as would render him a cripple for the rest of his life. The plaintiff sued to recover damages caused to him by the defendant's negligence. Held, that putting the skill and caution exigible from the defendant at the very lowest, he was grossly and culpably negligent, that he was liable in damages to the plaintiff, and that in assessing damages the same principles should be applied whether the person who had incurred the liability was a private individual or a wealthy company. *SORABJI HORMUSJI v JAM-chose in action under s. 130 of the Transfer of Property Act nor was there a valid gift of the promissory note under s. 123 of the Transfer of Property Act. That even assuming that there was a valid transfer, the plaintiff was not entitled to sue in his own name. It may be generally true that a valid assignment of a negotiable instrument as an actionable claim gives the assignee the rights of the holder subject to equities, but this broad proposition must be subject at any rate to the qualification that it is true only so far as it is not inconsistent with the special provisions of the Negotiable Instruments Act. Per RICHARDSON, J. The object

Where the defendant admitted in his written statement that he had verbally agreed to pay interest on the promissory note at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, s. 80 of the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881) was no bar to the interest being decreed at that rate. *LACHMI CHAND JHAWAR v. OCCUPANCY HOLDING—concl'd.

XIV of 1882), s 244—“Representative”—Holding, if may be transferred apart from occupancy right Apart from custom or local usage, the transfer for value of the whole or a part of an occupancy holding is operative as against the raiyat, (a) where it is made voluntarily; (b) where it is made involuntarily, and the raiyat with knowledge fails or omits to have the sale set aside. A sale is made involuntarily where it is in execution of a money-decree, but not of a decree founded on a mortgage or charge voluntarily made. The transfer is operative as against the landlord in all cases in which it is operative against the raiyat, provided the landlord has given his previous or subsequent consent. Where the transfer is the sale of the whole holding, the landlord, in the absence of his consent, is ordinarily entitled to enter on the holding, but where the transfer is of a part only of the holding or not by way of sale, the landlord, though he has not consented, is not ordinarily entitled to recover possession of the holding, unless there has been (i) an abandonment within the meaning of s. 87 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, or (ii) a relinquishment of the holding; or (c) a repudiation of the tenancy. Whether there has been a relinquishment or repudiation or not, depends on the substantial effect of what has been done in each case. The transfer of the whole or a part is operative as against all other persons where it is operative against the raiyat. A person who, without the landlord's consent, purchases a portion of an occupancy holding which is not transferable by local custom or usage, is a person whose immoveable property has been sold and is a representative of the judgment-debtor under s 244 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882. A transferee of a portion of an occupancy holding not transferable by custom, can by suit recover possession from the landlord who has forcibly dispossessed him. A right of occupancy not transferable by custom or local usage can be transferred, but not the holding apart from the right of occupancy. DAYA-MAYI v ANANDA MOHAN ROY CHAUDHURI (1914)

P*PAKKI ADAT TRANSACTIONS.

Incidents of—Wagering, defence of. From about the end of June 1908 the defendant, a young man, without much experience of business, entered into pakki adat transactions for the sale of linseed with the plaintiffs, who were a firm of Marwari shroffs and merchants, in a large way of business dealing as merchants and commission agents, largely in cotton and to a small extent in linseed. There was one transaction in cotton between the parties and the defendant entered into transactions in linseed to the extent of 4,000 tons in all with the plaintiffs, which transactions the plaintiffs passed on to various purchasers, 39 in all, between which purchasers and the defendant there was no privity whatever. In the contract made by the plaintiffs with each of the said purchasers there was a term that delivery should not be given to the firm of Narrondas Rajaram & Co., a Marwari firm, who were in the habit of insisting on delivery and of refusing to settle contracts by the payment or receipt of differences. The plaintiffs subsequently attempted to secure evidence to show that the transactions between themselves and the defendant were genuine transactions and not wagers. They endeavoured to induce the defendant to sign a draft letter prepared by the plaintiff's attorneys in which instructions were given for the purchase of a small part of the 4,000 tons of linseed for the sale of which the defendant had entered into transactions with the plaintiffs and ultimately induced the defendant to sign a draft letter acknowledging the correctness of the statements made in a letter of the plaintiffs' attorneys to the defendant setting out the plaintiffs' version of the transactions between the parties. The plaintiffs further purchased and delivered 300 tons of linseed in part-fulfilment of their contracts with the 39 purchasers, and as to the balance of 3,700 tons the contracts with these purchasers were settled by the payment of differences. It appeared, however, that the purchase of 300 tons had been effected by the plaintiffs with the view to influence the result of litigation. Held, that in view of the fact that the pakka adatu was not a disinterested broker but a party to the contract whose intention to gamble or otherwise might well be known at the inception of the contract, and that there was no privity between the defendant and the 39 buyers from the plaintiffs, the existence of such purchasers was only relevant as affording an indication of the plaintiffs' intention at the time of the contracts with the defendant, but in view of the condition that delivery should not be given to Narrondas Rajaram & Co. it appeared that it was not intended that delivery should be given to the 39 purchasers by the plaintiffs and accordingly the said 39 contracts were not a sufficient indication of an intention on the part of the plaintiffs to call for delivery from the defendant. Held, further, that on an examination of the business of the contracting parties and of the surrounding circumstances of the case it appeared that the common intention of the parties was that the plaintiffs and the defendant should deal in differences and settle that way and that accordingly the suit must fail. *Bhagwandas v. PARDANASHIN LADY.

1. ————— Execution of deed—Suit for cancellation of deed—Nature of proof required—Independent advice not absolutely necessary—Lady of strong will and in the habit of managing her affairs with considerable capacity for business—Undue influence—Natural affection. In the case of a deed executed by a pardanashin lady the law protects her by demanding that the burden of proof shall in such case rest not with those who attack, but with those who rely upon, the deed; and it must be proved affirmatively and conclusively that the deed was not only executed by, but was explained to, and really understood by, the grantor. It must also be established that it was not signed under duress, but by the free and independent exercise of her will. Sajjad Husain v. Wazir Khan, I. L. R. 34 All. 445, L. R. 39 I. A. 156, followed. There is no absolute rule that a deed executed by a pardanashin lady cannot stand unless it is proved that she had independent advice. The possession of absence of independent advice is a fact to be taken into consideration and well weighed on a review of the whole circumstances relevant to the issue of whether the grantor thoroughly comprehended, and deliberately and of her own free will carried out, the transaction, and if, upon such a review of the facts—which include the nature of the thing done, and the training and habit of mind of the grantor, as well as the proximate circumstances affecting the execution—the conclusion is reached that the obtaining of independent advice would not really have made any difference in the result, then the deed ought to stand. In a suit for cancellation of gift executed by a pardanashin lady the facts were that her husband had died long before, and her property (consisting of shares in a large number of villages) was managed by the mukhtar with whom she had formed an intimacy, the result of which was the birth of two illegitimate daughters, one of whom was alive at the date of the deed. The donee was the legitimate son of her mukhtar. The deed was found to be duly executed, attested by just the persons who would naturally be called upon for such a purpose, and registered in the usual way by the proper officers. The property given was about one half of her estate, and there was no question of her being impoverished by giving it. No undue influence was affirmatively proved. It appeared in evidence that the lady was strong minded and had been in the habit for many years of managing her affairs, of entering up her accounts and of attending to business matters. Held (reversing the decision of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner), that the evidence as to her strength of will and business capacity, and the fact that the deed was not, in the circumstances of her life, in any way an unnatural disposition of her property, went far, taken together with the other evidence in the case, to make it conclusive that the deed was granted by her as the expression of her deliberate mind and apart from any undue influence exerted upon it; and that had independent advice been obtained the lady would have acted just as she did. *Mahomed Ralshah Khan v. PARDANASHIN LADY—concl'd.

the influences under which the lady came to execute the document. Held (without expressing any opinion as to whether s. 16 of the Contract Act requires the undue influence to proceed from a party to the suit), that the undue influence which may affect a pardanashin lady's understanding of a document may proceed from a third party *Gireesh Ch Lahorey v. Suit for accounts of—Necessary parties—Representative of deceased partner, addition of one after period of limitation—Whole suit, if barred—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 22. Art. 106. The plaintiff brought a suit for the accounts of a partnership making parties thereto his other partners and one only of the two sons of a deceased partner who died after the partnership business came to an end but before the suit was instituted. On the objection being taken, the other son of the deceased partner was brought on the record after the expiration of the period of limitation: Held, that inasmuch as all the partners or their representatives were necessary parties and inasmuch as under s. 22 of the Limitation Act the suit must, as regards the added defendant, be deemed to have been instituted when he was made a party the whole suit was barred by limitation. That in a partnership suit the partners must be made parties or the suit will fail. AMBIKA CHARAN GUHA v. TARINI CHARAN CHANDA (1913)

A sum of money, paid by a customer as the result of a reference to arbitration in which the legal personal representatives of a deceased partner were no parties, having been brought into the partnership accounts, the latter who did not dispute the item in the first Court for the first time on appeal contended that not being parties to the reference the were not bound by it: Held, that the question whether the legal personal representatives of the deceased partner were bound by the agreement to refer and by the award was not a simple question of law to be decided without reference to the facts of the case or any evidence which might have been available if it had been raised at the proper time, and the contention should have been rejected as having been put forward at too late a stage. An agreement to refer not originally binding might become binding later on by the acquiescence of the party or his acceptance of benefits thereunder. Held, further, that if the legal personal representatives of the deceased partner were not bound by the award, they would not be entitled to relief on the footing that it was binding, but had been negligibly and improperly entered into. That if relief could be given on this footing, the difference between the amount originally claimed against the customer and the amount paid by him under the award would not necessarily be the measure of damages; nor could the onus of proving that it was any less sum be thrown on the person accused of negligent and improper conduct. *Haji Mahamad Akbar v. PASTURAGE.

Right of, suit for declaration of, and for injunction—Mere thirty years' uninterrupted user, if enough—Presumption of right. In a suit for declaration that the plaintiffs who were cultivating tenants had a right of pasturage over certain lands and for an injunction on the landlord to remove fences, etc., therefrom, the finding of the lower Appellate Court in decreeing the suit was: "The land has been lying unoccupied from time immemorial and the villagers have been grazing their cattle here for more than 30 years. Their user was open and peaceful, without interruption and should be, in the circumstances of this case, presumed to be as of right also": Held, that this finding was not sufficient to establish the plaintiffs' right of pasturage over the land in suit. It being a customary right, it must be reasonable, and it would be unreasonable to hold that no land over which cattle had grazed should ever be brought under the plough. *SYED ALI v. ss. 143, 146, 447—*Unlawful assembly and criminal trespass—Bonâ fide belief in the existence of right to land and assertion of such right. In consequence of a dispute between two landlords, the disputed property was attached under s. 146, Criminal Procedure Code, in a proceeding under s. 145, Criminal Procedure Code, and a Receiver appointed, but the Magistrate appointing the Receiver omitted to give any direction as regards the management of the property. There was a dispute between the tenants on both sides as regards the grazing rights over the property, but it appeared that the zemindar of the petitioners gave them the grazing rights over the land and they objected to a tenant of the rival zemindar ploughing up a portion of the land over which they alleged they had grazing rights under colour of a lease from the Receiver. The petitioners were convicted under ss. 143, 447 of the Penal Code. Held, that the petitioners could not be convicted of criminal trespass when they were asserting a right which had never been declared against them, which they bonâ fide believed they had, and for the same reason they could not be said to have formed an unlawful assembly because they went and protested against the land being ploughed up. *REAJUDDIN MOLLA v. perty of—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 238. When the petitioners who were charged under s. 147 of the Penal Code, with rioting with the common object of taking forcible possession of complainant's land and of assaulting him and others were convicted of criminal trespass under s. 447 of the Penal Code, without any charge being framed against them or without being called upon to plead to a case of trespass. Held, that the conviction was illegal. If the common object had been to commit criminal trespass, the conviction under s. 447 of the Penal Code, without a charge having been framed against the accused might have been legally valid, but the common object stated in the charge did not make out a case of trespass. In a case of trespass, before a conviction is obtained, the prosecution must establish on the part of the trespasser an intention to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult, or annoy any person in possession of the property on which trespass has been committed. *Queen v. The District Judge forwarded this application to the Magistrate, and Bhikhi Ram was arrested and his house searched. Subsequently, however, proceedings against Bhikhi Ram were dropped, there being no evidence against him. Bhikhi Ram then applied to the District Judge for sanction to prosecute the applicant under ss. 182 and 211 of the Indian Penal Code. The sanction asked for was granted. Held, that as regards s. 211 the criminal proceedings taken against Bhikhi Ram were not taken in the Court of the District Judge, and it was at any rate doubtful whether it could be said that the offence committed by the applicant was committed in relation to any proceeding pending in that Court. *MUHAMMAD FAKHRED-DIN v. That it is for the prosecution to establish their case and if they fail to supply that proof which is required to secure the conviction of the accused, the failure on the part of the latter to examine any particular witness or witnesses will not imply the guilt of the accused. That the case against the petitioner being that no theft took place, the obligation of proving it rested on the prosecution. In the present case the prosecution not having established that there was, as a matter of fact, no theft and the petitioner knew that there was no theft, the High Court set aside the conviction and sentence under s. 211 of the Penal Code. HASSAN MIRZA v MAHBUBAN (1913)

It appeared that on a certain day in the year pilgrims and others in large numbers visited this temple. Close by the gate, leading from an outer courtyard into the inner temple, there was a well which was surrounded by a masonry platform  $1\frac{1}{2}$  to 2 feet high and the ring or parapet of the well stood again about 1 foot above the platform. Early at night on the day of the congregation of pilgrims, an accident having occurred, the petitioner at the instance of the Police Officer in charge had a light placed on or near the one-foot parapet, but at a later hour the petitioner had the light removed and thereafter between 1 and 2 A.M., while the people were again entering into the inner temple, a boy who had no previous knowledge of the well and in the darkness could not see it fell into it: Held, that the facts constituted an offence within the meaning of s. 336 of the Penal Code. That on the occasion of the festival in question, the temple becomes a place of public resort, and it was the bounden duty of the petitioner as the person in charge to take all reasonable precautions necessary to ensure the safety of those crowding thither by his license and invitation. NARSING CAHRAN MAHAPATRA v KING-EMPEROR (1914)

Plaintiff's allegation and proof, when ground for dismissal of suit—True rule—Its object—Suit for recovery of possession—Mode of ouster and time thereof, allegation as to, if material. Where an order having been passed in favour of the defendants under s. 335 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882, the decree-holder (now plaintiff) sued for recovery of possession upon declaration of his title, alleging that the order itself deprived him of possession, but the Courts below dismissed the suit without trial on the merits, on the ground that the order under s. 335, Criminal Procedure Code, had not that effect: Held, that the suit should have been tried on the merits, as the particular mode in which or the point of time at which the ouster of the plaintiff took place was not so material that a variance between pleading and proof on such matters would alone be considered a sufficient ground for dismissing the suit. The determination in a cause should be founded upon a case either to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case made thereby. It does not follow from this that every variance between pleading and proof is material and justifies a dismissal of the claim. The rule that the allegations and the proof must correspond is intended to serve a double purpose, viz, first, to apprise the defendant distinctly and specifically of the case he is called upon to answer, so that he may properly make his defence and may not be taken by surprise; and, secondly, to preserve an accurate record of the cause of action as a protection against a second proceeding founded upon the same allegations.

*Suit for recovery of, by proprietor of undivided half share—Nature of decree plaintiff entitled to—Proprietor of undivided half share, if can eject any one on the land from the whole of it. The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of possession of a plot of land to the extent of an eight annas share, the plaintiff being the proprietor to the extent of eight annas and defendants Nos. 5 and 6 proprietors to the extent of the other eight annas. Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 were tenants on the land recognised by defendants Nos. 5 and 6. The plaintiff asked for joint possession with defendants Nos. 1 to 3, if joint possession with defendants Nos. 5 and 6 could not be granted: Held, that all that the plaintiff could ask for was joint possession of an eight annas share. He could not in this suit ask the Court to decide who was entitled to possession of the other eight annas share of the land with which he had no concern. That a person entitled to an undivided half share of the land cannot sue to eject anybody from the whole of it and the defendants Nos 1 to 3 who had been recognised as tenants by the co-sharer landlords could not be ejected by the plaintiff from the whole of the land. “Karibi wa khandani.” In a village comprising two eight anna thoks a custom of pre-emption was recorded as prevailing in two wajib-ul-arzes of 1833 and 1860 and in the zamima khewat of 1884, the date of the last settlement. Held, that the custom so recorded was in no way modified by the fact that a four anna undivided share in the village had been confiscated by the Government after the mutiny and re-granted to other proprietors. Held, also, that a person related to a vendor through the female line only and twelve degrees removed from him could not be considered as falling within the description in the wajib-ul-arz of “karibi wa khandani.” *DURGA PRASAD PANDE v. But on appeal by the vendee the decree was set aside, and thereafter a portion of the money deposited by the pre-emptor was attached and drawn out of Court by a creditor who had obtained a money decree against him. The decree was, however, restored as the result of an appeal to the High Court. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to execute his decree upon making good the amount which had been removed by his creditor. Held, also, that the Court of first instance ought not to have permitted any part of the money deposited to be withdrawn until the pre-emption suit had been finally decided. *Abdus Salam v. If he gives such evidence to the satisfaction of the Court, the latter is quite justified in arriving at its own conclusion as to what was the real consideration, and this notwithstanding that it is proved that the amount stated in the deed was paid before the Sub-Registrar. *Abdul Majid v. The claim was laid in the alternative either on custom or on the Mahomedan law. The custom set up was not proved. Held, that the Mahomedan law applicable was that of the vendor, namely, the Shia law, and that the pre-emptor had no case. Jog Deb Singh v. Mahomed Afzal, I L. At a somewhat late stage in the case the plaintiff asked leave to amend his plaint by adding an alternative claim based on custom as evidenced by the wajib-ul-arz, but this was refused, and the Court, notwithstanding that it found that, according to the wajib-ul-arz, a custom of pre-emption existed, dismissed the suit. Held, that the Court ought to have permitted the plaint to be amended, and, even without amending the plaint, was competent to decree the claim on the basis of the wajib-ul-arz. *ABDUL HAMID v. alleged that the debtors "did depart from their place of business and residence and are secreting themselves so as to deprive their creditors of the means of communicating with them whereby your petitioners are advised and believe that the said insolvents are liable to be adjudged to have committed an act of insolvency." An affidavit in support of this petition alleged the indebtedness of the debtors and that they had left Madras leaving no one in charge of their respective business and "are secreting themselves for the purpose of evading their creditors." Held, that these allegations were a sufficient compliance with s. 9d(m) of the Insolvency Act. The statement of intent to defeat or delay the creditors must appear either in the petition or in the affidavit; otherwise, the petition is liable to be dismissed as the omission to state it is a substantial defect incurable by amendment. An omission to state the fact that the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor and the value of his security, as required by s. 12(2) and Rule 21, is one that could be cured by amendment. *WHITE, C. S. 15 (2) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act only applies to petitions that are pending before any order has been made, as also does s. 13 (8) dealing with petitions by creditors. Once an order of adjudication has been made, the debtor becomes an insolvent and remains so until the order of adjudication is annulled or he obtains his discharge. The Court can only annul the order of adjudication under s. 21 of the Act, if the Court is of opinion that the debtor ought not to have been adjudicated insolvent or it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the debts of the insolvent have been paid in full and in the latter case the "debts" including at least all debts actually and properly proved in bankruptcy must have been fully paid in cash. It is the duty of the Court to scrutinize the conduct of an insolvent applying for an order of annulment. The Court is given a discretion by s. 21, and it would not be a good exercise of that discretion to make an order of annulment of an adjudication where, if the insolvent were applying for his discharge, an order of discharge would not be granted. *In re Keet, [1905] 2 K. Subsequently A became insolvent and his property being vested in the Official Assignee the latter executed the decree against B and obtained payment of the amount due from B in full. Subsequently C, without the leave of the Court first obtained, brought a suit against the Official Assignee to recover the amount due to him as mortgagee of the decree against B out of the monies so recovered by the Official Assignee. Held, that the Official Assignee, having executed a decree which had been assigned by way of security, was in the position of a mortgagor who had sold the mortgaged property and was in possession of the sale-proceeds, that until the claim of the mortgagee had been satisfied the insolvent or his Official Assignee had no right to the proceeds of the decree and that the secured creditor in such a case might file a suit to obtain payment of his claim out of the amount so recovered by the Official Assignee without obtaining the leave of the Court under s. 17 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act as the proviso to s. 17 covered a suit by a mortgagee to realise his security. *LANG v. 1. ———— Special leave to appeal—Appeal in criminal case—Grounds for refusing special leave to appeal. In this case the main grounds of appeal were that the Judge had, during the trial, wrongly amended the charge to the prejudice of the petitioners; improper admission of evidence. misdirection; and that the sentences contravened the provisions of s. 71 of the Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860). But their Lordships were of opinion that in what had been done there was nothing grossly contrary to the forms of justice, nor any violation of fundamental principles, and therefore refused to grant special leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council on the ground that they had no power to interfere. *Dillet, In re, L. 2. ———— Practice in appeals in criminal cases—Charge of defamation against editor of newspaper for publication of criminal libels—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 499, Exceptions 1, 2, 9 and s. 52—Position of members of the Press and of Judges—Libel on Magistrate in respect of conduct of criminal trial—Charge to Jury—Misdirection—Powers and functions of Judicial Committee in criminal cases. No kind of privilege attaches to the profession of the Press as distinguished from the members of the public. The freedom of the journalist is an ordinary part of the freedom of the subject, and to whatever length the subject in general may go, so also may the journalist, but apart from statute law his privilege is no other and no higher. The responsibilities which attach to his power of dissemination of printed matter may, and in the case of a conscientious journalist do, make him more careful; but the range of his assertions, his criticisms, or his comments is as wide as, and no wider than, that of any other subject. No privilege attaches to his position. Nor does any privilege or protection attach to the public acts of a Judge which exempts him, in regard to these, from free and adverse comment. He is not above criticism, his conduct and utterances may demand it. Freedom would be seriously impaired if the judicial tribunals were outside of the range of such comment. The appellant, the Editor of the Burma Critic, a newspaper published in Rangoon, was charged under s. 499 of the Penal Code with having, in certain articles entitled "A Mockery of British Justice," defamed a District Magistrate with reference to his alleged conduct in the trial of a case in which a European resident in the district was acquitted on charges of abduction and rape of a native girl of 11 or 12 years. His defence was under the 9th exception to s. 499, and he pleaded admitting the libels to be false that he published them in good faith for the public good, and believing them to be true after having taken due care and attention in the matter of their publication. He did not, however, disclose what were the actual things upon which he founded his own beliefs, nor what the steps, if any, were he took to investigate their truth before giving them to the public. He was tried in the Chief Court of Lower Burma before the Chief Judge with a jury, and was found guilty and sentenced to one year's imprisonment, after serving four months of which he was discharged, the rest of the sentence being remitted. He obtained special leave to appeal mainly on the ground that, there had been misdirection, resulting in an exceptional miscarriage of justice which had caused him substantial wrong. Held, on the facts, that a fair and statable case in support of the statutory defence, and his belief that the libels were true, had been put forward for the appellant, and for the respondent a case was made which was also fair and statable, so that there was material before the jury on both sides, and the determination was on a subject peculiarly within the jury's province. The case was not improperly withdrawn from the jury's domain on fact, and they were not misdirected in law. A charge to a jury must be read as a whole. If there are salient propositions of law in it, these will of course be the subject of separate analysis. But in a protected narrative of fact, the determination of which is ultimately left to the jury, it, must needs be that the view of the Judge may not coincide with the view of others who look upon the whole proceedings in black type. It would, however, not be in accordance with usual or good practice to treat such cases as cases of misdirection if, upon the general view taken, the case has been fairly left within the jury's province. But in any case in the region of fact their Lordships of the Judicial Committee would not interfere unless something gross amounting to a complete misdescription of the whole bearing of the evidence has occurred. The appellant's defence being as above, and involving an admission that the libels were false, his counsel at the trial by statements and innuendoes which were reiterated throughout the case, endeavoured to withdraw the pleaded defence and to persuade the jury that what was stated in the defamatory articles was true. Held, that it could not be considered misdirection for the Judge in charging the jury to put before them a narrative of the real facts of the case as disclosed by the evidence, showing what was in accordance with the pleaded defence, namely, the falsity of the libels, and the consequent innocence of the Magistrate on the charges against him. The letters put in evidence as to the charges that the Magistrate had conspired to suddenly leave the complainants in the abduction and rape case without an advocate, and to furnish them with a false interpreter, though not before the appellant when he wrote the defamatory articles, were before him in the course of his trial; and when it was discovered that they were not true and that a gross mistake on a matter of fact had been made, those libels should not have been adhered to for a moment the mistake should have been acknowledged and an apology tendered, instead of which the case was conducted to its close upon the footing that an unstated defence was the real and good defence, namely, that all the libels were true. The question of the special position and functions of the Judicial Committee, and their powers and practice as advisers of the King in criminal matters is not truly one of jurisdiction. The power of His Majesty under his Royal authority to review proceedings of a criminal nature, unless where such power and authority have been parted with by Statute, is undoubted. On the other hand, there are reasons both constitutional and administrative which make it manifest that this power should not be lightly exercised. The overruling consideration upon the topic has reference to justice itself. If throughout the Empire it were supposed that the course and execution of justice could suffer serious impediment which in many cases might amount to practical obstruction, by an appeal to the Royal Prerogative of review on judicial grounds, then it becomes plain that a severe blow would have been dealt to the ordered administration of law within the King's dominions. The views expressed by Dr. Lushington in The Queen v. Joykisen Mookerjee, 1 Moo. P. C. N. S. 272, and the principle and practice laid down by Lord Kingsdown in The Falkland Islands Company v. The Queen, 1 Moo. P. C. N. S. 299, still remain those which are followed by the Judicial Committee in appeals in criminal matters. The principle laid down in Re Dillett, L. R. 12 A. C. 459, that the course of criminal proceedings will not be reviewed or interfered with by the Privy Council "unless it is shown that by a disregard of the forms of legal process, or by some violation of the principles of natural justice, or otherwise substantial or grave injustice has been done," is not to be interpreted in the sense that wherever there had been a misdirection in any criminal case leaving it uncertain whether that misdirection did or did not affect the jury's mind, that then in such case a miscarriage of justice could be affirmed or assumed. The Judicial Committee is not a Court of Criminal Appeal. In general its practice is to the following effect. It will not interfere with the course of criminal law unless there has been such an interference with the elementary right of an accused as has placed him outside of the pale of the regular law, or within that pale there has been a violation of the natural principles of justice so demonstratively manifest as to convince their Lordships, first, that the result arrived at was opposite to the result which they themselves would have reached; and, secondly, that the same opposite result would have been reached by the local tribunal also if the alleged defect or misdirection had been avoided. Mahin v. Attorney-General for New South Wales, [1894] A. C. 57, Vaithinatha Pillai v. The King-Emperor, I. L. R. 36 Mad 501, L. R. 40 I. A. 193, and Lamer v. The King, [1914] A. C. 221, distinguished. It must be established demonstrably that justice itself in its very foundations has been subverted, and that it is therefore a matter of general Imperial concern that by way of an appeal to the King it can be restored to its rightful position in that part of the Empire. The authority of decisions of the Court of Criminal Appeal in England which apply to a different system, a different procedure, and a different structure of principle, must stand out of the reckoning of any body of authority in the matter of the procedure of the Judicial Committee in advising His Majesty. Clifford v. The King-Emperor, I. L. R. 41 Cal. 568, L. R. 40 I. A. 241, approved. ARNOLD v. KING-EMPEROR (1914).

3. ———— Dismissal of appeal for want of prosecution—No judicial decision of suit—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch II, Arts. 179, 180—Application for order absolute for sale under Transfer of Property Act (IV 1882), s. 89—Final decree or order of Appellate Court An order of His Majesty in Council dismissing an appeal for want of prosecution, does not deal judicially with the matter of the suit, and can in no sense be regarded as an order adopting or confirming the decision appealed from. It merely recognized authoritatively that the appellant has not complied with the conditions under which the appeal was open to him, and that therefore he is in the same position as if he had not appealed at all. Where, therefore, in a suit to enforce a mortgage a preliminary decree for sale was made by the Subordinate Judge on the 12th of May 1890, which was confirmed by the High Court on the 8th of April 1893, and an appeal to the Privy Council was admitted, but was dismissed for want of prosecution on the 13th of May 1901. Held (reversing the decisions of the Courts in India), that the period of limitation for an application under s. 89 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) to make absolute the decree for sale was not 12 years under Art 180 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act, 1877, but three years under Art 179, and limitation ran not from the dismissal of the appeal for want of prosecution, but from the order of the High Court confirming the decree, which was "the final order of the Appellate Court," and did not become merged in the order of the Privy Council. See Batul Nah v. Munni Dei, I. L. R. 36 All. 284. 4. ———— Privy Council, interference of, in criminal case—Invasion of liberty and just rights of a citizen—Embezzlement—Criminal and Civil liability, distinction between—Costs against Crown in criminal appeal The appellant, who was a member of a firm, was authorised by the guardian of two minors by a power-of-attorney to act for the guardian in collecting and investing the minors' property. Acting under this authority, funds were received and remittances made from time to time by the appellant's firm with whom an account was opened in the name of the minors. A certain amount due to the minors from a creditor was paid by him in the shape of crediting it to the appellant's firm in their account with their bankers which account was overdrawn. The minors account with the appellant's firm was duly credited with that amount. The appellant being thereafter asked to give a guarantee for the funds of the minor in his hand gave security to the satisfaction of the authorities. Thereafter criminal proceedings were instituted against the appellant who was tried by the Chief Justice without a jury and convicted of having embezzled the minor's money: Held, that the facts did not on any just or legal view of them warrant a conviction, and the grounds of distinction between the categories of liability in a civil as distinguished from a criminal suit appeared in the present case to have been left out of judicial view. That the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council does not lightly interfere in criminal cases but in the present case, although the proceedings taken were unobjectionable in form, justice had gravely and injuriously miscarried and the sentence pronounced against the appellant formed such an invasion of liberty and such denial of his just rights as a citizen that their Lordships felt called upon to interfere. Having regard to the exceptional nature of the case their Lordships directed the Crown to pay to the appellant the costs of the appeal. LANIER v. THE KING (1913) . . . 18 C. W. N. 98

Any person aggrieved by the misconduct of an attorney has the right to invoke the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Court. In re A Solicitor, L R. 25 Q. B. D. 17, followed. On an application by an aggrieved party to have an attorney struck off the rolls of attorneys on the ground of professional misconduct: Held, that where there was a positive sworn denial of the misconduct by the attorney coupled with an explanation which was not demonstrably false, even a strong case of suspicion would not justify disciplinary action against the attorney on a summary proceeding. — s. 2, sub-sec. (8), ss. 6, 21—Registration if necessary of company with its share-capital divided into shares. A company under the name and style of the New King Insurance Co, Ltd, was started for the purpose of carrying on business as a provident insurance society. Two of the directors of the company were prosecuted for having failed to apply for registration under s. 6 of the Provident Insurance Societies Act of 1912 and thereby having committed an offence under s. 21 of the Act. The Chief Presidency Magistrate acquitted the accused on the ground that the company was one which had its share-capital divided into shares and the provisions of the Act did not apply to such a company. Held (on appeal by the Local Government), that the Provident Insurance Societies Act was intended to prevent a company from embarking in the business of life insurance unless and until it had been registered under the Act and s. 2, sub-s. (8) clearly lays down that whether the society already in existence is a corporate company before or whether its share-capital is divided into shares or not, registration under the Act is necessary before business can be carried on under the conditions laid down in the Act. *Oriental Government Security Life Insurance Co. adjudication by Court not having jurisdiction—S. 47, sub-s. (1), effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 21, if applies to proceedings under the Provincial Insolvency Act. The respondent lodged an application for insolvency in the Court of the District Judge of Midnapur and obtained an order of adjudication. It appeared that the respondent, who was employed as a guard on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, resided at Dungagarh in the Central Provinces and ran his train ordinarily from Dungagarh to Nagpur and only occasionally from Dungagarh to Kharagpur, where he stopped with his son-in-law having no permanent residence there. The application for insolvency was filed immediately after the appellant had obtained a decree against the respondent in the Court of the Munsif of Midnapur: Held, that it could not be held that the respondent ordinarily resided or personally worked for gain at Kharagpur within the meaning of sub-s. (2) of s. 6 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, and consequently the Court of the District Judge of Midnapur had no jurisdiction to deal with the application for insolvency filed by the respondent. That sub-s. (1) of s. 47 of the Provincial Insolvency Act does not directly or by implication make s. 21 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1908 applicable to proceedings under the Provincial Insolvency Act and consequently the doctrine that no objection as to the place of suing shall be allowed by an Appellate Court unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance at the earliest possible opportunity and unless there has been a failure of justice, could not be applied to proceedings under the Provincial Insolvency Act. Procedure under s. 13 (3) of the abovementioned Act was analogous to attachment before judgment under the Code of Civil Procedure. It might have been open to the objectors to wait until the receiver had taken some action in respect of the property attached and then to apply under s. 22 of the Act, but this they were not bound to do. HASHMAT BIBI v. exceeded Rs. 40, if legal—Order for adjudication when can be subsequently annulled—“Salary” if “property” of insolvent—Jurisdiction of High Court to give directions regarding order of adjudication, when only the order annulling it is under appeal. A debtor who was arrested in execution of a decree applied to be and was adjudged an insolvent. In the order of adjudication the insolvent was directed, pending realisation by sale of his assets, to pay a quarter of his monthly salary of Rs 100 a month into Court until the sum realised from him should equal one-third of the debts for which the creditor had obtained a decree. Subsequently, the District Judge annulled the order of adjudication on the ground that the insolvent had failed to abide by the condition regarding payment of one-fourth of his salary. Held, that the direction regarding the payment of one-fourth of the insolvent's salary could not have been given under the Provincial Insolvency Act. The proper course for the District Judge would have been to direct the Receiver to arrange for payment to him of one-half of the salary earned by the insolvent, “salary” being “property” of the insolvent within the meaning of s. 16, sub-s. (2) cl. (a), only one-half of the salary which exceeded Rs 40 a month being exempt from attachment under s. 60, Civil Procedure Code. That the subsequent order of the District Judge annulling the order of adjudication could not have been made under sub-s. (1) of s. 42, the conditions required by that section being absent in the present case. That when setting aside, at the instance of the insolvent, the order of the lower Court whereby it annulled the adjudication and which was the only order under appeal, it was open to the High Court to consider what directions should be given regarding the order of adjudication which was modified to the extent that the condition imposed was discharged, the District Judge being ordered to give the necessary direction according to law. *RAM CHANDRA NEOGI v. That the Court was competent to deal with the objection, as the Court has inherent authority to review the conduct of a Receiver appointed by it and to make an appropriate order so that a stranger may not be prejudiced by any act of the Receiver in excess of his authority. That it was competent to such stranger to bring any such act of the Receiver to the notice of the Court and it was the duty of the Court to inquire into it. “A person aggrieved” is a person who has suffered a legal grievance—a man against whom a decision has been pronounced which has wrongfully deprived him of something or wrongfully affected his title to something, and does not mean a person who has lost a benefit which he might have obtained if an order had been made. Ex parte Sudebotham, 14 Ch. An order by the latter Court returning the plaint for presentation to the Small Cause Court, was not an order under O. VII, r. 10 of the Civil Procedure Code as the plaint had not been originally filed in that Court, and such an order did not require to be set aside by an appeal under O. XLIII, r. 1 (a). The High Court in revision set aside the order as one made in violation of the provisions of s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. CHANDERBODAN KOER v. SHEODHAR PURSHAD (1912). 18 C. W. The Judge then passed a decree deciding the question of title. Held, that there was no substantial irregularity in thus effecting the transfer and that it must be taken that the powers conferred by s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887) were put in force in a regular manner. Held, also, that as it was a decree which could not be passed by a Court of

In a suit by the purchaser brought more than a year after to recover the land: Held, that the legal representatives of the deceased judgment-debtor could not ask the sale to be treated as a nullity on this ground by way of defence in this suit. It was an irregularity which made the sale voidable by either a proceeding under s. 311 of Act XIV of 1882 or a suit brought within one year as contemplated by Art. 12 (a) of the Limitation Act of 1877. Remembrancer—Practice and Procedure—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 4 (t), 417, 492—Acquittal, appeal from—The Legal Remembrancer of Bengal, as Public Prosecutor for Bengal, incompetent to prefer an appeal from acquittal, for the Government of Bihar and Orissa. By a notification published in the Calcutta Gazette on 24th June 1886, the Legal Remembrancer of Bengal was to be ex officio Public Prosecutor in all cases before the High Court on its Appellate Side except Calcutta cases. On 1st April 1912, the Government of Bihar and Orissa appointed Mr. Adam to be the Legal Remembrancer of that Province. Under instructions from the Government of Bihar and Orissa contained in their letter dated 23rd April 1913 (which did not appoint him Public Prosecutor for this case), the Legal Remembrancer of Bengal (through his Deputy) presented this appeal to the High Court on 2nd May 1913: Held, that, from 1st April 1912, the Legal Remembrancer of Bihar and Orissa became ex officio Public Prosecutor for that Province; and that the mere fact that a person had been directed to present an appeal to the High Court from an order of acquittal did not involve his appointment as Public Prosecutor for Bihar and Orissa for the purposes of the case; and that, accordingly, the appeal presented by the Deputy Legal Remembrancer of Bengal was incompetent. *DEPUTY LEGAL REMEMBRANCER, BENGAL v. The Municipal Corporation sued to obtain a declaration that the Railway Company could not lawfully maintain their lines of railway across the street in question without either obtaining permission granted by the Corporation and confirmed by the Government under s 293 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act, or acquiring the land required for the level-crossing under the land Acquisition Act, 1894. Held, that the statutory authority under s 7 of the Indian Railways Act was established and that the application of s. 293 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act was excluded by the words "notwithstanding anything in any other enactment for the time being in force" in the first-mentioned section Held, further, that where a railway company wished to lay a line of railway upon and across a street, it was neither necessary nor appropriate to proceed under the Land Acquisition Act for the acquisition of the land, because if the Government under s. 7 of the Act were to direct the Collector to take order for the acquisition of the land he would make his award and take possession and the land would then vest absolutely in Government for the railway company free from incumbrances and would then cease to be a portion of the street, and the railway company would be unable to exercise the power given to it of constructing the railways upon and across the "street" Held, further, that the effect of s. 289 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act vesting all public streets, pavements, stones and other materials in the Corporation and under the control of the Commissioner, was only to vest in that body such property as was necessary for the control, protection and maintenance of the street as a highway for public use *G. just and convenient The case for the appointment of a Receiver is much stronger if a party to the partition action is in sole occupation In such a case any other party may obtain a Receiver either of his share of the rents and profits or of the whole estate. The Court may also allow the party in exclusive occupation to elect to pay to the others an occupation rent, or the Court may require security from the co-owner in exclusive occupation to account for their share of the rents to the other co-owners Held, that in the circumstances of the present case the second of the four alternative courses, viz., appointment of a Receiver of the whole estate was the proper one to adopt. One of the parties to a litigation should not ordinarily be appointed a Receiver except in very exceptional circumstances In the special circumstances of this case, the defendant in possession was appointed Receiver of the whole estate subject to conditions. *SUPRASANNA ROY v. But it is not proper for the Receiver to wait till the day of hearing and put this objection forward as a ground for dismissing the suit. Where by consent, in a partition suit two of the parties were made Receivers of different portions of the property with full powers under s. 503 of Act XIV of 1882: Held, that each of the Receivers had power to bring and defend suits, and a suit by one against the other without leave specially obtained

— s. 17, cls. (a), (b) and (h)—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17, excep (v)—Registered conveyance—Simultaneous unregistered document to reconvey—An ordinary agreement to sell—Exemption from registration. The plaintiff and the defendant agreed that plaintiff should nominally sell the property in suit out and out to the defendant and thereafter to attorn to him for an amount of rent which would represent reasonable interest. A conveyance to this effect was executed and duly registered. Contemporaneously the defendant executed an agreement to the plaintiff to re-convey the property for the same consideration, namely Rs. 1,499, when called upon to do so. This agreement was not registered. The plaintiff having brought a suit against the defendant for the specific performance of the unregistered agreement to reconvey, the lower Courts dismissed the suit on the ground that the agreement was compulsorily registrable under s. 17, cls (a) and (b), of the Registration Act (III of 1877). On second appeal by the plaintiff: Held, reversing the decree, that the agreement did not require registration. Separated entirely from the defendant's registered conveyance, plaintiff's unregistered document was nothing more than an ordinary agreement to sell and such agreements were expressly exempted from the operation of s. 17, clauses (a) and (b) of the Registration Act (III of 1877) by clause (h) and of s. 17 of the Registration Act (XVI of 1908) by exception (v). Having regard to the form of the document as a whole, it was no more than an ordinary agreement to re-convey. SAYAD MIR GAZI v MIRYA ALI (1914).

I, Art. 22—Trusts Act (II of 1882), s 5—"Composition deed"—Compounding of debts due—Transfer of immovable property—Registration not necessary With the consent of creditors to the extent of Rs 1,22,000 out of the total number of creditors claiming Rs 1,61,800 of the family firm represented by one B, the latter executed a deed making over all the specified assets of the family to certain nominated trustees. The creditors coming in (by a particular day) under the deed agreed that after all the goods and the properties had been made over to the trustees no other claim whatever with regard to the amounts due to them should remain outstanding against B and the minor members of the family, but the whole claim should be understood to be written off against them, and B and the minors were to make use of the deed as a release passed on their behalf. The deed also provided that the trustees were to manage the properties for the benefit of the creditors interested and the monies realized from time to time were to be distributed among such creditors, in proportion to their claims. The properties comprised in the deed, moveable as well as immovable, were transferred to the trustees in due course. The deed was unregistered. Subsequently in a suit brought by the trustees to recover possession of a house comprised in the deed, a question having arisen whether the deed was a composition deed: Held, that the definition of the term "composition deed" as given in Art. 22, Sch. I of the Stamp Act (II of 1899), meant the same thing as the term "composition deed" in s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877), that the term so defined covered three classes of instruments: (i) An assignment for the benefit of creditors (ii) an agreement whereby payment of a composition or dividend was secured to the creditors and (iii) an inspectorship deed for the purpose of working the debtor's business for the benefit of his creditors, that the inclusion of the term "composition deed," in s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) showed that it was intended to apply to a transfer of immovable property and not to a mere agreement to take fractional payment of money in settlement of claims, that the test of a "composition deed" was that there ought to be a compounding of debts due and that such a deed fell under cl (e) of s 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) and did not require registration under that Act nor under the provisions of s. 5 of the Trusts Act (II of 1882). Held, accordingly, that the deed in question was a composition deed within the meaning of s 17, cl. 2, of the Registration Act (III of 1877), and did not require registration. CHANDRASHANKAR v BAI MAGAN (1914) I. Property comprised in mortgage, non-existence of—Onus of proof—Effect of registration by officer not having jurisdiction—Mortgagee, title of—Amendment of Schedule to mortgage deed—Property substituted not belonging to mortgagor—Fictitious entry in Schedule to get deed registered in Calcutta—Concurrent findings of fact as to mistake in entries in Schedule—No evidence showing mistake. The plaintiff's (appellants') claim was based on a mortgage decree passed in a suit brought in the High Court at Calcutta on its Original Side to enforce a mortgage executed in the plaintiff's favour. The defendants (respondents) were the mortgagor (who did not appear) and two other persons who disputed the mortgagee's title. These defendants (who had not been parties to the suit on the mortgage) alleged that the mortgage deed had not been legally registered, because no portion of the property mortgaged was situated in Calcutta where the deed had been registered, and the decree had therefore been made by a Court which had no jurisdiction to entertain a suit on the mortgage, and the plaintiff had no title to maintain the suit. The only portion of the property in the mortgage deed alleged in the suit on the mortgage to be situate in Calcutta, was parcel No. 28 in the Schedule, and was described as "25 Guru Das Street"; but the property so described was found to be non-existent, the wrong description being said to be due to a mistake though no evidence of it was given. The Court directed an amendment, and the description was altered to "25, Ashutosh Dey's Lane" which was in Calcutta, and was comprised within the same boundaries as those given in parcel 28 of the Schedule to the mortgage deed. In the present suit no evidence was given either by the mortgagor or the mortgagee to show that there had been any mistake in the description of the property; but it was proved by the defendants that the property contained within the boundaries given in parcel 28 was property which did not belong and never had belonged to the mortgagor. Both the Courts below, like the High Court in the suit on the mortgage, found without any evidence that there had been a mistake in the entry of parcel 28, and held that part of the property being in Calcutta the deed had been properly registered there, and that the decree in the mortgage suit had been rightly made, and with jurisdiction. Held (reversing those decisions), that it was open to the defendants (not having been parties to the mortgage suit) to contest the validity of the decree, and for the same reason the direction of the High Court that the entry in the Schedule should be amended did not affect them; and that under the circumstances of the case the onus was on the plaintiff to show that the entry in that parcel was not a fictitious entry, which onus he had not discharged. And their Lordships on the conduct of the parties and the evidence in the case, held that that parcel was in fact a fictitious entry and represented no property that the mortgagor possessed or intended to mortgage, or that the mortgagee intended to form part of his security. Such an entry intentionally made use of by the parties for the purpose of obtaining registration in a district where no part of the property actually charged and intended to be charged in fact existed, was a fraud on the Registration law, and no registration obtained by means thereof was valid. No such fictitious entry inserted to give a colourable appearance to the deed of relating to property in Calcutta when in reality such was not the case, could bring the deed within the limited jurisdiction of the Court. The High Court, therefore, had no jurisdiction to make the decree; and the deed not having been registered in accordance with the Registration Act (III of 1877), the mortgagee had no title to maintain the suit. The principle of concurrent findings of fact does not apply to a case of no evidence; according to well-known principles of law a decision that there is no evidence to support a finding being a question of law. Where, therefore, the Subordinate Judge found that the erroneous entry in the Schedule had been made by mistake, and the High Court accepted that finding, but there was no evidence to show that there was in fact any mistake in the matter. Held, that the finding was one which could be set aside by the Judicial Committee on appeal without departing from their practice of not interfering with concurrent findings of fact. HARENDRA LAL ROY CHOWDHURI v. 1. ————— Estoppel—Mortgage by Hindu widow claiming an absolute estate—Reversioner previous independent title of. On 28th August 1879, one Musammat Bharno was declared to have preferential title to one Satyabadi in certain lands. On the 30th September 1904, Bharno executed a conditional mortgage. In a suit for foreclosure brought by the mortgagee against Bharno and Satyabadi's brother Baleshwar who was made a party on the allegation that he was in possession as a donee of the equity of redemption, a decree in rem was granted to the mortgagee, and Baleshwar (who repudiated the title of Bharno and set up a title in himself alleging that the property belonged to him, and Bharno was in possession as his guardian) was dismissed from the suit. Subsequently, the mortgage decree having been made absolute, and the mortgagee having been unable to obtain possession of the lands in question, a suit for recovery of possession was filed on the 19th June 1906, by the mortgagee against Baleshwar. This latter suit was decreed on the 17th September 1906, and both Courts of Appeal subsequently confirmed this decree. Shortly after the decision of the High Court in the above appeal, Bharno died, and, on the 2nd April 1909, Baleshwar brought a suit against the mortgagee for declaration of title and recovery of possession. Held, that the decision in the litigation of 1879 could not operate as res judicata. Baleshwar Bagarti v Bhagwati Das, 1 L. VII of 1868), s 8 Where the Subordinate Judge of Cuttack decided that it was absolutely necessary that the notification of a Revenue Sale should be published in the Vernacular Gazette in Urya, and that its non-publication had made the sale null and void apart from any consideration as to inadequacy of price: Held, that the publication of a notification of sale in the Calcutta Gazette only was sufficient compliance with a provision of Law (Act XI of 1859, s 6) requiring the publication of such notification in the "Official Gazette." Held, further, that even if it had been necessary to publish the notification in the Urya Gazette the omission to do so would not have rendered the sale null and void in the absence of any proof of substantial injury by reason of this omission, as s. 33 of Act XI of 1859 applied to such a case. Gobind Lal Roy v Ramjanam Misser, I. Share of estate not sold at auction—Payment of arrears by defaulting proprietor—Subsequent payment by co-sharer—Priority between depositors—Suit to set aside sale—Revenue Sales Act (XI of 1859), ss. 13, 14, 33, 53. In respect of a certain touzi numerous separate accounts had been opened in the Collector's register. The plaintiff had an interest in separate account No. 282, the 1st defendant in No. 168 and the 2nd defendant in No. 222. Several of these accounts fell into arrears and among them was No. 222 and a residuary share. No. 222, which formed the subject-matter of the present suit, was, among others, advertised to be put up for sale, on the 20th September, 1909; but as no bid was received, the Collector, under s. 14 of Act XI of 1859, declared that the entire estate would be put up for sale at a future date, unless the other sharer or sharers paid up the arrears within 10 days. On the 21st and 28th September 1909, the 1st defendant paid into the Treasury the whole of the arrears in respect of all the various accounts including No. 222 and the residuary share. On the 30th September 1909, the plaintiff deposited into the Treasury the arrears due on some of the accounts, including No. 222, but excepting the residuary share. Subsequently, the Collector declared the defendant No. 1 purchaser of the estates represented by the various separate accounts. On appeal to the Commissioner, the decision of the Collector was upheld and the sale confirmed on the 8th February 1910. Thereafter, the 1st defendant took possession of the several properties and on the 21st December 1910, he conveyed the same by sale to the 3rd defendant. On the 7th February 1911, the plaintiff presented his plaint for recovery of possession of No. 222 and in the alternative for the possession of the half share in it, but owing to the plaint being insufficiently stamped, time to pay in the proper court-fee was granted to the plaintiff with the compliance of the defendants. At the expiry of such time some holidays intervened and it was not till the 2nd March 1911, that the plaint was actually filed. The District Judge having decreed the suit, the 3rd defendant alone appealed to the High Court. Held, that the question of limitation could not now be raised, but it is improper for a Court to extend the period of limitation for the institution of a suit merely for the convenience of the plaintiff. Held, further, that there could be no doubt that the 2nd defendant was the real purchaser both in the purchase by the 1st defendant in September 1909, and in the sale by the 1st defendant to the 3rd defendant in December 1910. Held, further, that in s. 14, of the Revenue Sales Act, 1859, the words "other recorded sharer" must mean a recorded sharer of a share other than the share exposed for sale." Quære. Whether the Legislature intended to exclude a defaulting sharer of a share exposed for sale from purchasing such share under s 14 Held, further, that the estate could only be sold if the whole of it was in arrears, and that it could not be said that the plaintiff's deposit was insufficient without proof of that fact. Held, further, that as soon as the payment was made the purchase was complete and there was nothing left for any one else to buy; and that the Collector was bound to recognize the depositor who first paid the whole amount, or if there were more depositors than one, to recognise as joint purchasers those whose payments first amounted to the total arrears due Debi Pershad v. Akho Koer 4 C. W. N 465, referred to. Held, further, that the suit was barred by s. 33 of the Revenue Sales Act, 1859. Gossain Chutturbhooj Dut v. Ishri Mul, I. L. Description of property in schedule to execution proceedings—Confirmation of sale—Order granting certificate of sale of property different from that described in schedule—Alleged mistake—Order set aside as having been made without jurisdiction. Certain property to be sold under a decree was described in the schedule to the application for execution, and in the proclamation of sale as a six-anna share of a mahal subject to an existing mortgage; and after the sale had been confirmed the auction-purchasers applied for a certificate of sale, and, alleging, that a mistake had been made in the schedule by the omission of the word "not," asked to have the purchased property declared in the certificate to be a six-anna share of the mahal not encumbered by the mortgage. The alleged mistake was stated to have been corrected before the sale by an advertisement in the Calcutta Gazette. The Subordinate Judge granted a certificate of sale in that form, and his order was upheld by the High Court. Held (reversing those decisions), that what is sold at a judicial sale can be nothing but the property attached, which in this case was the property described in the schedule in the execution proceedings. It was not a case of misdescription which might have been treated as an irregularity. Identity and not description had here to be dealt with. An existing property was accurately described in the schedule and the order of the Subordinate Judge granted a sale certificate which stated that another and a different property had been purchased at the judicial sale. If by mistake the wrong property was attached and sold, the only course was for the decree-holders to commence the execution proceedings over again. The advertisement in the Gazette purporting to correct the alleged mistake could not validate a sale of property which was not that to which the attachment related. The order of the Subordinate Judge was made without jurisdiction as there was no power to sell in the judicial proceedings the property which the certificate of sale declared had been purchased. Then Lordships set aside the order confirming the sale together with the sale certificate granted thereunder. THAKUR BARMHA v. JIBAN RAM MARWARI (1913). I. L. R. 41 Calc. 590 in exercise of statutory powers—Alleged ratification by the Local Government—Government order—Absolute privilege Suit by the plaintiff, who represented the Assam Labour Supply Association in Ganjam and other districts, against the Secretary of State for India in Council for damages in respect of two orders of the District Magistrate of Ganjam suspending and dismissing one T S, the local agent of the Association in Ganjam and closing his depôt to recruiting under the Assam Labour and Emigration Act (VI of 1901), whereby the plaintiff was prevented from earning from the members of the Association his commission of seven rupees for each labourer sent to Assam, and for an alleged libel on the plaintiff in an order passed by the Governor in Council on appeals by the plaintiff and other against the aforesaid orders, in which it was stated that the plaintiff's own conduct was not altogether above suspicion. Held, under the Notification issued pursuant to s 91 of the aforesaid Act as amended relaxing the provisions of the Act in favour of the Association, the District Magistrate had power to dismiss the local agent but not to suspend him or to close his depôt to recruiting under the Act independently of the Notification. Semble: That the damage to the plaintiff by reason of the loss of his commission was too remote. The defendant's liability to suit is the same as that of the East India Company before the passing of the Government of India Act, 1858; it can only be altered by Act of Parliament, and is not affected by s 79, Civil Procedure Code. Extent of such liability in respect of acts done in the exercise of sovereign powers not being acts of State, discussed. It was not sufficient to render the Company liable that an act of this nature had been done by its servant in the course of employment but without previous order or subsequent ratification. Ratification must have been by the Company and must now be by the Secretary of State. Essentials of ratification discussed. In the present case the defendant was not liable for the act of the District Magistrate on the further ground that it was done by him in the exercise of statutory authority and not as an agent of Government. Further, as to the alleged defamation, the order of the Government of Madras, having been published in the execution of its duty and without exceeding it, was absolutely privileged, and in any case there was no evidence of malice. *Dhakjee Dadajee v. Temporary Settlement—Effect on permanent interest—Entry in settlement records, effect of. Certain lands were held under the Government under a temporary settlement during the currency of which the holders granted a permanent sub-lease to the plaintiffs who before the expiration of the lease granted by Government granted a permanent lease to one of the grantors. Ever since then the sub-lessee and his successor-in-interest were in occupation of the land, the settlement being from time to time renewed by Government in favour of the original settlement-holders or their representatives, but in the course of the last settlement the under-tenures were not mentioned in the settlement records. Held (in a suit for rent by the plaintiffs), that the mere omission of the settlement authorities to make an entry in the settlement records in respect of the tenures and under-tenures cannot affect the rights of the parties; and the effect of the re-settlement by the Government with the original settlement-holders was to keep alive the contractual obligation of the subordinate holders among themselves. The rights and obligations of the parties were mutual, the plaintiffs being bound to make good the title of the defendants as soon as by virtue of the re-settlement they were placed in a position to continue the lease in favour of the defendants, and the defendants being under an obligation to continue as tenants under the plaintiffs on the basis of the lease and to pay rent accordingly. *MOHENDRA NATH BISWAS v. Held, that on 20th June 1904, the date on which the present suit was instituted in the Subordinate Judge's Court at Bhagalpur to enforce a mortgage of properties two-thirds of which was in the Sonthal Parganas, no suit could be in any Court established under the Civil Courts Act of 1871 or 1887, in regard to any land or interest in or arising out of any land or for the rents or profits of any land, but such suits must have been brought under s. 5 of Sonthal Parganas Regulation of 1872 before the Settlement Officers or Courts of officers appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under s. 2 of the Sonthal Parganas Act, 1855, and the Sonthal Parganas Justice Regulation of 1893, Part 2, so long as the land had not been settled and the settlement declared by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette to have been completed and concluded. That as it appeared that portions only of the mortgaged land had been settled and notification made prior to the institution of the suit of the completion of the settlement in respect of such portions only, the suit came within s. 5 of the Sonthal Parganas Regulation of 1872 and the Subordinate Judge of Bhagalpur had no jurisdiction to entertain it. The provision in s. 6 of that Regulation which places all contractual stipulation as to compound interest in a position of non-enforceability and limits statutorily the total interest which can be decreed on any loan or debt is not one of procedure, but of substance, and applies to all Courts having jurisdiction in the Sonthal Parganas and acting under and by virtue of such jurisdiction. “All Courts having jurisdiction in the Sonthal Parganas” in s. 6 do not refer only to Courts locally situated in the Sonthal Parganas and dealing with matters purely local. A stipulation in the mortgage-bond that the mortgagees might enforce it in the Court at Bhagalpur was inoperative, as the parties could not by consent give the Court jurisdiction thereby nullifying the express prohibition of s. 5 of the Regulation of 1872. The Civil Procedure Codes of 1861, 1877 and 1882 applied to suits cognizable in the ordinary Civil Courts, and these, since the enactment of s. 9 of Reg V of 1893, were suits of which the value exceeded Rs. 1,000 and which were not excluded from their cognizance by, amongst others, the provisions of s. 5 of the Regu-* lation of 1872 Quære: Whether the Civil Procedure Code was intended by the Notification of 19th August 1867 to apply to Courts held by officers appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in those suits in which they were not required to try and determine the case according to the several laws and regulations prevailing in Bengal. Semble: The true interpretation of cl. (1) of Act XXXVII of 1855 (before its operation was modified by subsequent enactments and notifications) was that even suits on which the matter in dispute exceeded Rs. 1,000 in value were to be tried by the special officers appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, but in trying and determining them, they were to observe the general laws and regulations obtaining in Bengal. *Sorbojt Roy v. That it was not open to the plaintiff to urge that as there was no express decision of the Settlement Court upon the question of the dar-mokurari status of the defendants the matter was open for investigation in a Civil suit inasmuch as it must be held that there was such a decision by implication. Held, however, that it was for the defendants, who pleaded the entry as a bar, to establish the circumstances in which the decree was made and to prove conclusively that the decree does operate as res judicata. for a regular appeal (on law and fact), and there is no further appeal to the High Court from the decision of the District Judge on appeal from the Collector given by the terms of the Act itself, yet under s. 372 of Act VIII of 1859 which was the Civil Procedure Code in force when Madras Act VIII of 1865 was passed, and which regulated the procedure of the Civil Courts in India outside the Presidency towns, a special appeal lay "to the Sudder Court from all decisions passed in regular appeal by the Courts subordinate to the Sudder Court"; and when the District Court was substituted for the Zillah Court and the High Court for the Sudder Court a special appeal lay from the District Court to the High Court. The terms of the latter Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) which was the Code in force when the suits out of which the present appeals arose, were instituted are clear on the point that an appeal lies from the order of the District Judge to the High Court unless that right is taken away by express legislation or some express provision of law. And a second or special appeal to the High Court in cases arising under Madras Act VIII of 1865 has been held to lie in Veeraswamy v. Manager, Pittapur Estate, 1 L. R. 26 Mad. 518. The practice has been ever since the passing of the Act for such appeals to be preferred to the High Court, and their Lordships would not be disposed to interfere with such a long standing practice even if they thought there was an implied rule against second appeals lying from the decisions of the District Judge with respect to adjudications under the Act by the Collector. S. 584 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, distinctly prohibits second appeals on questions of fact, and confines the competency of the High Court to deal with law and procedure. Where, therefore, in a suit by a landlord under s. 9 of the Madras Act VIII of 1865, to enforce acceptance of a patta by his tenants, and the sole question was whether on the evidence an arrangement which had been previously come to between the parties was permanent, and the Collector and the District Judge concurrently found in the defendant's favour that it was permanent, but the High Court on second appeal ignored that finding and held that the landlord was entitled to revert to a system of rates which had existed prior to such arrangement: Held, that the High Court had acted in inadvertence of s. 584 of the Code, and had thereby assumed a jurisdiction which it did not possess, and its decision was set aside and the case remitted to India. *Durga Chowdhuri v. SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE—*concl'd.

On the 22nd April 1910, the first defendant entered into an agreement with the plaintiff to transfer to him a certain house and received Rs. 510 as earnest money, the transaction to be completed within 3 months. The first defendant also undertook to satisfy the purchaser that she had a valid saleable interest in the property by showing the will of her mother and other papers relating to the property. On 15th July 1910, plaintiff called upon the first defendant to send him the title-deeds, etc., and on the 21st July (i.e. the day previous to the latest day) plaintiff notified the first defendant that he was ready with the purchase money. A draft will and some of the title deeds only were produced. On the 30th August 1910, the second defendant (who had notice of this prior contract) purchased the property in suit from the first defendant in the name of his wife, the third defendant. The Civil Courts were closed from the 2nd October to 3rd November. On the 5th November 1910, plaintiff commenced this action for specific performance, after the second defendant had spent nearly Rs. 900 on repairs: Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to have the contract specifically enforced not only against that vendor but also against the transferee who was not a bona fide purchaser for value without notice. Held, also, that there was no precedent for a delay of one month in the institution of a suit being sufficient to justify a refusal of relief by way of specific performance. Glassbrook v. Richardson, 23 W. R. (Eng.) 51, approved. Held, also, that sub-s. (2) of s. 22 of the Specific Relief Act clearly contemplated a case in which the vendor had entered into a contract without full knowledge of the circumstances. But where the hardship had been brought upon the subsequent purchaser by himself, the Court would not consider that as a circumstance in favour of the refusal of specific performance. Kandarpa Nath Ghosh v. Jogendra Nath Ghosh, 12 C. L. J. 391, approved. Held, also, that the defendant had not established any right to be reimbursed for the improvement made on the property. *Clare Hall v. In 1899 finding that J was unfaithful, plaintiff induced K to institute a fictitious suit for rent which was decreed on the 7th November 1899. K took out execution of this decree and at the sale which followed purchased the holding on the 19th March 1900. According to plaintiff's allegation K had agreed to execute a release of the holding in his favour, and although possession was formally delivered to K on 5th June 1900 Plaintiff continued in occupation of the land. In November 1906 K with the help of the Police took away the crops raised by the plaintiff and on the 15th March 1907 plaintiff brought a suit for declaration that the entire proceedings in the rent-suit of 1899 were fictitious and also for confirmation of his possession of the land. Held, that the suit was not one for specific performance of a contract and was not barred by limitation. That the case fell within the principle of the decision of the High Court in Jadu Nath Poddar v. Rup Lal Poddar, I. L. R. 33 Cal. 967, and of the Judicial Committee in Pether-permal Chetty v. Munandy Senar, I. L. Where one of two divided brothers of a Hindu family agreed to sell immoveable property held by them in common, and a suit was brought for specific performance of the contract by compelling the vendor to execute a deed of sale in respect of the whole of the property agreed to be sold: Held, that no specific performance could be granted, as the execution of a sale deed by the defendant would be ineffectual in respect of the moiety not belonging to him, the Court would not lend its sanction to a transaction devoid of legal effect and improper in itself as calculated to throw a cloud on the title of a third person which would give him a cause of action for a declaratory suit. *Poraka Subbaramu Reddy v. Transfer of immoveable property—Registration not necessary. With the consent of creditors to the extent of Rs 1,22,000 out of the total number of creditors claiming Rs. 1,61,800 of the family firm represented by one B, the latter executed a deed making over all the specified assets of the family to certain nominated trustees. The creditors coming in (by a particular day) under the deed agreed that after all the goods and the properties had been made over to the trustees no other claim whatever with regard to the amounts due to them should remain outstanding against B and the minor members of the family, but the whole claim should be understood to be written off against them, and B and the minors were to make use of the deed as a release passed on their behalf. The deed also provided that the trustees were to manage the properties for the benefit of the creditors interested and the monies realized from time to time were to be distributed among such creditors in proportion to their claims. The properties comprised in the deed, moveable as well as immoveable, were transferred to the trustees in due course. The deed was unregistered. Subsequently in a suit brought by the trustees to recover possession of a house comprised in the deed, a question having arisen whether the deed was a composition deed. Held, that the definition of the term “composition deed” as given in Art. 22, Sch. I of the Stamp Act (II of 1899), meant the same thing as the term “composition deed” in s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877), that the term so defined covered three classes of instruments: (i) An assignment for the benefit of creditors; (ii) an agreement whereby payment of a composition or dividend was secured to the creditors; and (iii) an inspectorship deed for the purpose of working the debtor’s business for the benefit of his creditors, that the inclusion of the term “composition deed” in s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) showed that it was intended to apply to a transfer of immoveable property and not to a mere agreement to take fractional payment of money in settlement of claims, that the test of a “composition deed” was that there ought to be a compounding of debts due and that such a deed fell under cl. (e) of s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) and did not require registration under that Act nor under the provisions of s. 5 of the Trusts Act (II of 1882). Held, accordingly, that the deed in question was ‘a composition deed’ within the meaning of s. 17, cl. 2, of the Registration Act (III of 1877), and did not require registration. CHANDRASHANKAR v. BAI MAGAN (1914).

s. 190—Letters of administration obtained by plaintiff after suit filed but before hearing and decree—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 130—Order to banker to pay money held to the credit of customer, effect of when acted on—Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 36—Resulting trust One W had a deposit of Rs. 10,500 in a bank under a deposit receipt which fell due on the 7th of August 1912 W had a grand-nephew H, to whom he wished to transfer the money, meaning that H should have the benefit of the money, but not intending that he should be able to make away with the money in W's life-time or to draw the interest without making due provision for W's maintenance. On the 8th of August 1912, W handed to H his deposit receipt duly endorsed and a letter to the following effect:—"I hereby state that I have found my Bank Receipt. Herewith I am forwarding the same for the interest now due "I wish it to be handed over to my nephew. I also wish you to hand over the amount of Rs 10,500 which is in fixed deposit to my nephew, Wilmot Charles Harrison, to his account" H took these documents to the bank and asked for and obtained a new deposit receipt for Rs. 10,000, the balance of Rs 500 in cash and Rs. 420 in cash by way of interest. On the 18th of October 1912, W died. On the 5th of August 1913, G, a grand-niece of W, filed a suit against H as administratrix of the estate of W, claiming that the sum deposited with the bank, in the plaint stated to be Rs. 10,000, formed part of the estate of W and that the plaintiff, as administratrix of his estate, was entitled to the same. At the date of the filing of the suit G had not obtained Letters of Administration to W's estate but did obtain them before the hearing of the suit Held, that the plaint was defective in that it did not show that the plaintiff had obtained Letters of Administration, and should on that account have been rejected on presentation, but that as the plaintiff had obtained Letters of Administration before the hearing and the hearing had been allowed to proceed, a decree passed in favour of the plaintiff was not contrary to s. 190 of the Indian Succession Act. Held, further, that where money mentioned in a deposit receipt was immediately payable and the receipt was presented duly endorsed together with an order to pay a given individual, that individual became the owner of the money upon payment by the banker or upon his promise to hold the money at the disposal of the payee, that an order on a banker to pay money which he held to the credit of a customer was not an assignment of a debt, but an authority to deliver property, which, if acted on, was equivalent to delivery by the customer, and that the letter of the 8th of August 1912 was such an order and had been acted on and though had an objection been taken at the hearing before the lower Court it might have been rejected for want of a stamp that such an objection could not be taken on appeal, the letter being on record. Held, further, that the intention of the donor, W, to benefit negatived the idea of any resulting trust in his favour. *SETHNA v. The widow could undoubtedly assign the debt, and it was not necessary, even if it were possible, for the assignees to obtain cancellation of the certificate granted to the widow and the issue of a fresh certificate in their favour. *Karup-pasami v. 2. _____ Surety for an administrator of estate, if may be discharged or substituted—Surety, creating charge on his immoveable property, release of charge—Surety bond, discharge of and substitution—Administration account, if may be examined by Court. Letters of Administration were granted to the estate of the deceased K, a Hindu governed by the Dayabhaga law, to R one of his first cousins who for purposes of such administration was also appointed guardian of deceased's infant son, and R's two brothers stood surety for the administrator. The estate being a very large one the Court required the sureties to charge their immoveable properties in the surety bond besides making them personally liable. The infant having died without issue and intestate, his paternal grandmother succeeded to the estate as his heir. R thereupon applied to Court stating that he had tendered an account of the estate as administered by him to the lady and that she had the same examined by her constituted attorneys and that they were satisfied with the account and that the residue of the estate had been made over to her and prayed that the sureties be discharged and the charge on their immoveable property be also discharged. The Court ordered that on the lady's constituted attorneys filing a verified certificate together with the account or abstract thereof stating that they had examined and found it correct, and on the administrator filing the receipts for the debts paid to the satisfaction of the Registrar, the surety bond creating a charge on the immoveable properties of the sureties would be discharged, conditional upon the sureties executing a fresh security bond making themselves personally liable for the administration of the estate by the petitioner. Raj Narain Mukerjee v. Ful Kumari Devi, I. L. R. 29 Calc. 68, referred to. Conditions of grant of temporary injunction—Co-owners—Building by co-owner—Undue advantage—Revision by High Court—Charter Act (24 & 25 Vict., c. 104) s. 15. Where plaintiffs who were joint owners with defendants in respect of the property in suit sued them for declaration of title thereto and applied for an injunction to restrain the defendants from building on the land, and the lower Appellate Court set aside the temporary injunction granted by the Court of first instance. Held, that sold occupation by one co-sharer did not necessarily constitute ouster of the other co-owners. But a co-owner who was, with the tacit or express consent of his co-sharer, in sole occupation of a portion of joint property, was not entitled to change the nature of that possession or to use the property in a mode different from that in which it had previously been used. Dwijendra Narain Roy v. Purnendu Narain Roy, 11 C. L. River Steam Navigation Co., 14 B. L. R. 352, followed. Jones, L. R. 1 P. C. 50, followed. Held, also, that under circumstances like these the matter for consideration at that stage was, where did the balance of convenience lie, was it desirable that the status quo should be maintained or was it right that defendants should be allowed to continue to alter the character of the land. *Jones v. that such purchaser was not entitled to sue his vendor for specific performance, a subsequent purchaser of the property under a registered conveyance could not succeed in a suit to recover possession of the property from the former purchaser. —Oral arrangement that mortgagee should give up possession of the mortgaged property in part, and receive the equity of redemption in part—Sale or Exchange—“Price,” meaning of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92—Adverse possession by mortgagee A usufructuary mortgagee of items A and B sued to redeem item A, alleging that item B had been previously redeemed by him. The defendant pleaded that more than 12 years prior to suit the mortgage had been extinguished by an oral arrangement by which the mortgagor orally sold item A to the mortgagee in consideration for the latter surrendering item B to the mortgagor freed from the mortgage lien. The defendant also contended that the possession of the mortgagee became adverse from the date of the arrangement, and that the suit was barred by limitation. PER CURIAM. Held, that the transaction pleaded was not merely a compromise in acknowledgment of existing right, but amounted to an exchange of property within s. 118 of the Transfer of Property Act if it was not a sale, and was invalid for want of a registered instrument. PER MILLER, J. The transaction could not be proved for showing the change of the mortgagee's possession into adverse possession, since the intention to discharge the mortgage involved the intention to make certain transfers, and it could not be said that if those transfers failed, both the parties nevertheless intended to discharge the mortgage. PER SADA-SIVA AYYAR, J. All transfers by conveyance, if they are not settlements or declarations of trust were intended by the Legislature to come within one of the headings 'sale,' 'exchange' or 'gift' in the Transfer of Property Act. Thiruvengadachariar v. Ranganatha Aiyangar, 13 Mad. L. J. 500, dissented from. Price means not only money in current coin, but includes money due on prior debt, and the words 'price paid' will cover cases where the vendor's claim to the receipt of the price is satisfied by giving him what he accepts as tantamount to such payment. A mortgagee in possession, as such, cannot by merely asserting possession as owner under an invalid sale convert his possession into adverse possession so as to prescribe for a title under the Limitation Act. *Byari v. —Mortgage—Charge. A deed commenced by reciting that the executant had borrowed a certain sum of money from certain persons, and then proceeded to refer to certain share in a property, and finally there was a clause by which the executant undertook that until repayment of the amount he would not transfer the property by sale, mortgage, gift or in any other way, but there was in no part of the document any expression conveying the idea of mortgage or hypothecation, nor was there any reference to any right of sale in the property. Held, by RICHARDS, C. J., that it was the intention of the parties to make the property mentioned therein security for the loan and interest and that the document created a charge within the meaning of s. 100 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. But as there was no transfer of any interest, for the purposes of securing the loan, in the property mentioned in the deed, it was not a simple mortgage without the meaning of s. 58. PER BANERJI J. (contra) The intention was that the persons who had lent the money should have a right to realize their money from the property by causing it to be sold. The document was therefore a simple mortgage within the meaning of section 58 of the Transfer of Property Act. Martin v. Pussram, N. W. P. H. C. 124, referred to. *JAWAHIR MAL v. and binding the defendant to execute on demand a proper legal mortgage of the property covered by the title-deeds deposited. This writing, which was the only evidence available of the defendant's intentions in making the deposit of title-deeds, was not registered. Held, that the deed required registration as it created a charge upon the property; that in its absence there was no evidence whatever of intention to connect the deposit of title-deeds with the debt, and that the mere fact that there was a subsequent or contemporaneous loan was not sufficient in law to warrant a presumption apart from any other evidence that the contemporaneous or antecedent deposit of title-deeds was necessarily made as security for the loan. *BEHRAM RASHID v. S. alone, not impleading his son, but in that suit he released the security and took a simple money-decree against N. They were mortgaged to him again in 1894. In 1895, he sued on his first mortgage and obtained a decree. In execution of the decree the lands were sold subject to the mortgage of 1895 and purchased by G with the permission of the Court. In 1905, a partition took place between G's heirs, at which the certificate of sale went to the share of the defendant and the mortgage-deed of 1895 went to the share of the plaintiff. The plaintiff next sued the defendant

Deed of trust construction of—Scheme of Management—Superintendent, of cestui que trust—Trustees, power of dismissal by—Contract of service—Perpetual injunction—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), ss. 21 (b) and 54. A donor by an awpannama, or deed of trust, transferred certain property to trustees for religious and charitable uses. The deed provided, inter alia, that there should be a superintendent of the trust properties subject to the control of the trustees. It was further provided that the superintendent should be the "executive hand" of the trustees, should supervise the management of the properties, which were to be registered in his name, in the Collectorate, summon meetings of the trustees, and keep accounts and submit them to the trustees. The first superintendent was to be the donor himself and after his death or relinquishment of office the superintendent was to be appointed by the trustees. No express power of dismissal was given to the trustees by the deed. Held, that a superintendent appointed by the trustees under the foregoing power was not a cestui que trust, but was the servant of the trustees, and that if dismissed by them he had no right to an injunction restraining the trustees "from interfering with his enjoyment of the rights and privileges of such superintendent as in the deed of trust provided." *Dean v. The Senate of the University is only bound by its Resolutions. It cannot be held bound by representations, made by any individual officer, without the sanction or authority of the University. Where a person deals with a corporation whose rights are defined by statute, he must be deemed to have informed himself of those rights. In this case the Resolution of the Senate cannot be interpreted as having appointed the applicant without the sanction of the Governor-General, or even that it was intended to appoint him without such sanction. No legal right can be said to exist, because the petitioner had lectured the previous year. A rule cannot be granted to try the title to an appointment. Such title can only be tried in a properly constituted suit. The existence of a legal right is the foundation of every writ of mandamus. The principle underlying the jurisdiction in these cases is that the proceedings can confer no title not already existing, though they may affect the consummation of the relator's title, if he had one, but it gives him none. Whether the sanction required under s. 12, Chapter XI of the University Regulations for the appointment of a University lecturer is ultra vires or not, cannot be determined in summary proceedings of this nature. The personal right referred to in s. 45 of the Specific Relief Act is not a right in rem, "such as every human being in civilized society possesses independently of any act of his own." The above dictum in In re Rustom Jamshed Iran, 3 Bom. L. R. 653, dissented from. He alone is a competent relator who has some interest other than that of the community at large in the question to be tried. *York & North Midland Railway Co. v. 18 C. W. N. 554

1. ————— Execution and attestation of will—Proof of genuineness of will—Status of attesting witnesses—Will, natural, reasonable and proper in its terms—Presumption of will being genuine—Grounds of suspicion not valid—Admission of additional evidence by appellate court—Civil Procedure Code (1882) s. 568. In the case of a will reasonable, natural, and proper in its terms, it is not in accordance with sound rules of construction to apply to it those canons which demands a rigorous scrutiny of documents of which the opposite can be said, namely, that they are unnatural, unreasonable or tinged with impropriety. On the question whether a will made by a Hindu in which he left all his property, moveable and immoveable, after the death of his widow, to his sister's son (one of the appellants) to the entire exclusion of the respondent (a remote relation), was genuine, as held by the Subordinate Judge, or a forgery, as held by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner, there were concurrent findings of both courts that the testator had been for years at enmity and on the worst of terms with the respondent, but had regarded the appellant with affection and treated him as his son. The will was found to have been duly executed, and properly attested by respectable servants in the testator's house whom it was natural to employ for that purpose. Held, that the will was in very respect a natural one, and in accordance with the testator's feelings and tenor of life, and the presumptions of law were in favour of its being maintained. A comment by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner which regarded the will with suspicion, to the effect that "the witnesses might have been of a better class" had no force except upon something on a much higher level than mere suspicion, namely, proof which would thoroughly satisfy the mind of a Court that those persons had committed both forgery and perjury. Chotey Narain Singh v. Ratan Koei, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 519; I. L. R. 22 I. A. 12, per Lord Watson, followed. Another ground of suspicion was "that the paper on which the will was written appeared to be old instead of fresh," which was supported by proof that paper was official paper in general use, together with evidence that some other people had been in the habit of having forms which they signed in blank, and forms were produced signed by people other than the testator, and with none of which he had any thing to do. Held, that such evidence was inadmissible as being not relevant to the case, and should not have been admitted. Held, further, that the course followed by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner during the hearing of the appeal in sending for and (purporting to act under s. 568 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882) admitting additional evidence (proceedings of the Municipal Board at Lucknow) to discredit one of the witnesses on a particular point, without calling him and affording him an opportunity of making an explanation of the matter, and on the ground that his evidence appeared untrue on that point disbelieving all the rest of his testimony as to the will, was an improper procedure and not in accordance with s. 568 of the Code. Their Lordships declined to conclude, in the absence of his own evidence on the point, that the rest of his testimony, otherwise quite unimpeachable, was perjury. JAGRANI KUNWAR v. DURGA PRASAD (1913).

I. L. R. 36 All. 93

2. ————— Construction of Codicil—Bequest creating a succession of life interests to illegitimate son and his issue (aulad)—Whether "aulad" includes illegitimate issue—Marriage of son by birth a Mahomedan to Hindu caste ladies—Intention of testator—Mahomedan brought up as orthodox Hindu. The question in this appeal was as to the construction of a codicil to the will of the late Maharaja of Balrampur, who was a Hindu of the Chattri caste, by which he purported to make provision for J.B. his son by a Mahomedan mistress, who, as held by the Courts below, was by birth a Mahomedan. He afterwards, however, became as far as was possible a Hindu. The appellant (plaintiff) was the eldest son of J.B. by a Mahomedan woman, and the second, third and fourth respondents were his brothers, and there were concurrent findings of both Courts in India that there was no valid marriage between J.B. and their mother and that they were consequently illegitimate. The first respondent was the son of J.B. by a Hindu lady of the Chhatti caste with whom he had admittedly gone through a marriage according to the strict Hindu rites; and when that lady died his father got him married to other lady of the same caste. On the death of J.B. in 1899 the first respondent obtained possession of the property in suit, and the appellant sued for it, the question being whether the appellant was an "issue" of J.B. within the meaning of the word "aulad" as used in the codicil, and as such entitled to inherit J.B.'s property. The first respondent contended that the appellant being illegitimate could not take under the terms of the codicil; that J.B. had been a Hindu from his boyhood to his death, and that he (the first respondent) being the only son of the first Hindu marriage, which was a valid one, was the heir of his father, and, on the true construction of the codicil, entitled to the property in suit. By the codicil, dated the 15th of March, 1878, the testator, after reciting, that his son J.B. "being not born of Khas Mahal, was not capable of the gaddinashini and the proprietorship of the riyasat," continued:—"But he also being born of my loins it is incumbent on me that such means be provided as would enable him and his issue (aulad) to support themselves well and with respect". . . . Accordingly the settlement is made as follows: "Rs. 4,000 per mensem, or Rs. 48,000 per annum," (the income derived from certain villages named) shall be continued to be paid by the proprietor of the riyat, the locum tenens of the gaddinashin for the time being, and that amount shall be paid to J.B. and his issue (aulad) for generation after generation so long as the family (khandan) of J.B. and his issue (aulad) remain in existence

(3) for his life-time J.B. has a right to spend their money, but after his death from among his issue (aulad) one person (jislo haq pahunchta hove), to whom the right may go, shall be considered proprietor of this maintenance allowance, without division, as a riyat. The other issue of the family of J.B. shall be entitled to get food, raiment and other necessities out of the monthly allowance.

(4) When there remains no descendant of the family of J.B. at any time the monthly allowance of Rs 4,000 will be resumed and remain in proprietary possession of the proprietor of the "riyat the gaddinashin." The Court of the Judicial Commissioner held that "aulad primā facie meant legitimate issue, and dismissed the suit. Held (upholding the decision), that the case was not one where a gift is made by will of the corpus of a fund or a life interest in a fund to the "children" of the testator, or of another, as a class. There might be good reason in some such cases for holding that in India the word "children" include illegitimate children. But here a succession of life interests from generation to generation is intended to be set up, the successor, or "proprietor," in each instance being vested with an absolute control of the income subject only to the duty of maintaining the issue (aulad) of the family (khandan) of the first proprietor J.B. There was nothing on the face of the codicil to suggest that a meaning should be given to the word "aulad" different from its primā facie meaning. To include illegitimate issue would bring into the line of succession not only the testator's illegitimate grand children, but their illegitimate issue from generation to generation. Such a construction would render condition No. 4 rather unnecessary and would also defeat the whole purpose and object of the testator in establishing the succession of life interests. Nor was there any reason for extending the meaning of the word "khandan" which ordinarily refers to the group of descendants who constitute the family of the proprietor, so as to include illegitimate offspring, who from the necessities of the case cannot share in the family life or its worship or ceremonials. Held, also, that the fair result of the evidence was that J.B. did his utmost to become an orthodox Hindu, and to pass as such in the society in which he lived, and that his father from boy's youth upwards aided and encouraged him in those efforts. The testator treated his marriages with the two Chattri ladies as lawful marriages and desired that others should so treat them, and consequently resolved to regard and treat the offspring of those unions as legitimate, and desired that they should be so treated and regarded by others; and that it was in this frame of mind he made the testamentary disposition in dispute. Having regard to all the evidence in the case, and the provisions of the codicil itself the intention of the testator plainly was to treat the marriages of J.B. with the two women of the Chattri caste as valid marriages and the issue of those marriages as legitimate issue. SHER BAHADUR v. GANGA BAKSH SINGH (1913).

3. ————— Executor—Powers of executor in dealing with the estate of his testator. One P. died, leaving a will by which he directed that certain legacies should be paid out of a fund of Rs. 10,000 invested in fixed deposit in the Delhi and London Bank. The Bank had during P.'s life-time advanced certain sums to his daughter on an undertaking by P. that he would stand surety for the loan. P. was also himself indebted to the Bank. Held, on suit by the legatees, that the executor of P.'s will was properly justified, on being satisfied as to the fact of P.'s relations with the Bank above described, in permitting the Bank to realize from the fund in question both the amount of the loan to P.'s daughter and the amount of his own indebtedness. Pocock v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LD., (1914).

4. ————— Construction of will—Self-acquired property—Bequest dividing property between testator's two sons with gift over to survivor—Survivorship whether limited to survivorship during testator's life or extending to period after his death—Period of distribution—Hindu Law. A Hindu resident of Surat in the Presidency of Bombay made a will dated 20th August 1899 by which after appointing his two sons "executors, heirs and owners" of the whole of his property (which was self-acquired) and directing them to divide and take equal shares in it with certain exceptions, gave each of them a half share of his estate not especially disposed of by the will. By clause 9 he made the following bequest, "I have divided between and given to my two sons the whole of my property as mentioned above. But should either of these two sons die without having had (leaving) any male issue the survivor of the said two sons is duly to take the whole of the property appertaining to the share of the deceased son who may have (leave) no male issue (behind him) after undertaking (to defray) the expenses in connection with the maintenance of his widow and marriage of his minor daughter. But under these circumstances the heirs of my deceased son, Surajlal, shall not get any right whatever." The testator died on 4th July 1901 leaving him surviving his two sons. The elder son died on 2nd January 1903 leaving a widow and a daughter. In a suit by the surviving son to enforce the provisions of clause 9 of the will, the High Court held that the period of distribution contemplated by the testator was the period of his death at which time half of his estate became vested in each of his sons absolutely, and that clause 9 should be read as if the survivorship there provided was limited to survivorship at the death of the testator. Held, (reversing that decision), that the words of clause 9 were not limited to survivorship during the testator's life, but clearly pointed to survivorship whenever it should occur; and that the surviving son was as such survivor entitled to the estate conveyed by the clause, subject to the obligation imposed upon him of maintaining his brother's widow and daughter CHUNILAL PARVATISHANKAR v. BAL SAMRAT (1914)

5. ————— “Will” in s 19 of the Probate and Administration Act, if means original document—Existence of will up to testator's death, if necessary to be proved—Revocation, pleading and proof of—Presumption of destruction of will, when arises—Loss of will, if operates as revocation—Destruction of will when operates as revocation—S. 24—“Since the testator's death,” scope and effect of—Delay in applying for Letters of Administration with will annexed. Where the testator did not appoint an executor and the residuary legatee applied for letters of administration with the will annexed 12 years after the death of the testator and the objector did not plead revocation but set up non-execution of the will: Held, that the execution of the will in the manner required by law having been proved it lay upon the objector to plead and prove revocation and no such plea having been taken it could not be held that the will was revoked. Per RAY J. That the application for letters of administration was not liable to dismissal on the ground that the petitioner did not prove that the will was in existence up to the time of the testator's death. That in s 19 of the Probate and Administration Act the word “will” does not mean the original document but has been obviously used to mean the disposition. When a will is shown to have been in the custody of the testator and is not found at his death the well-known presumption arises that the will has been destroyed by the testator for the purpose of revoking it. This rule of law bears only on revocation when it is an issue in the suit and then the presumption may be rebutted by the facts. The loss of a will does not operate as revocation to establish which destruction of the will by the testator must be shown. In s 24 of the Probate and Administration Act the words “since the testator's death” qualify the word “misled” and have no reference to the word “lost” or to the succeeding clause of the sentence. The delay in making the application under s. 19 was not a material fact in this case. SARAT CHANDRA BASAK v. GOLAP SUNDARI DASYA (1913)

6. ————— Will by Hindu—Interpretation, fundamental principles of, common to Hindu and English wills—Court's duty to give effect to intention as expressed, not to add to will—Surrounding circumstances to be looked at as aid to interpretation only—Religious opinion and race, in what way relevant—“Liberal construction of native wills,” meaning of Contemporaneous deed, referred to in will and interpretation by persons interested if may be referred to—English rules of construction, if inapplicable. In construing a will, a Court must consider the surrounding circumstances, the position of the testator, his family relationships, the probability that he would use words in a particular sense and many other things including the race and religious opinions of the testator and influences and aims arising therefrom—but all this solely as an aid to ascertaining the meaning of the language used by the particular testator in the particular will. Once the right construction is settled, the duty of the Court is loyally to carry out the intentions as expressed and none other. This duty is universal, and is true alike of wills of every nationality and every religion or rank of life. The Court is in no case justified in adding to testamentary dispositions. If they transgress any legal restrictions they must be disregarded. If any eventuality arises which the will leaves unprovided for, there will be intestacy. This fundamental principle does not clash with the principle that the Court will not necessarily apply English rules of construction to a will of a Hindu like the present, nor does it clash in any way with what is sometimes called “giving liberal interpretation to native wills.” That native testators should be ignorant of the legal phrases proper to express their intentions or of the legal steps necessary to carry them into effect, is one of the most important of the “surrounding circumstances” which the Court must bear in mind, and it is justified in refusing to allow defects in expression in these matters to prevent the carrying out of the testator's true intentions. But those intentions must be ascertained by the proper construction of the words he uses, and once ascertained, they must not be departed from. It is legitimate in construing a will to look at contemporaneous document referred to in the will which the testator wrote or caused to be written with the express intent to render clear his wishes with regard to his succession. The interpretation placed on the power by the testator's widows was referred to “for what it was worth” NARASIMHA APPA ROW v. PARTHASARATHY APPA ROW (1913)

7. ————— Construction—Life estate to daughter—Bequest to daughter's sons—On failure of the bequest the estate to go to the testator's cousins absolutely—No son born to the daughter at the death of the testator—Failure of the bequest to daughter's son—Not a case of intestacy—Operation of the bequest in favour of the testator's cousins—The intention of the testator to return his estate in his own family, that is, in the hands of his cousins. A testator in his will provided, inter alia, that his daughter should have a life estate of Rs. 150 and the rent of a house and in the event of her having a male child or male children, he or they should take the whole estate of the testator on attaining the age of 18 and then bearing a good character. Should the daughter have no male issue, then on her death, the whole of the testator's estate was to go to his cousins absolutely. The daughter having borne no male issue during the life-time of the testator, the intended bequest to her male issue failed : Ganendra Mohan Tagore v. Jaiindra Mohan Tagore, 9 B. L. R. 377. A question having arisen as to whether the condition of the daughter having a son (at the death of the testator) not being fulfilled, there was a case of intestacy. Held, that there was no intestacy. The intention of the testator was to give the whole of his property to his grandson (draughter's son). That intention having failed, the dominant intention of the testator was, subject to his daughter's life estate, to retain the estate in his own family, that is to say, in the hands of his cousins. NARANDAS VRIJBUKHANDAS v. Mahendro Nath Nath, I. L. R. 4 Calc 509, is authority for holding that a will of which probate has not been taken may be proved in a proceeding other than a proceeding under the Probate Act. But a will uncovered by a probate or letters of administration cannot prove that anybody named therein has title to the estate of the testator. A legal heir of a testator in possession of his general estate can maintain a suit for the benefit of the estate so long as any other claimant does not establish his right to the same under the will. *Prosunno Chandra Bhattacharya v. — in execution—*Whether entire zamindari or only zamindar's life estates sold—Mixed question of law and fact depending on entire evidence in the case—State of then law as to the zamindar's interest therein, not conclusive—Conduct of parties, important evidence. A question as to whether the entire estate in a zamindari and not only the life interest of the zamindar was sold in execution and brought by the purchaser is a question of mixed law and fact to be determined by the evidence in each case. All that Abdul Aziz Khan v. Appayasaami Narcker, I. L. R. 27 Mad. 131, 142, decided in reference to the above question was that the state of the law as understood at the time of sale, as to the rights of the zamindar in regard to the zamindari, was evidence to be considered along with other evidence in the case; it is not alone conclusive on the question. In determining the question of what the Court intended to sell and the purchaser understood he bought, evidence as to how the parties affected by the transaction themselves viewed it at the time is of much greater value than evidence which may be procurable some twenty years after the transaction took place. On the evidence in the case, their Lordships held that the sale which took place in 1880 was of the whole zamindari and that the purchaser bought the whole zamindari in execution.
